'Gas Fever' Runs Rampant in Milledgeville Area

Drillers Prepare To 'Shoot' Well On Barnes Farm

Kewanee Officials Hope for Producer; Close Site to Public

Things have taken a new turn in the search for oil and gas in Fayette County. They may or may not result in the first paying well—a gasser—being developed within a matter of days.

It is possible that the 3,450 foot well recently drilled on the Barnes farm a half mile southeast of Milledgeville, will become a producing gas well within the next few days.

When the well was drilled, gas was encountered in the area about 1,400 feet below the surface and Kewanee Oil Co. officials decided to make a thorough test of the well as a possible gasser by "shooting" it.

• • •

WORK of cleaning out the well to the required depth and plugging it below the point where the explosive will be placed, is now under way. Plans call for detonating a heavy charge of explosive in the well within a few days, it became known here Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the public will be excluded from the area due to the dangers attending the loading and firing of the big charge of explosive, probably several tons, which may rupture the stone strata and release whatever quantities of gas that may exist in the immediate area.

The developments are regarded as the most hopeful sign in the attempt being made by Kewanne to find oil or gas in this area. The results are being watched with deep interest locally, as well as by oil and gas men throughout this part of the country.

Kewanee has many thousands of acres under lease in Fayette County.

• • •

THE CHARGE of explosive will be sufficient to make a thorough test of the possibilities of the well as a gas producer, Kewanee officials indicated.

In several of the wells drilled in the county, gas has been struck at about the same depth, but the strikes have not been regarded as being in anything like paying quantity.

While the outfit is at work cleaning the well preparatory to loading it for shooting, the Oklahoma drilling rig is working on a new well near Five Points in Pickaway County where drilling was started early this week.

Colder, then Warmer, Weatherman Predicts

Most Washington C. H. residents awoke to comparatively springlike temperatures Wednesday morning as the mercury reached 32 degrees at 8 a. m. after an overnight low of 21.

Forecasts for the area predicted temperatures above 40 on Wednesday, cooler on Thursday and another warm front Thursday night.

Radio Peiping Says . . . .

Mao To Be 'Boss,' Even in Retirement

TOKYO (AP)—Mao Tze-tung is stepping down as President of Red China, Peiping confirmed today, but it insisted he is still boss.

After keeping it secret a week, Peiping radio let China's 600 millions in on the news. The shift was reported last weekend on Formosa, and Warsaw diplomats got confirmation Tuesday.

Despite Peiping's disclaimer, there was a feeling in Hong Kong, Seoul and Nationalist Formosa that Mao is being downgraded by the Communist apparatus and will eventually be stripped of power.

This opinion is based largely on reports of popular resentment in China over the commune system, which deprives the Chinese of their individuality and puts them to live in communities where their every action is subject to strict orders from above.

MAO TZE-TUNG

MARSHAL CHU-TEH

In Taipei, Dr. Sampson Shen, Nationalist China's chief information officer, said today "I have not the slightest doubt that we are witnessing today the beginning of the end for Mao Tze-tung & Co."

Shen said in a luncheon speech the Chinese Communists have these alternatives: "Either to march forward at the risk of stirring up a popular revolt or to retreat by abandonment of the commune system (of collective work battalions)."

"They would not choose the latter course for they know that once the dam is broken, they themselves would be swept away by the torrent," Shen said.

"The intensified disgust and disillusionment by the overworked peasants will one day reach such a level that a general uprising would be the only way open for their survival.

'And when that day comes, the rifles that are issued to militia members (in the communes) will be used against them."

Peiping's broadcast today gave no clue on Mao's successor but speculation has centered around Marshal Chu Teh, now vice chairman of the government. Chu, at 72, is seven years older than Mao. They have long been comrades in arms.

Fearful of undermining the Red China regime or even planting the seeds for a possible revolt, the Communist party Central Committe emphasized that Mao was stepping down voluntarily.

Mao's four-year term as head of government expires in January. But he will remain in the powerful post as chairman of the Communist party. The People's Congress meets in Peiping next month to elect the chief of government.

Foreign diplomats drew varying impressions from Mao's retirement.

U.S. and British foreign officials took the view that Mao remained as powerful as ever. Some diplomats in Communist Poland felt that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had a hand in the maneuver—or at least welcomed it.

Mao stands as a potential rival to Khrushchev as the high apostle of world communism.

Ohio Probation System Rapped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Because Ohio does not have an adequate probation system, says the Ohio Committee on Delinquency and Crime, the state is forced to spend much more than it should to take care of prisoners.

The committee's report said one-third of Ohio's 88 counties place a man on probation without a presentence investigation into his criminal, psychological and social history. Because of this, the report added, "The element of guess or chance in the correctional process is unfortunately high."

American Line Faces Strike By Pilots

CHICAGO (AP)—The Air Line Pilots Assn. says 1,500 pilots of American Airlines will strike at 11:59 p.m. (local time) Friday in a dispute over wages and working conditions.

The annoucement Tuesday night came in the midst of emergency metings in Chicago between the union and company. ALPA said the negotiations would continue.

In New York, the company said it would continue to accept reservations despite the strike threat.

C. A. Sayen, president of ALPA said weeklong negotiations had failed to result in satisfactory progress, and that "Our only remaining reluctant alternative is to proceed with our original plans."

American Airlines pilots had scheduled a strike at midnight Nov. 25 but were restrained by a temporary injunction issued by a federal judge in New York. The same judge declined to issue a permanent injunction while the Chicago negotiations were in progress.

ALPA contends the present pay scale is below American's competitors. Present wages range from $400 to $1,602 a month on piston-engine planes.

GOP's Senate Split Widens

Opposition Developing To Dirksen as Leader

WASHINGTON (AP)—A split in Republican ranks widened today over Sen. Everett M. Dirksen's candidacy for party floor leader in the new Senate.

The Illinois senator's assertion he is definitely a candidate and expects to win stiffened the attitude of senators rebelling against their Republican leadership.

The insurgents' spokesman, Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, said in an interview: "We have everything to gain and nothing to lose by making our fight for a forward-looking leadership. I think we have a good chance to win. If we are defeated, the party can look forward to further reversals in the 1960 elections."

Dirksen, Senate GOP whip in the last session, told reporters he expects to be elected floor leader at the Republican caucus Jan. 7.

He said he does not believe the other group could block his election. He is supported by Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

The insurgent group has a hard core of 10 members, but claims support among the other 24 Republican senators in the coming Congress.

All of the insurgents rate themselves as faithful backers of President Eisenhower's foreign policies, and some call themselves liberals.

"I do not know on what grounds I am being opposed," Dirksen said. "I have gone down the line for key administration legislation, including foreign aid, reciprocal trade, defense reorganization, the U. S. Information Agency appropriations and other controversial measures.

"I have carried the flag for the President and the White House when the going was rough."

The opposition group has said it will announce at a Dec. 30 meting its candidates for floor leader, whip, Bridges' policy committee post, and for chairman and secretary of the Conference of All Republican Senators.

'Fabulous' Shoplifting Team Nabbed

CINCINNATI (AP) — A mild-mannered couple, both 54, shied away from photographers Tuesday when they left city jail with an assortment of 23 charges against them.

Their manner did not change this morning in police court, where their case was continued until Dec. 30.

Police described the pair as the "most fabulous shoplifting team ever seized here" and said they may have been operating quietly for years.

The two, William and Elsie Jackson, were arrested in a downtown department store Monday in what officers figured was a routine case.

But a check of their home, police said, turned up about $5,000 worth of stolen merchandise.

Lt. Paul Steuer said: "It was enough to stock a small store. They haven't missed a major department store or supermarket in Cincinnati.

Police filed 11 charges against each of the Jacksons: Four felony and six misdemeanor charges of receiving stolen goods, and one apiece of petty larceny. Jackson was also charged with possession of a dangerous weapon.

The two were released on bond.

Fire Sweeps 50,000 Acres

A GIGANTIC BRUSH FIRE, the second large one in Southern California in two weeks, spreads quickly through canyons and mountains in Cleveland National forest, near San Juan Capistrano. The blaze roared over 50,000 acres.

Blackened Earth, Sorrow Remain after Brush Fire

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP)—Tragedy and sorrow lie today in the wake of a four-day brush fire that has flared over more than 50,000 acres of Southern California hills and canyons and is still out of control on nearly half its 75-mile perimeter.

While more than 2,000 men fight the stubborn flames, residents pick their way over the blackened earth to the ruins of their homes and summer cabins. Eighteen structures have been destroyed. More than 200 are still in peril.

In picturesque San Juan Canyon, scenic beauty is turned to rubble and ashes.

The canyon people who have returned share the common sadness of loss.

There is Joe Paseri. He came to the canyon to make his home in 1942. Beside the house was a great oak tree. Joe, 77, spent many a day relaxing beneath its branches.

Driven out by the fire, Joe came back to the ruins of his cabin, the black skeleton of the oak and the charred table beneath it.

'I don't know what to do," he said. "I feel like crying."

He reached into the ashes and picked up half of a figurine.

"St. Anthony," he said. "My wife's patron saint."

He sat down beside a blackened metal box, once his refrigerator. He cried.

There is Henry Emberg, who evacuated his home on the sheriff's orders and returned hopefully after the fire had passed. "There was nothing left," he said in shocked disbelief.

John and Romelia Lampo trudged through the charred remains of their cabin.

"We had a nice cabin," said Romelia. "All of the cabins here in the San Juan cost $8,000 or more to build and furnish. Mostly old people lived in them.

"Rebuild? No," said John. "It takes money for that and ours is gone."

"I wonder what the little animals will do for a drink?" Romelia asked.

"We had three little foxes — Limpy, Eater and Bobtail—and we used to feed them every day."

"Yes," added john. "Every day at half past four exactly."

High winds and low humidity have made the fire fighters' job a tough one. They don't expect to have even tentative control over the flames before Thursday.

The fire is believed to have been started by a tracer bullet ripping into the dry brush, either from a hunter's rifle or a military plane.

Ohio Power Gets Nod To Hike Rates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Utilities Commission today permitted the Ohio Power Co. of Canton to increase residential and commercial rates when the cost of fuel used to generate electricity goes up.

The company has 440,000 customers in 53 of Ohio's 88 counties. The company claims that every time the price of coal increases 11 cents a ton, it will mean only an 18-cent a year increase to the average residential customer.

The so-called fuel-cost clause already is in the company's contracts with industrial users.

The commission, in its order, said the company must report to it whenever billing charges vary. Ohio Power also must submit annual reports beginning not later than the end of February, 1960, showing the relation between increased fuel cost to the company and increased charges to customers.

A subsidiary company mines 60 per cent of the coal Ohio Power uses.

Colombian City Counts 50 Hurt In Shopper Panic

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Fire bred panic in a Bogota department store crowded with Christmas shoppers Tuesday night and sent scores of panic-stricken men, women and children to death.

Officials said 82 persons were killed and 50 injured. Most of them made a fatal wild scramble for a rear stairway that led only to a mezzanine.

Some died with toys in their arms. Others kneeled as if in prayer.

"The panic spread very quickly," said Alberto Mazuera, the manager.

Explosion of holiday lights had fired the clothing of salesgirls and sent a curtain of flame across the center of the long, narrow store, named Vida, on Septima Carrera avenue near the Capitol.

Mazuera said customers started bolting when they saw the salesgirls' clothing afire.

Those in front of the store had easy access to the street.

About half of the dead were employes of the store. The remainder were mostly women shoppers. It was estimated 10 children died in the fire, which raged for two hours before being brought under control.

A 16-year-old girl was found alive beneath a mass of bodies on the stairway. Her condition was critical.

The store is located in the central part of Bogota, and the crowds of Christmas shoppers both inside and out added to the chaos.

The panic was heightened by the crowd's difficulty in getting out of the store, which was quite long but only 23 feet wide.

The fire broke out in the middle of the store. Those in front escaped to the street. Those in the back of the store were cut off by a sheet of flames.

Fire extinguishers along the walls were ignored.

Alberto Mazuera, manager of the store, said that when the Christmas lights exploded "The fire went up to the ceiling in a burst of smoke."

"The store was full of people," he said. "I called the people to be quiet and calm and asked for the fire extinguishers and immediately called the firemen.

"Unfortunately panic spread very quickly, which was the principal cause of the deaths. There were so many people in the store that when those in the rear saw they could not get out immediately they turned to the back, crashing into the wall and jaming the stairway."

Ordination Rites at McNair Sunday for Jerry A. Snyder

McNair Memorial Presbyterian Church, Lewis and Rawlings St., will be the setting Sunday for the ordination of Jerry A. Snyder, Bloomingburg, who has been serving as supply pastor of the Bloomingburg and McNair churches.

The ceremony, at 3 p. m., will be followed by a reception and a tea.

Mr. Snyder received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., and his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Fuller Theological Seminary, Pasadena, Calif. He has furthered his education with a special course at the Louisville, Ky., Seminary.

• • •

MR. SNYDER, a native of South Bend, Ind., served both Bloomingburg and McNair churches as a student supply pastor through April and May, and upon completion of his work at Louisville, he was reassigned by the Columbus Presbytery to be supply minister to the two local congregations.

At that time, he and his wife, Mary Lou, moved into the manse at Bloomingburg. He has since successfully passed the examinations and fulfilled the requirements for ordination as established by the Presbytery.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam J. Snyder, live in Mishawaka, Ind.

MINISTERS who will assist with the service are the Rev. David Nawyn, Sedalia; the Rev. Donald Mitchell, Circleville; the Rev. David Erb, Reynoldsburg; the Rev. John Wriggins, Bremen; the Rev. W. Neil Hand, pastor the Washington C. H. First Church, and the Rev. Willis Crafts, a retired minister, who makes his home at Gardner Court here.

The public is invited to attend both the service and the reception.

Bucyrus Mill Destroyed by Costly Fire

BUCYRUS, Ohio (AP)—The million-dollar plant of the Crawford Steel Foundry Co. here was destroyed by fire early today. Cause of the blaze was not determined immediately.

The plant, owned by the Miller Manufacturing Co. of Monroe, Mich., officially changed hands about a week ago, after many weeks of negotiations and financing arrangements between the Michigan company, the former owners, and Walter Michael, former president and general manager.

The blaze broke out about 3 a. m., possibly in a corner of the 200-foot long combination brick and wood foundry building, firemen said.

Principal product of the plant, employing about 150 persons, was electrical steel castings.

Flames had spread to the greater part of the building by the time firemen arrived and there was little hope of saving the building. Firemen were still pouring water over the ruins at 8:30 a.m.

Spokesmen for the Neff and Dostal insurance firm in Bucyrus, which holds the insurance account for the foundry, called it a "million dollar plant" but said there could be no official estimate of the damage until a complete investigation is made.

The agents, however, said they feel that while the building itself appears to have been destroyed, there may be some chance of salvaging equipment inside.

Empty Crib To Be Unused; Expectant Mother Is Slain

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A tiny crib stood at the foot of the still bloody bed. Soft white blankets edged in satin were gently folded over its sides in anticipation of a birth, perhaps a Christmas child.

But the birth will never come. The expectant mother, Mrs. Janice Ora Porter, 24, is dead, victim of a savage assault and a bullet in the brain.

Her body, trussed with twine, gagged and blindfolded, was discovered Tuesday by her father-in-law when he returned to his home near here where she and her husband lived.

Sheriff's deputies arrested David S. Smith, 20, who lived just up the road from the brutal slaying scene, and said he admitted the killing. He is being held for investigation of murder.

Smith was quoted as saying he had planned for two or three days to criminally assault the young mother-to-be.

Deputies said Mrs. Porter, who was expecting her first child in a few days, apparently was ironing when Smith knocked on her door and asked if she had seen his missing cat.

But he came back a second time, he told authorities, and found a .22 caliber revolver in the Porter home. Smith said he didn't feel that Mrs. Porter knew he was in the house.

Investigators said he came upon her with the gun in his hand, blindfolded and gagged her; then, after assaulting her, shot her in the forehead. However, Coroner Robert Evans said she was not raped in the legal sense of the word.

When found, her hands were crossed behind her and bound with twine, Sheriff Stacy Hall related. She was lying on her back on a bed, her clothes ripped open.

Deputies were led to Smith by footprints in the snow from the victim's house to his, about 100 yards away.

Smith is a part-time student at Ohio State University, where Mrs. Porter's husband, Myron, 26, is a senior in the college of dentistry.

The husband stared through a picture window in the new ranch type home and sobbed, "Everything's gone. Everything's gone now."

He clenched and unclenched his fists as he paced the floor. Finally he sat down in a chair and cried out: "Oh, no. God, it can't be."

When Dr. Evans, arrived at the home, he bent over the body of the attractive young mother, listening for a heartbeat in the hope that immediate surgery might save the unborn child. There was no heartbeat.

In Mrs. Porter's room, books on infant care line the dresser to the right of the bed where she was found.

ST. PIERRE, St. Pierre et Miquelon (AP) — These tiny windswept islands off the south coast of Newfoundland have decided to remain a territory of France.

France's overseas territories are given the option under the new constitution of retaining their status, becoming self-governing within a new French community or fully integrating with France.

Note Reveals Faith of Child

CHICAGO (AP) — In the annual flood of letters addressed to Santa Claus, postoffice workers found one, carefully printed by a child's hand and unsigned.

"Dear Santa: Please send some presents to my brother. Give mine to him too. He was burned up at school. He is with Jesus in heaven," it said.

GOP's Senate Split Widens

Opposition Developing To Dirksen as Leader

WASHINGTON (AP)—A split in Republican ranks widened today over Sen. Everett M. Dirksen's candidacy for party floor leader in the new Senate.

The Illinois senator's assertion he is definitely a candidate and expects to win stiffened the attitude of senators rebelling against their Republican leadership.

The insurgents' spokesman, Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, said in an interview: "We have everything to gain and nothing to lose by making our fight for a forward-looking leadership. I think we have a good chance to win. If we are defeated, the party can look forward to further reversals in the 1960 elections."

Dirksen, Senate GOP whip in the last session, told reporters he expects to be elected floor leader at the Republican caucus Jan. 7.

He said he does not believe the other group could block his election. He is supported by Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

The insurgent group has a hard core of 10 members, but claims support among the other 24 Republican senators in the coming Congress.

All of the insurgents rate themselves as faithful backers of President Eisenhower's foreign policies, and some call themselves liberals.

"I do not know on what grounds I am being opposed," Dirksen said. "I have gone down the line for key administration legislation, including foreign aid, reciprocal trade, defense reorganization, the U. S. Information Agency appropriations and other controversial measures.

"I have carried the flag for the President and the White House when the going was rough."

The opposition group has said it will announce at a Dec. 30 meting its candidates for floor leader, whip, Bridges' policy committee post, and for chairman and secretary of the Conference of All Republican Senators.

'Fabulous' Shoplifting Team Nabbed

CINCINNATI (AP) — A mild-mannered couple, both 54, shied away from photographers Tuesday when they left city jail with an assortment of 23 charges against them.

Their manner did not change this morning in police court, where their case was continued until Dec. 30.

Police described the pair as the "most fabulous shoplifting team ever seized here" and said they may have been operating quietly for years.

The two, William and Elsie Jackson, were arrested in a downtown department store Monday in what officers figured was a routine case.

But a check of their home, police said, turned up about $5,000 worth of stolen merchandise.

Lt. Paul Steuer said: "It was enough to stock a small store. They haven't missed a major department store or supermarket in Cincinnati.

Police filed 11 charges against each of the Jacksons: Four felony and six misdemeanor charges of receiving stolen goods, and one apiece of petty larceny. Jackson was also charged with possession of a dangerous weapon.

The two were released on bond.

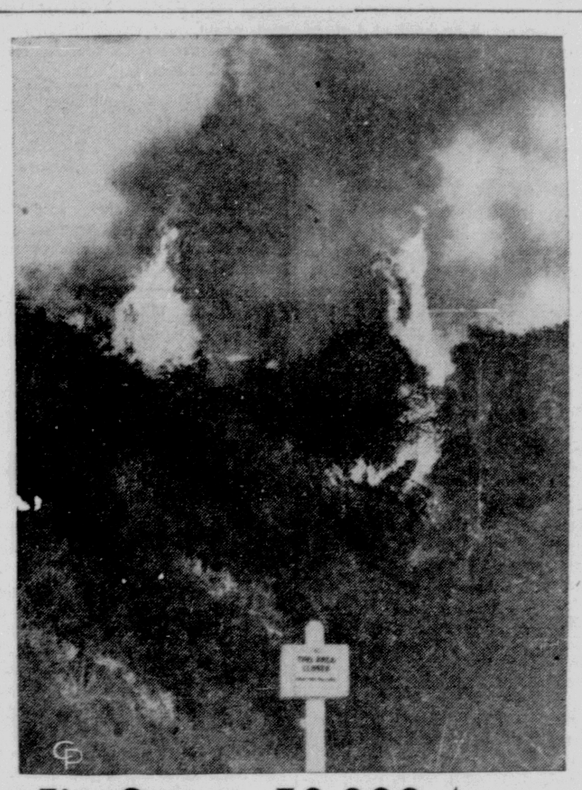

Queen Leads Cha-Cha At Palace Staff Party

It was the annual party for the palace household staff.

The Queen, Prince Philip, Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth danced almost nonstop for three hours.

Just before she left at 12:15 a. m., the Queen requested the cha cha. She danced it with her husband while the hired help joined in.

Fire Sweeps 50,000 Acres

A GIGANTIC BRUSH FIRE, the second large one in Southern California in two weeks, spreads quickly through canyons and mountains in Cleveland National forest, near San Juan Capistrano. The blaze roared over 50,000 acres.

Blackened Earth, Sorrow Remain after Brush Fire

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP)—Tragedy and sorrow lie today in the wake of a four-day brush fire that has flared over more than 50,000 acres of Southern California hills and canyons and is still out of control on nearly half its 75-mile perimeter.

While more than 2,000 men fight the stubborn flames, residents pick their way over the blackened earth to the ruins of their homes and summer cabins. Eighteen structures have been destroyed. More than 200 are still in peril.

In picturesque San Juan Canyon, scenic beauty is turned to rubble and ashes.

The canyon people who have returned share the common sadness of loss.

There is Joe Paseri. He came to the canyon to make his home in 1942. Beside the house was a great oak tree. Joe, 77, spent many a day relaxing beneath its branches.

Driven out by the fire, Joe came back to the ruins of his cabin, the black skeleton of the oak and the charred table beneath it.

'I don't know what to do," he said. "I feel like crying."

He reached into the ashes and picked up half of a figurine.

"St. Anthony," he said. "My wife's patron saint."

He sat down beside a blackened metal box, once his refrigerator. He cried.

There is Henry Emberg, who evacuated his home on the sheriff's orders and returned hopefully after the fire had passed. "There was nothing left," he said in shocked disbelief.

John and Romelia Lampo trudged through the charred remains of their cabin.

"We had a nice cabin," said Romelia. "All of the cabins here in the San Juan cost $8,000 or more to build and furnish. Mostly old people lived in them.

"Rebuild? No," said John. "It takes money for that and ours is gone."

"I wonder what the little animals will do for a drink?" Romelia asked.

"We had three little foxes — Limpy, Eater and Bobtail—and we used to feed them every day."

"Yes," added john. "Every day at half past four exactly."

High winds and low humidity have made the fire fighters' job a tough one. They don't expect to have even tentative control over the flames before Thursday.

The fire is believed to have been started by a tracer bullet ripping into the dry brush, either from a hunter's rifle or a military plane.

Ohio Power Gets Nod To Hike Rates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Utilities Commission today permitted the Ohio Power Co. of Canton to increase residential and commercial rates when the cost of fuel used to generate electricity goes up.

The company has 440,000 customers in 53 of Ohio's 88 counties. The company claims that every time the price of coal increases 11 cents a ton, it will mean only an 18-cent a year increase to the average residential customer.

The so-called fuel-cost clause already is in the company's contracts with industrial users.

The commission, in its order, said the company must report to it whenever billing charges vary. Ohio Power also must submit annual reports beginning not later than the end of February, 1960, showing the relation between increased fuel cost to the company and increased charges to customers.

A subsidiary company mines 60 per cent of the coal Ohio Power uses.

Colombian City Counts 50 Hurt In Shopper Panic

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Fire bred panic in a Bogota department store crowded with Christmas shoppers Tuesday night and sent scores of panic-stricken men, women and children to death.

Officials said 82 persons were killed and 50 injured. Most of them made a fatal wild scramble for a rear stairway that led only to a mezzanine.

Some died with toys in their arms. Others kneeled as if in prayer.

"The panic spread very quickly," said Alberto Mazuera, the manager.

Explosion of holiday lights had fired the clothing of salesgirls and sent a curtain of flame across the center of the long, narrow store, named Vida, on Septima Carrera avenue near the Capitol.

Mazuera said customers started bolting when they saw the salesgirls' clothing afire.

Those in front of the store had easy access to the street.

About half of the dead were employes of the store. The remainder were mostly women shoppers. It was estimated 10 children died in the fire, which raged for two hours before being brought under control.

A 16-year-old girl was found alive beneath a mass of bodies on the stairway. Her condition was critical.

The store is located in the central part of Bogota, and the crowds of Christmas shoppers both inside and out added to the chaos.

The panic was heightened by the crowd's difficulty in getting out of the store, which was quite long but only 23 feet wide.

The fire broke out in the middle of the store. Those in front escaped to the street. Those in the back of the store were cut off by a sheet of flames.

Fire extinguishers along the walls were ignored.

Alberto Mazuera, manager of the store, said that when the Christmas lights exploded "The fire went up to the ceiling in a burst of smoke."

"The store was full of people," he said. "I called the people to be quiet and calm and asked for the fire extinguishers and immediately called the firemen.

"Unfortunately panic spread very quickly, which was the principal cause of the deaths. There were so many people in the store that when those in the rear saw they could not get out immediately they turned to the back, crashing into the wall and jamming the stairway."

Empty Crib To Be Unused; Expectant Mother Is Slain

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A tiny crib stood at the foot of the still bloody bed. Soft white blankets edged in satin were gently folded over its sides in anticipation of a birth, perhaps a Christmas child.

But the birth will never come. The expectant mother, Mrs. Janice Ora Porter, 24, is dead, victim of a savage assault and a bullet in the brain.

Her body, trussed with twine, gagged and blindfolded, was discovered Tuesday by her father-in-law when he returned to his home near here where she and her husband lived.

Sheriff's deputies arrested David S. Smith, 20, who lived just up the road from the brutal slaying scene, and said he admitted the killing. He is being held for investigation of murder.

Smith was quoted as saying he had planned for two or three days to criminally assault the young mother-to-be.

Deputies said Mrs. Porter, who was expecting her first child in a few days, apparently was ironing when Smith knocked on her door and asked if she had seen his missing cat.

But he came back a second time, he told authorities, and found a .22 caliber revolver in the Porter home. Smith said he didn't feel that Mrs. Porter knew he was in the house.

Investigators said he came upon her with the gun in his hand, blindfolded and gagged her; then, after assaulting her, shot her in the forehead. However, Coroner Robert Evans said she was not raped in the legal sense of the word.

When found, her hands were crossed behind her and bound with twine, Sheriff Stacy Hall related. She was lying on her back on a bed, her clothes ripped open.

Deputies were led to Smith by footprints in the snow from the victim's house to his, about 100 yards away.

Smith is a part-time student at Ohio State University, where Mrs. Porter's husband, Myron, 26, is a senior in the college of dentistry.

The husband stared through a picture window in the new ranch type home and sobbed, "Everything's gone. Everything's gone now."

He clenched and unclenched his fists as he paced the floor. Finally he sat down in a chair and cried out: "Oh, no. God, it can't be."

When Dr. Evans, arrived at the home, he bent over the body of the attractive young mother, listening for a heartbeat in the hope that immediate surgery might save the unborn child. There was no heartbeat.

In Mrs. Porter's room, books on infant care line the dresser to the right of the bed where she was found.

NATO Urged To Stock Up On Missiles

PARIS (AP)—NATO's supreme commander in Europe, U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, pleaded with the Atlantic Pact countries today to move quickly into missile rearmament.

In a strong presentation to the foreign ministers of the 15-nation alliance, Norstad outlined present strength and future needs in the face of Soviet military swaggering, primarily over Berlin.

Informed sources said Norstad told the secret gathering his military command needs intermediate-range American guided missiles as soon as they can be placed on the European bases from which they could reach the Soviet Union.

Only Britain has thus far accepted these missiles. The Italians are close to signing a similar agreement. French delay on acceptance is the big stumbling block to getting what Norstad considers an adequate force of missiles in Europe.

Norstad's speech was described as sober and serious. A NATO spokesman, asked if the commander expressed satisfaction with Allied military progress, replied:

"It would be wrong to conclude that there was any optimism or pessimism. Realism would be a better word."

Before Norstad spoke, many of the delegates displayed little or no sense of urgency toward the strengthening of land forces or equipping them with missiles. For one thing, U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had told them Tuesday with the statement that "our military advisers are absolutely confident that the Soviet Union will not risk war over Berlin."

Soviet warnings of nuclear war if the West insists on continued access to West Berlin were termed by Dulles "empty threats which ought not frighten anyone."

Norstad also appealed for speedy fulfillment of NATO plans for 30 full-strength, combat-ready divisions in Europe, plus 100 battalions armed with short-range, tactical missiles by 1963. So far the NATO force lacks half of the divisions, due chiefly to the lag in West German armament and the diversion of most French strength from Europe to fight Algerian rebels.

A military report to the NATO ministers warned that the Russians could launch a massive attack without resorting to weapons of mass destruction.

Christmas Baskets

Chamber of Commerce is acting only as the coordinating agency and that organizations which will fill baskets for the needy will come there to get the names of families to be remembered.

The organizations will fill the baskets with whatever the different families need insofar as is possible. The baskets will include principally food for Christmas dinner, although some may contain toys for children and, even perhaps small articles of apparel. What goes into the baskets, it was pointed out, is entirely up the organization that fills and delivers them.

* * *

INDICATIONS at the meeting Tuesday were that there will be well over 100 families on the list by Monday and around 100 different organizations, large and small, ready to fill and deliver them.

Last year the 187 families were listed for baskets, but some of them came in so late that 45 were left. However, several merchants and some of the organizations met the emergency by taking some of these belatedly.

The committee stressed at the Tuesday meeting that "we don't want that to happen again this year. . .we hope names will be listed early enough so that all of them will be taken by some organization."

Here is the way the plan works: An organization agrees to fill and deliver a certain number of baskets; a representative goes to the "clearing house" and selects the families to which they will be delivered; then the names are checked off.

The purpose of the clearing house it has been explained frequently, is to avoid duplications and to do everything possible to see that no family goes without a basket on Christmas.

Ex-Air Officer, Wife Found Shot

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—A coroner returned a verdict of murder-suicide in the shooting deaths of a 65-year-old retired Air Force officer and his wife, whose bodies were found Tuesday night in their home in nearby New Carlisle.

Coroner Austin Richards said Albert J. Snodgrass, 65, shot his wife, Jennie, about 45, with a rifle, then took his own life the same way.

Police entered the home after neighbors reported they hadn't seen the couple all day. Neighbors said Snodgrass was nervous and despondent over ill health.

Two Cars Damaged In Identical Mishaps Tuesday

Two cars backing out from parking spaces on Market St. damaged two other cars stopped on the opposite side of the street in separate accidents, Tuesday.

The car owned by Clark Saltz, 739 Gregg St., was struck by one driven by William Porter, 313 Hinde St., while it was parked on Market St. near Hinde St. at about 6 p. m., police said.

Saltz has been awarded an $89 judgement by Municipal Court Judge Max Dice in the morning against a Xenia woman who also hit Saltz' parked car on Sept. 12.

The car owned by Juanita Pennington, 707 Clinton Ave., also was damaged slightly when struck by a vehicle operated by James D. Halter, 612 S. Fayette St., as she was waiting for the red light at North St., officers said.

Fire Destroys Route 22 Barn

New Holland Farm Loss Unestimated

A barn owned by Hugh Schwartz Route 22 east, burned to the ground early Wednesday, destroying "quite an amount" of baled hay and straw, a tractor, and hand tools.

The farm is located about two miles east of New Holland.

New Holland volunteer firemen, called to the blaze at about 3 a. m., said they could not save the barn and restricted their efforst to protecting the house which is occupied by Woodrow Workman. The house was not damaged.

The fire was first noticed by a truck driver who roused the residents and called the fire department. By the time firemen arrived a few minutes later, the flames were raging out of control and they could only watch it burn.

There was no immediate estimate of the loss.

* * *

SABINA FIREMEN were also called out Wednesday morning to answer a call from the Hugh Moriarity residence on the Marchant-Luttrell Rd.

Chief Thomas Mercer said the flue in the house had plugged up. There was minor damage to the residence.

Sneak Smoker Gets Blame in Chicago Fire

CHICAGO (AP) — Sneak smoking, delay in sounding an alarm and combustible materials in a stairwell stood out today among findings in the tragic fire at Our Lady of the Angeles School Dec. 1.

Coroner Walter McCarron said the most important finding was a report of sneak smoking in the school just before the fire in which 89 children and 3 nuns perished.

Sgt. Drew Brown of the police arson squad told the coroner's blue ribbon jury Tuesday that:

"We have definitely found there had been smoking in the school" near the stairwell where the fire started.

"We have found definitely that combustible materials were stored in the stairwell."

Brown testified the arson squad found two boys who said they had seen the sneak smokers between 2:20 and 2:30 p.m. The fire alarm was wounded at 2:42.

Brown said the boys could not identify the smokers by name and that pupils and teachers would be questioned again.

McCarron said the smoking incident "promises to open an entirely new line of inquiry and probably is the most important piece of evidence on the origin of the fire which we have received."

Brown testified the fire's origin remained undetermined; that there are strong indications it was accidental rather than arson, and that police had been unable to find evidence that any volatile liquid had been used.

The inquest will be resumed Jan. 13.

U. S. Envoy Leaves Iraq Very Quietly

BAGHDAD (AP) — William M. Rountree, assistant U.S. secretary of state, left Iraq quietly, almost furtively, today. His Iraqi Airways plane took off for Beirut, Lebanon, where he will change planes en route to Athens.

The envoy's departure contrasted with the hostile demonstrations which marked his arrival. There were no crowds on the streets. The exact time of his departure had been kept secret.

The Iraqi government nonetheless took no chances. Soldiers stood every 30 or 50 yards along his route from the U.S. Embassy to the airfield.

The American charge d'affaires, A. David Fritzland, other embassy officials and a representative of the Iraqi protocol official saw him off. Rountree declined to make a statement.

Organized mobs shouted "Go home" and hurled mud, eggs and stones at the flag-flying limousine of the U.S. Embassy when Rountree arrived Monday on a fact-finding tour of the Middle East.

The visitor traveled in an embassy station wagon without a flag Tuesday and was virtually unnoticed as he was driven to a midday conference with Premier Abdul Karim Kassem.

He talked for more than an hour with the Premier. The government and the U.S. Embassy refused to give any information about what was discussed.

Thor Firing By Military Is Success

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Out in the vast Pacific lies a symbol of America's growing space age might—the nose cone of the first ballistic missile launched at this West Coast base.

Neither the Air Force nor the Navy will make any attemot to recover the cone, hurled 1,500 miles across the Pacific missile range Tuesday. Yet it deserves a place in some museum of scientific endeavor.

For the cone of the medium range Thor missile, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead, marks America's first firing of a ballistics missile under combat conditions. It shows the Thor is moving from the development stage to the operational.

Here at Vandenberg, a regular Air Force crew pushed some buttons and the 50-ton weapon soared some 300 miles up to the fringes of space. The blastoff came only 11 minutes after the 11-man crew raised the Thor upright and began filling it with liquid fuel.

Unlike firings at Cape Canaveral, this was no test of an experimental rocket. No civilian experts hovered over their instruments watching for performance flaws that could be corrected in later models.

This was entirely a military operation, demonstrating that the Air Force has now developed combat crews to fire missiles.

Undelivered: A Coat for Ike

Italian Tailor Finds 'Vicuna' Is Taboo

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Italian tailor is in town with expensive gifts for President Eisenhower — a vicuna overcoat and a cashmere golfing jacket.

But, after learning how the word vicuna still causes government officials to wince, he hasn't tried to go near the White House to present them personally to the President.

Instead, Angelo Litrico of Rome said he would turn over his two hand-made creations to the Italian Embassy. Ambassador Manlio Brosio, he said, has assured him they will be delivered to the White House.

When asked, the Italian Embassy said Litrico must be mistaken.

Brosio has offered to send along the cashmere golfing jacket to the White House, the embassy said, but the ambassador said nothing about the vicuna coat.

The White House kept a strict silence about Eisenhower's attitude toward the intended gifts. Associate press secretary Anne Wheaton said Litrico has "no appointment—none whatsoever."

The 30-year-old Litrico, operator of a fashionable shop in Rome, said he knows nothing about the furor created last summer by the disclosure that a vicuna overcoat was given to former presidential aide Sherman Adams by Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine.

"I'm not a politician," he said. "I'm a tailor. It's not my fault that vicuna has suddenly become a bad word. It's a beautiful material — the very best."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Brazilian President Juscelino Kubitschek have shown no reluctance in accepting his gifts when he visited their countries, Litrico said.

"I would never visit a foreign country without giving a present to the boss. I give it out of my heart," he said.

Lye in Skillet Blamed in Deaths

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)—An elderly mother and her son were found dead early Tuesday night in their homes here. The family dog was dead in the back yard.

Police identified the mother and son as Mrs. Georgia Mack, about 95, and James O. Mack, about 70.

Stark County Coroner E. B. Mozes planned autopsies today to determine the cause of deaths. Contents of the dog's stomach were to be examined.

Police expressed the opinion that lye poisoning caused the deaths. They said their investigation showed that the mother or son had cleaned a skillet with lye and that they apparently had eaten food cooked in utensil before all the lye was removed. Some of the food apparently was given to the dog, they added.

Pleads Innocent

INDUSTRIALIST Bernard Goldfine leaves Boston's Federal building after pleading innocent to contempt charges for failing to hand over business records to the Internal Revenue service.

Goldfine Files Innocent Plea At Hearing

BOSTON, Mass. (AP)—Bernard Goldfine, New England textile tycoon and close friend of former presidential assistant Sherman Adams, has denied one contempt charge but still has two more facing him.

He was in court Tuesday with his assistant, Miss Mildred Paperman, on charges of contempt for failure to produce records for the Internal Revenue Service.

He and Miss Paperman pleaded innocent, and Federal Judge Charles E. Wyzanski ordered an immediate trial. The case was suspended for a day when the court agreed to a defense motion, and ordered the government to search for some old records — and produce some new ones.

One order directed Fred G. Pastore, supervisor of the IRS Intelligence Division, to make a diligent search through some two tons of Goldfine records to see if the lot includes some that the government contends Goldfine has failed to turn over.

The other order directed five IRS agents to produce today any reports they had made to superiors regarding the Goldfine investigation. Judge Wyzanski said he will rule on whether the reports contain secret information.

The case is due to come up again Thursday in federal court.

Money, Battery Taken During Night

Washington C. H. residents Wednesday morning reported two nighttime thefts, police said.

Charles Harris, an employe at the Noon Barber Shop, Fayette and Court Sts., said a burglar broke the window in the door, unlocked the door throught the hole and stole about $5.20 in change.

Romain Croker, manager of Farmers Produce Exchange, 920 N. North St., said thieves stole a battery from the back of a truck parked in the rear of the establishment.

Disorderly Conduct Charge Withdrawn

A Washington C. H. woman withdrew a disorderly conduct charge against her son Tuesday when she said she was too ill to appear in Municipal Court.

Mrs. Margaret Neal, 923 Forest St., asked Judge Max Dice to dismiss the charges against her son, James A., 49, of the same address. Judge Dice said he would drop the charge but stipulated that somebody had to pay the $8.70 court costs.

Stock Mart Prices Edge Still Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged slightly further into record high ground early this afternoon. The going was tough.

Gains of fractions to a point among key stocks were enough to push the averages slightly higher. Numerous losses marred the advance.

Wide moves among a scattering of selected issues highlighted the performance.

Steels, mail order-retails, electronics, utilities, rails and oils were mostly higher. Most motors, airlines and tobaccos were down. The pattern was irregular for nonferrous metals, chemicals, electrical equipment and drugs.

The market was slightly higher at the start. The list retained a slightly higher edge in more moderate dealings.

North American Aviation rose one point after the government picked the firm's Rocketdyne division to develop a giant rocket capable of putting up manned satellites.

Reynolds Metals jumped more than two in response to what brokers said was a favorable price chart pattern and the optimistic outlook for aluminum.

American Telephone continued to forge ahead, adding about two for new 28-year highs.

General Instrument rose about two. Gains of about a point or more were made by Youngstown Sheet, Ford, Goodrich, Woolworth, Eastman Kodak and Pfizer. Reynolds added about three and Lorillard two.

U.S. government bonds were steady.

NATO Urged To Stock Up On Missiles

PARIS (AP)—NATO's supreme commander in Europe, U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, pleaded with the Atlantic Pact countries today to move quickly into missile rearmament.

In a strong presentation to the foreign ministers of the 15-nation alliance, Norstad outlined present strength and future needs in the face of Soviet military swaggering, primarily over Berlin.

Informed sources said Norstad told the secret gathering his military command needs intermediate-range American guided missiles as soon as they can be placed on the European bases from which they could reach the Soviet Union.

Only Britain has thus far accepted these missiles. The Italians are close to signing a similar agreement. French delay on acceptance is the big stumbling block to getting what Norstad considers an adequate force of missiles in Europe.

Norstad's speech was described as sober and serious. A NATO spokesman, asked if the commander expressed satisfaction with Allied military progress, replied:

"It would be wrong to conclude that there was any optimism or pessimism. Realism would be a better word."

Before Norstad spoke, many of the delegates displayed little or no sense of urgency toward the strengthening of land forces or equipping them with missiles. For one thing, U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had told them Tuesday with the statement that "our military advisers are absolutely confident that the Soviet Union will not risk war over Berlin."

Soviet warnings of nuclear war if the West insists on continued access to West Berlin were termed by Dulles "empty threats which ought not frighten anyone."

Norstad also appealed for speedy fulfillment of NATO plans for 30 full-strength, combat-ready divisions in Europe, plus 100 battalions armed with short-range, tactical missiles by 1963. So far the NATO force lacks half of the divisions, due chiefly to the lag in West German armament and the diversion of most French strength from Europe to fight Algerian rebels.

A military report to the NATO ministers warned that the Russians could launch a massive attack without resorting to weapons of mass destruction.

Christmas Baskets

Chamber of Commerce is acting only as the coordinating agency and that organizations which will fill baskets for the needy will come there to get the names of families to be remembered.

The organizations will fill the baskets with whatever the different families need insofar as is possible. The baskets will include principally food for Christmas dinner, although some may contain toys for children and, even perhaps small articles of apparel. What goes into the baskets, it was pointed out, is entirely up the organization that fills and delivers them.

* * *

INDICATIONS at the meeting Tuesday were that there will be well over 100 families on the list by Monday and around 100 different organizations, large and small, ready to fill and deliver them.

Last year the 187 families were listed for baskets, but some of them came in so late that 45 were left. However, several merchants and some of the organizations met the emergency by taking some of these belatedly.

The committee stressed at the Tuesday meeting that "we don't want that to happen again this year. . .we hope names will be listed early enough so that all of them will be taken by some organization."

Here is the way the plan works: An organization agrees to fill and deliver a certain number of baskets; a representative goes to the "clearing house" and selects the families to which they will be delivered; then the names are checked off.

The purpose of the clearing house it has been explained frequently, is to avoid duplications and to do everything possible to see that no family goes without a basket on Christmas.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—A coroner returned a verdict of murder-suicide in the shooting deaths of a 65-year-old retired Air Force officer and his wife, whose bodies were found Tuesday night in their home in nearby New Carlisle.

Police entered the home after neighbors reported they hadn't seen the couple all day. Neighbors said Snodgrass was nervous and despondent over ill health.

Two Cars Damaged In Identical Mishaps Tuesday

Two cars backing out from parking spaces on Market St. damaged two other cars stopped on the opposite side of the street in separate accidents, Tuesday.

The car owned by Clark Saltz, 739 Gregg St., was struck by one driven by William Porter, 313 Hinde St., while it was parked on Market St. near Hinde St. at about 6 p. m., police said.

Saltz has been awarded an $89 judgement by Municipal Court Judge Max Dice in the morning against a Xenia woman who also hit Saltz' parked car on Sept. 12.

Fire Destroys Route 22 Barn

New Holland Farm Loss Unestimated

A barn owned by Hugh Schwartz Route 22 east, burned to the ground early Wednesday, destroying "quite an amount" of baled hay and straw, a tractor, and hand tools.

The farm is located about two miles east of New Holland.

New Holland volunteer firemen, called to the blaze at about 3 a. m., said they could not save the barn and restricted their efforst to protecting the house which is occupied by Woodrow Workman. The house was not damaged.

The fire was first noticed by a truck driver who roused the residents and called the fire department. By the time firemen arrived a few minutes later, the flames were raging out of control and they could only watch it burn.

There was no immediate estimate of the loss.

* * *

SABINA FIREMEN were also called out Wednesday morning to answer a call from the Hugh Moriarity residence on the Marchant-Luttrell Rd.

Chief Thomas Mercer said the flue in the house had plugged up. There was minor damage to the residence.

Sneak Smoker Gets Blame in Chicago Fire

CHICAGO (AP) — Sneak smoking, delay in sounding an alarm and combustible materials in a stairwell stood out today among findings in the tragic fire at Our Lady of the Angeles School Dec. 1.

Coroner Walter McCarron said the most important finding was a report of sneak smoking in the school just before the fire in which 89 children and 3 nuns perished.

Sgt. Drew Brown of the police arson squad told the coroner's blue ribbon jury Tuesday that:

"We have definitely found there had been smoking in the school" near the stairwell where the fire started.

"We have found definitely that combustible materials were stored in the stairwell."

Brown testified the arson squad found two boys who said they had seen the sneak smokers between 2:20 and 2:30 p.m. The fire alarm was wounded at 2:42.

Brown said the boys could not identify the smokers by name and that pupils and teachers would be questioned again.

McCarron said the smoking incident "promises to open an entirely new line of inquiry and probably is the most important piece of evidence on the origin of the fire which we have received."

Brown testified the fire's origin remained undetermined; that there are strong indications it was accidental rather than arson, and that police had been unable to find evidence that any volatile liquid had been used.

The inquest will be resumed Jan. 13.

U. S. Envoy Leaves Iraq Very Quietly

BAGHDAD (AP) — William M. Rountree, assistant U.S. secretary of state, left Iraq quietly, almost furtively, today. His Iraqi Airways plane took off for Beirut, Lebanon, where he will change planes en route to Athens.

The envoy's departure contrasted with the hostile demonstrations which marked his arrival. There were no crowds on the streets. The exact time of his departure had been kept secret.

The Iraqi government nonetheless took no chances. Soldiers stood every 30 or 50 yards along his route from the U.S. Embassy to the airfield.

The American charge d'affaires, A. David Fritzland, other embassy officials and a representative of the Iraqi protocol official saw him off. Rountree declined to make a statement.

Organized mobs shouted "Go home" and hurled mud, eggs and stones at the flag-flying limousine of the U.S. Embassy when Rountree arrived Monday on a fact-finding tour of the Middle East.

The visitor traveled in an embassy station wagon without a flag Tuesday and was virtually unnoticed as he was driven to a midday conference with Premier Abdul Karim Kassem.

He talked for more than an hour with the Premier. The government and the U.S. Embassy refused to give any information about what was discussed.

Thor Firing By Military Is Success

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Out in the vast Pacific lies a symbol of America's growing space age might—the nose cone of the first ballistic missile launched at this West Coast base.

Neither the Air Force nor the Navy will make any attemot to recover the cone, hurled 1,500 miles across the Pacific missile range Tuesday. Yet it deserves a place in some museum of scientific endeavor.

For the cone of the medium range Thor missile, capable of carrying a nuclear warhead, marks America's first firing of a ballistics missile under combat conditions. It shows the Thor is moving from the development stage to the operational.

Here at Vandenberg, a regular Air Force crew pushed some buttons and the 50-ton weapon soared some 300 miles up to the fringes of space. The blastoff came only 11 minutes after the 11-man crew raised the Thor upright and began filling it with liquid fuel.

Unlike firings at Cape Canaveral, this was no test of an experimental rocket. No civilian experts hovered over their instruments watching for performance flaws that could be corrected in later models.

This was entirely a military operation, demonstrating that the Air Force has now developed combat crews to fire missiles.

Undelivered: A Coat for Ike

Italian Tailor Finds 'Vicuna' Is Taboo

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Italian tailor is in town with expensive gifts for President Eisenhower — a vicuna overcoat and a cashmere golfing jacket.

But, after learning how the word vicuna still causes government officials to wince, he hasn't tried to go near the White House to present them personally to the President.

Instead, Angelo Litrico of Rome said he would turn over his two hand-made creations to the Italian Embassy. Ambassador Manlio Brosio, he said, has assured him they will be delivered to the White House.

When asked, the Italian Embassy said Litrico must be mistaken.

Brosio has offered to send along the cashmere golfing jacket to the White House, the embassy said, but the ambassador said nothing about the vicuna coat.

The White House kept a strict silence about Eisenhower's attitude toward the intended gifts. Associate press secretary Anne Wheaton said Litrico has "no appointment—none whatsoever."

The 30-year-old Litrico, operator of a fashionable shop in Rome, said he knows nothing about the furor created last summer by the disclosure that a vicuna overcoat was given to former presidential aide Sherman Adams by Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine.

"I'm not a politician," he said. "I'm a tailor. It's not my fault that vicuna has suddenly become a bad word. It's a beautiful material — the very best."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and Brazilian President Juscelino Kubitschek have shown no reluctance in accepting his gifts when he visited their countries, Litrico said.

"I would never visit a foreign country without giving a present to the boss. I give it out of my heart," he said.

Lye in Skillet Blamed in Deaths

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)—An elderly mother and her son were found dead early Tuesday night in their homes here. The family dog was dead in the back yard.

Police identified the mother and son as Mrs. Georgia Mack, about 95, and James O. Mack, about 70.

Stark County Coroner E. B. Mozes planned autopsies today to determine the cause of deaths. Contents of the dog's stomach were to be examined.

Police expressed the opinion that lye poisoning caused the deaths. They said their investigation showed that the mother or son had cleaned a skillet with lye and that they apparently had eaten food cooked in utensil before all the lye was removed. Some of the food apparently was given to the dog, they added.

Pleads Innocent

INDUSTRIALIST Bernard Goldfine leaves Boston's Federal building after pleading innocent to contempt charges for failing to hand over business records to the Internal Revenue service.

Goldfine Files Innocent Plea At Hearing

BOSTON, Mass. (AP)—Bernard Goldfine, New England textile tycoon and close friend of former presidential assistant Sherman Adams, has denied one contempt charge but still has two more facing him.

He was in court Tuesday with his assistant, Miss Mildred Paperman, on charges of contempt for failure to produce records for the Internal Revenue Service.

He and Miss Paperman pleaded innocent, and Federal Judge Charles E. Wyzanski ordered an immediate trial. The case was suspended for a day when the court agreed to a defense motion, and ordered the government to search for some old records — and produce some new ones.

One order directed Fred G. Pastore, supervisor of the IRS Intelligence Division, to make a diligent search through some two tons of Goldfine records to see if the lot includes some that the government contends Goldfine has failed to turn over.

The other order directed five IRS agents to produce today any reports they had made to superiors regarding the Goldfine investigation. Judge Wyzanski said he will rule on whether the reports contain secret information.

The case is due to come up again Thursday in federal court.

Money, Battery Taken During Night

Washington C. H. residents Wednesday morning reported two nighttime thefts, police said.

Charles Harris, an employe at the Noon Barber Shop, Fayette and Court Sts., said a burglar broke the window in the door, unlocked the door throught the hole and stole about $5.20 in change.

Romain Croker, manager of Farmers Produce Exchange, 920 N. North St., said thieves stole a battery from the back of a truck parked in the rear of the establishment.

Disorderly Conduct Charge Withdrawn

A Washington C. H. woman withdrew a disorderly conduct charge against her son Tuesday when she said she was too ill to appear in Municipal Court.

Mrs. Margaret Neal, 923 Forest St., asked Judge Max Dice to dismiss the charges against her son, James A., 49, of the same address. Judge Dice said he would drop the charge but stipulated that somebody had to pay the $8.70 court costs.

Stock Mart Prices Edge Still Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged slightly further into record high ground early this afternoon. The going was tough.

Gains of fractions to a point among key stocks were enough to push the averages slightly higher. Numerous losses marred the advance.

Wide moves among a scattering of selected issues highlighted the performance.

Steels, mail order-retails, electronics, utilities, rails and oils were mostly higher. Most motors, airlines and tobaccos were down. The pattern was irregular for nonferrous metals, chemicals, electrical equipment and drugs.

The market was slightly higher at the start. The list retained a slightly higher edge in more moderate dealings.

North American Aviation rose one point after the government picked the firm's Rocketdyne division to develop a giant rocket capable of putting up manned satellites.

Reynolds Metals jumped more than two in response to what brokers said was a favorable price chart pattern and the optimistic outlook for aluminum.

American Telephone continued to forge ahead, adding about two for new 28-year highs.

General Instrument rose about two. Gains of about a point or more were made by Youngstown Sheet, Ford, Goodrich, Woolworth, Eastman Kodak and Pfizer. Reynolds added about three and Lorillard two.

U.S. government bonds were steady.

Man's Efforts To Conquer Space No New Story--Go Back Centuries

This advertisement by John H. Pennington in 1850 depicted his "aerial steamship." It never got off the ground because no one would invest in his hair-brained scheme.

By DEANE AND DAVID HELLER
Central Press Association Correspondents

WASHINGTON — Those moon shots you've been reading about in your daily paper are strictly Johnny-come-latelies in man's efforts to conquer space.

Fascinating examples of man's yearning over the centuries to reach the moon and planets is dramatically shown by an exhibit at the Library of Congress which traces, via rare books, ancient magazines, scientific models, old prints and other items in this basic human instinct.

Part of the exhibit is strictly scientific. Things like cutaway models of the Vanguard and Jupiter C rockets and Explorer satellites—supplied by the National Science foundation. However, the other, strictly unscientific material is not a whit less interesting.

• • •

GREAT WRITERS through history have used the space theme. Take, for instance, the novel written in the Second Century A. D. titled True History by a Greek, Lucian of Samosata. (There's not a word of truth in the whole book, library researchers confide!)

Nevertheless, it had a great impact. Lucian described a sea voyage, violent storm and hurricane which whirled his ship 3,000 furlongs up into space. After seven days and seven nights of travel, Lucian and his shipmates allegedly came upon a great, glittering country—the moon—where they had miraculous adventures.

The credulous believed that Lucian really had reached the moon and his book was a sensation among the limited few who read it. The volume wasn't translated into English until 1634, but when it was, it started authors off on a science-fiction moon binge the end of which is not yet in sight. The illustrated 1634 translation of Lucian's book is in the exhibit.

• • •

OTHER GREAT writers picked up where Lucian left off. Orlando Furioso, the Sixteenth Century Italian tome penned by Ariosto; Don Quixote by Cervantes, and Stories and Empires of the Moon, published in 1676 by Cyrano de Bergerac all use the space theme—and all the original books are in the exhibit.

Cyrano's book is especially interesting because his hero tries several different ways to reach the moon. First, he made a "life belt" out of bottles filled with dew, shrewdly observing that dew rises and that the bottles should support a man's weight. When the "life belt" failed, Cyrano's hero tried wings, looking much like today's glider, and had himself launched from a spring catapult.

• • •

FINALLY, Cyrano's inventive adventurer was successful in being blasted to the moon by a string of giant firecrackers—the first time in history that the rocket theory of space travel by blasting is mentioned.

Not all of the historical material in the exhibit is science fiction. Prints of Prof. A. C. Charles' epochal balloon ascension from Paris in 1783 and scores of other events are included.

An "aerial steamship or composite balloon," described by promoter John Pennington, a Pennsylvanian who, in 1850, tried to organize a company for "steam aerial navigation," is especially interesting.

Pennington's "aerial steamship," which looks like today's dirigible, alas, never got off the ground because he couldn't raise the $10,000 he needed to build it.

Girl 16, Dies Weighing Only 14 Pounds

LOUISVILE, Ky. (AP) — Everybody was the friend of the tiny girl who clung devotedly to life against overwhelming odds.

Wanda Sue Hardy of Vine Grove was 16, but she never weighed more than 20 pounds. She was only 40 inches tall and weighed only 14 pounds when she died.

Wanda Sue was stricken with whooping cough when she was 10 months old. She went blind in one eye, and by the time she was 3 she could scarcely see. She stopped gaining weight.

But she never lost her delight in life—in her family and in the big doll house her father built for her in the back yard.

"It's a rarely seen situation," a physician who attempted to restore her sight through surgery said.

"She could have a congenital defect in the growth process, or a blood vessel may have burst in her brain when she had whooping cough."

Newspapers reported her story in 1953, and toys poured in to the dark-haired child. But the struggle put a severe strain on her parents—emotionally and financially.

Wanda Sue was in hospitals several times. Her mother suffered a nervous breakdown. Her father James Hardy sold the family home to finance care and was ready to sell a second when his coworkers at Ft. Knox made up a fund to provide for expenses.

Mowing the Easy Way

PONCA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Harold Kanady has solved his grass cutting problem. He has rigged up his power mower to a rope that is tied to an upright pipe. The mower cuts in circles and as it revolves around the pipe the rope shortens, leaving him only four small corners to cut in the usual way.

Tribunal Raps Decision by Liquor Board

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's unreasonable to require an applicant for a beer and wine permit to own or operate a restaurant at the time for application, say three appellate court judges.

The three, sitting here on assignment for the 10th District Court of Appeals, upheld Common Pleas Court in striking down the State Liquor Control Board rule.

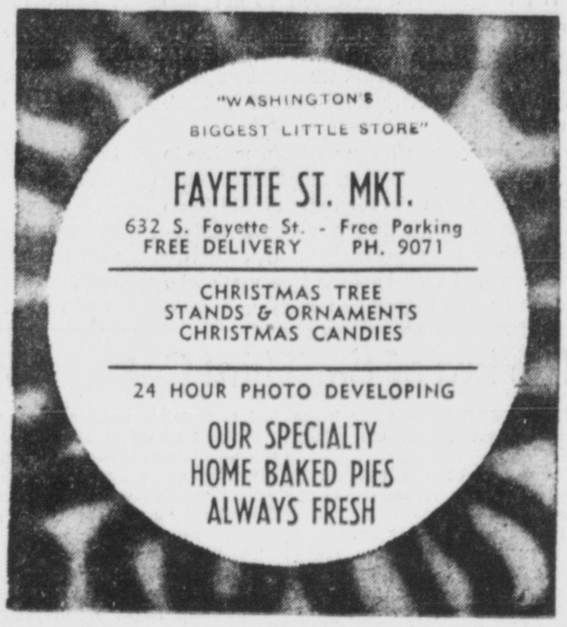

The decision was for Eleanor Schott of Youngstown, doing business as the Duke's Restaurant. She was employed there and working out details to buy the restaurant when she applied for permits to sell 3.2 beer by glass and high-power beer and wine.

Asserting that there is no statutory requirement that the applicant must be the owner and operator of a restaurant at the time of application, the court said it "was not the legislative intent to limit the right to file applications only to the actual owners or operators . . . at the time of filing."

The court noted, however, that a permit must be issued to the owner or operator. Action of the State Liquor Control Board and State Liquor Department in rejecting applications because the applicant is not owner or operator of a restaurant at the time is unreasonable, the court held.

Missile Test Facility Is Women's World too

WHITE SANDS PROVING GROUND, N.M. (AP) — About one-fifth of the 9,000 persons working for the Army Missile Test Center, the Naval Ordnance Missile Test Facility and private industry contractors at this proving ground are women. Members of the fairer sex hold down jobs ranging from technical and engineering positions in the guided missile program to clerical and stenographic work.

Chain Reaction Trouble Upsets Nebraska Family

SIDNEY, Neb. (AP) — The horned toads attracted the badger and the badger woke up the dog and the ruckus which followed brought the family and the family called the cops — and that was the end of the badger.

All this occurred on the Clarence Hansens' front porch after 9-year-old Jerry Joe Hansen had parked a basket full of horn toads there.

The Edison hotel in Sudbury, Pa., was believed to be the first building in the world to be electrically lighted.

WIRED FOR LIFE—Here is Samuel Zivian, 68, being kept alive in San Francisco with his heart wired and plugged into an electric socket. Four years ago he suffered a coronary attack, and recently his heart got too weak to keep beating. So a wire was inserted to his heart through a vein and tiny electric shocks fed through a "pacemaker" (on table) shock his heart into beating 52 times per minute—lower than the normal 70 to 80, but sufficient. The nurse is Sally Nagle.

"It's a rarely seen situation," a physician who attempted to restore her sight through surgery said.

"She could have a congenital defect in the growth process, or a blood vessel may have burst in her brain when she had whooping cough."

Newspapers reported her story in 1953, and toys poured in to the dark-haired child. But the struggle put a severe strain on her parents—emotionally and financially.

Wanda Sue was in hospitals several times. Her mother suffered a nervous breakdown. Her father James Hardy sold the family home to finance care and was ready to sell a second when his coworkers at Ft. Knox made up a fund to provide for expenses.

Mowing the Easy Way

PONCA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Harold Kanady has solved his grass cutting problem. He has rigged up his power mower to a rope that is tied to an upright pipe. The mower cuts in circles and as it revolves around the pipe the rope shortens, leaving him only four small corners to cut in the usual way.

Tribunal Raps Decision by Liquor Board

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's unreasonable to require an applicant for a beer and wine permit to own or operate a restaurant at the time for application, say three appellate court judges.

The three, sitting here on assignment for the 10th District Court of Appeals, upheld Common Pleas Court in striking down the State Liquor Control Board rule.

The decision was for Eleanor Schott of Youngstown, doing business as the Duke's Restaurant She was employed there and working out details to buy the restaurant when she applied for permits to sell 3.2 beer by glass and high-power beer and wine.

Asserting that there is no statutory requirement that the applicant must be the owner and operator of a restaurant at the time of application, the court said it "was not the legislative intent to limit the right to file applications only to the actual owners or operators . . . at the time of filing."

The court noted, however, that a permit must be issued to the owner or operator. Action of the State Liquor Control Board and State Liquor Department in rejecting applications because the applicant is not owner or operator of a restaurant at the time is unreasonable, the court held.

Chain Reaction Trouble Upsets Nebraska Family

SIDNEY, Neb. (AP) — The horned toads attracted the badger and the badger woke up the dog and the ruckus which followed brought the family and the family called the cops — and that was the end of the badger.

All this occurred on the Clarence Hansens' front porch after 9-year-old Jerry Joe Hansen had parked a basket full of horn toads there.

Women's Work in Public Affairs

Frequently some one comes forth with a blast about women in politics, or in other public work, even implying that women have no business taking as active parts as many of them do because they are not attuned to the responsibility of making proper political decisions.

It is hard for the fair - thinking man to listen to such lines of argument, since most people will agree that even outspoken women politicians would have a hard time matching a lot of the male politicians with their silly capriciousness, hysteria and willingness to become victims of, or to engineer propaganda of any kind that fits their particular ideas.

We've heard it said often, to account for the subdued demeanor of many women in politics, that most of them feel out of their element. We cannot see why that should be true when they accept most other lines of responsibility without uestion.

A lot of American women do get into politics and quite often do pretty well by not trying to adopt the aggressiveness of the males who feel that when they speak, it is with authority and should not be questioned.

Many women who have been active in politics have made good records, not only for their charm but for their ability to do the jobs to which they have been assigned with an earnestness and sincerity which would well become any male who thinks he has priority on such responsibilities.

Take for example Mrs. Kate Loucheim (Democrat) and Mrs. Clare B. Williams (Republican) of the Democratic and Republican National Committes. Both have charm but also the brains to properly do their political work. U. S. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith is a match for either of them. The great contribution in sensible activities and feminine grace of the late Mrs. Robert A. Taft and of Mrs. William Knowland to the careers of their respective husbands, is well known.

Then there is Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, with whom many people do not agree, in her long and controversial course in public affairs. Regardless of how much criticism she has received she is to be admired for not allowing this to ruffle her or keep her inactive. Few men would be able to assume the same attitude. We could name many others who have been assets in public life.

In local affairs including many cases here in Fayette County we have noticed many women pursue public duties with a consistent thoroughness, efficiency and high sense of responsibility which sometimes men in similar duties have failed to show.

To those who often comment critically on women in public jobs, we suggest that before we condemn them, let's be sure that they are not doing their work as well, or better, than many of us men would do it.

The Nation Today

James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats are moving in to push the Eisenhower administration toward a broadened and perhaps more generous policy in dealing with Latin America, or to break the whole subject wide open for public discussion.

The shocking treatment given Vice President Richard M. Nixon last spring on his Latin-American good will trip forced this country into painful realization that this country's relations with its southern neighbors are far from happy.

The problem is complex. Mainly, so far, the administration has been talking of studying the problem.

This week Sen. John Kennedy of Massachusetts, one of the leading possibilities for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960, made a speech in Puerto Rico. In it, he offered a 10-point program for strengthening U. S.-Latin-American relations. While not giving Latin America a clean bill of health, he was critical of this country's performance.

That speech cannot help but win him friends in Central and South America. It can't do him any harm either among Latin Americans in this country if he should run for president.

Another Democrat, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, also in the running for his party's presidential nomination, indicated last week he plans a major speech on Latin America.

Sen. George Smathers, a Florida Democrat who is known as a friend of Latin America, has said he expects to introduce in the new Congress a bill to create the post of undersecretary of state for hemisphere affairs.

On top of this, a Senate subcommittee — headed by Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat —was given the task of looking into U. S.-Latin-American relations. It now is making a study and may hold hearings early next year.

The bipartisanship of Democrats and Republicans has been pretty sturdy in areas of the world where communism is a menace, especially where it is or might become a military menace.

There's no present military danger from communism in Latin America. But there is the possibility of future danger, and maybe not too far off, if Communists gain a dominant role in one or more Latin-American countries.

The Democrats may feel less inclined to go along with the Eisenhower administration on problems involving Latin America than on those affecting Europe, Asia or Africa.

When Nixon returned from Latin America last May he made a few public proposals—mostly in generalities—for bettering this country's relations with its southern neighbors. And he conferred privately on the matter with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles But Nixon has never come up with any detailed proposals in public.

After Nixon's return, Eisenhower sent his brother Dr. Milton Eisenhower to Latin America. He, too, made few public proposals when he got back here in August.

Milton Eisenhower said he would make more detailed recommendations later but explained this might take time because of his duties as president of Johns Hopkins University. So far as this writer can learn he has never made those further recommendations.

Recently representatives of this country met with representatives of 20 Latin-American countries to study what neds to be done to provide more U. S. help for Central and South America.

Reportedly armed with a shotgun, Overstreet allegedly forced two Western Union employes into a back room and took approximately $500 from the cash drawer and departed. He also took several traveler's checks which were recovered.

A Federal complaint was filed in Washington, D. C., on June 10, 1957, charging Overstreet with interstate flight to avoid prosecution for armed robbery.

The fugitive, whose formed occupations include cannery worker, farm hand, laborer and plumber, used aliases of Ralph P. Overstreet and "Bunky."

Overstreet has been convicted for breaking and entering and is alleged to have carried a shotgun during the robbery. He reportedly is subject to epilectic fits, may be armed and should be considered dangerous.

The Era of the Third Cat

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) —In our house we have entered the era of the third cat.

When you have a child in a house you often measure time by the pets.

Rather fondly I look back now at the time our daughter Tracy had her very first live pet—a period known as the Era of the First Turtle.

It was a tiny inoffensive grave-eyed turtle with a thoughtful mien, and its watery reign in our kitchen was of a remarkably brief duration.

It was a nice turtle. But, as turtles go, it went.

"I want a kitty or a dog," said Tracy.

"Or," she added, "a birdie."

Frankly, I wanted to get her a dog, but man's best friend is verboten in the apartment development in which we live.

So we entered the Era of the First Cat. I forget her name but she was a Siamese, and Tracy was very young and tried to hug her to death. To save the cat we had to find her another home.

After a time we got another cat, another Siamese. It—and I speak advisedly—was a magnificent animal named Ralph Beauty Marble Candy, and roughly the size of a Shetland pony.

The Era of the Second Cat was pretty short. We have no mice in our house, and I got a little tired of watching Ralph Beauty stalk Tracy instead, pounce on her and carry her to the top of the bookcase. If there is anything I can't stand, it's clawmarks on a freshly painted bookcase.

Ralph Beauty, with the help of a retired lion tamer, was coaxed into a cage and granted to an adventurous family in the hinterland. Actually he didn't fit into New York City. He was too big.

Well, months and months had passed, and again Tracy set up the cry, "I want a cat." A friend went to a humane shelter and found an orphan kitty, and now we are in the Era of the Third Cat.

She is black with white paws and white throat and looks like Adolf Hitler, if you can imagine Hitler wearing his moustache under his mouth instead of under his nose. She has a tiny black dot on the very tip of her nose, and therefore is known as Lady Dotty.

She is batty and independent, fights her image in the hall mirror. Reaches up to try to turn the knob on the television set if she doesn't like the program.

She has eyes like light shining through the slits in yellow buttons, she has clawed up about $1,500 worth of furniture and two neighbor children. My shower is her chosen powder room.

But for some wild incomprehensible reason everybody in the family knows the Era of the Third Cat is going to go on for a long while.

I have always held that anybody who really likes a cat lacks one brand of common sense. I still feel that way. But Lady Dotty is here to stay. Who needs common sense?

Will Butler Be a Wrecker?

By George Sokolsky

Historically, the Democratic party consisted of three general elements:

1. The solid South;

2. The newer immigrants (at different times, Irish, German, Italian, Jewish);

3. The poorer farmers, particularly those who favored populism in its demand for cheap money.

Franklin D. Roosevelt brought into the Democratic party the most radical elements in the country, including labor union leaders and the socialistic intellectuals.

The Democratic victory of 1958 cannot be defined as a product of any one of these elements but that it occurred is sufficient for politicians, and Democratic National Committee Chairman Paul Butler, is taking advantage of the situation to attempt to assert a leadership of his party which has not heretofore been the role of a national committee chairman.

The test of strength among Paul Butler, Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson will come when Congress opens. Butler's effectivness can only be proved in Congress and if the chairman of the Democratic National Committee has to attack the Democratic leadership in Congress, it is not altogether impossible that a third party may result.

The Northern Democrats have, of course, seized upon the name of Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, as the devil whom they must fight, just as in an earlier period the modern Republicans used the name of Sen. Joe McCarthy as a rallying cry for the reorganization of the Republican party. The mistake made by the modern Republicans was that not only did they eliminate McCarthy but they split the Republican party so that it cannot easily be put together again.

As any observer knows, Faubus does not lead the white population of the South. Such Democratic leaders as Sam Rayburn, Lyndon Johnson, Harry Byrd, Richard Russell and other committee chairmen in both the Senate and House are not dominated by Faubus.

On the other hand, the assumption of the radical Northern Democrats that they can afford to read the South out of the Democratic party is without statistical foundation.

When 1960 comes along, the question will be whether the Democratic party can produce a candidate for President who will defeat the Republican candidate. Personalities will play a great role in the picture.

For instance, if the radical Democrats were to nominate Adlai Stevenson, let us say, against Nixon or Rockefeller, the likelihood is that Stevenson, the cynical world - traveler would be defeated by the dynamism of such men.

On the other hand, suppose the inflation has become so wickedly spiral as to drive the economy into the madness which inflations produce, what effect will that have upon the election? The country will seek a sober, studious man to rescue it from its own greed and stupidity.

What gives Butler such blatant courage is the fact that the Republican party seems to be dead. It has had a hard time since 1932, largely because the businessmen imposed their candidates upon the party.

Such candidates as Landon and Willkie could never have been elected. Tom Dewey might have been. Robert A. Taft might have been.

At any rate, when Eisenhower became President, he turned to political mavericks with the result that in his first term, he weakened his party; in his second term, he had not the time to correct his error.

However, even if the Republican party were to disappear, the millions of men and women who do not hold moderate socialistic views are bound sooner or later to coalesce into a political force. If there were only 100 such persons in this country an organization would appear.

Actually all over the country committees and organizations are coming into existence to revitalize the Republican party. Thus far, not one has been sufficiently effective to capture the imagination of the older Republicans, many of whom even stay away from the polls, abstaining from exercising their constitutional rights.

Butler's error in ignoring the southern bulwark of his party is that he bases too much on the 1958 election which was for senators, representatives and governors but not for a President. Local issues prevailed.

For instance, no one can reach any conclusion about the Republican or Democratic party in New York State. The same is true of the defeat of William Knowland in California.

Butler seems to be in a hurry to jump to conclusions. Meanwhile he may be smashing his own party.

In recent years more than 70 per cent of all the expenditures for private productive facilities in the U.S. have gone for equipment.

Do-It-Yourself Shelter Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A committee came up today with a design for a build-it-yourself shelter costing $106.50. Its designers said it would provide an 80 per cent chance of surviving a missile attack.

The dome-shaped underground hideaway is a key item in a Civil Defense program recommended to the Montgomery County, Md., council by its advisory board.

Basement shelters were ruled out because a blast could collapse the building above. So the committee recommended a shelter nearby with a tube entrance from the basement and a tube exit into the open.

Diet and Health — Some Sane Dont's For Common Cold

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

SNEEZE just once or twice and your friends and relatives will probably be telling you what to do for a cold. Just about everyone, it seems, has some pet remedy. And, in a kindly spirit, they always are ready and willing to tell you about it at the slightest provocation.

Well, I'm not going to tell you what to do. Instead, I want to tell you what not to do when you catch a cold.

Friends' Advice

The first "don't" is don't follow the advice of well-meaning but ill-informed friends.

From time immemorial many people have tried one cold remedy after another. They have starved a cold, they have fed a cold, they have tried fruit juice diets and they have downed every type of drug that was ever advertised or advised.

Some Value

Some of these cold drugs can alleviate symptoms and there is no doubt they have some value in treating cold symptoms.

But, after all these years, with all these various methods, we still have not found a cure for the common cold.

Another important "don't" is don't experiment with nose drops, inhalants, pills or medicine left over from a previous cold. And don't try drugs recommended by well-meaning friends.

Not Alike

All colds, you must remember, are not alike. The medicine you or your next door neighbor took the last time a cold attacked might not be any good at all for the next one.

Moreover, it might be downright harmful unless it is properly used under the right conditions.

Don't put your hopes on drugs or methods that already have been proved valueless. And remember nose drops and gargles won't kill viruses in your nose and throat.

Toughening Yourself

Don't try to "toughen" your resistance to colds by sleeping on unheated porches or with the windows wide open or by taking cold baths. It won't do any good. Such so-called hardening attempts have no bearing at all on the number of colds you might catch, nor upon the severity of them.

Don't expect to avoid colds by moving to a warm climate. Residents of the deep South catch colds, too.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

P. K.: Some people say that keeping the windows open at night is unhealthy.

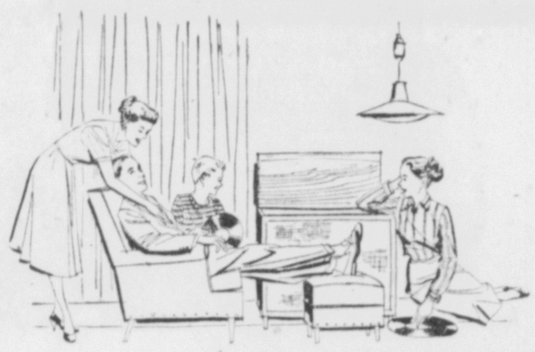

What is your opinion?

Answer: A sleeping room should be well ventilated but free from drafts. An open window not permitting a direct draft on the sleeper is usually advisable.

A few older people and individuals highly susceptible to colds seem to do better when they sleep without a direct breeze falling on them. But be sure you always have fresh air in your sleeping room.

And he conferred privately on the matter with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles But Nixon has never come up with any detailed proposals in public.

After Nixon's return, Eisenhower sent his brother Dr. Milton Eisenhower to Latin America. He, too, made few public proposals when he got back here in August.

Milton Eisenhower said he would make more detailed recommendations later but explained this might take time because of his duties as president of Johns Hopkins University. So far as this writer can learn he has never made those further recommendations.

Recently representatives of this country met with representatives of 20 Latin-American countries to study what neds to be done to provide more U. S. help for Central and South America.

The Era of the Third Cat

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) —In our house we have entered the era of the third cat.

When you have a child in a house you often measure time by the pets.

Rather fondly I look back now at the time our daughter Tracy had her very first live pet—a period known as the Era of the First Turtle.

It was a tiny inoffensive grave-eyed turtle with a thoughtful mien, and its watery reign in our kitchen was of a remarkably brief duration.

It was a nice turtle. But, as turtles go, it went.

"I want a kitty or a dog," said Tracy.

"Or," she added, "a birdie."

Frankly, I wanted to get her a dog, but man's best friend is verboten in the apartment development in which we live.

So we entered the Era of the First Cat. I forget her name but she was a Siamese, and Tracy was very young and tried to hug her to death. To save the cat we had to find her another home.

After a time we got another cat, another Siamese. It—and I speak advisedly—was a magnificent animal named Ralph Beauty Marble Candy, and roughly the size of a Shetland pony.

The Era of the Second Cat was pretty short. We have no mice in our house, and I got a little tired of watching Ralph Beauty stalk Tracy instead, pounce on her and carry her to the top of the bookcase. If there is anything I can't stand, it's clawmarks on a freshly painted bookcase.

Ralph Beauty, with the help of a retired lion tamer, was coaxed into a cage and granted to an adventurous family in the hinterland. Actually he didn't fit into New York City. He was too big.

Well, months and months had passed, and again Tracy set up the cry, "I want a cat." A friend went to a humane shelter and found an orphan kitty, and now we are in the Era of the Third Cat.

She is black with white paws and white throat and looks like Adolf Hitler, if you can imagine Hitler wearing his moustache under his mouth instead of under his nose. She has a tiny black dot on the very tip of her nose, and therefore is known as Lady Dotty.

She is batty and independent, fights her image in the hall mirror. Reaches up to try to turn the knob on the television set if she doesn't like the program.

She has eyes like light shining through the slits in yellow buttons, she has clawed up about $1,500 worth of furniture and two neighbor children. My shower is her chosen powder room.

But for some wild incomprehensible reason everybody in the family knows the Era of the Third Cat is going to go on for a long while.

I have always held that anybody who really likes a cat lacks one brand of common sense. I still feel that way. But Lady Dotty is here to stay. Who needs common sense?

Do-It-Yourself Shelter Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A committee came up today with a design for a build-it-yourself shelter costing $106.50. Its designers said it would provide an 80 per cent chance of surviving a missile attack.

The dome-shaped underground hideaway is a key item in a Civil Defense program recommended to the Montgomery County, Md., council by its advisory board.

Basement shelters were ruled out because a blast could collapse the building above. So the committee recommended a shelter nearby with a tube entrance from the basement and a tube exit into the open.

Will Butler Be a Wrecker?

By George Sokolsky

Historically, the Democratic party consisted of three general elements:

1. The solid South;

2. The newer immigrants (at different times, Irish, German, Italian, Jewish);

3. The poorer farmers, particularly those who favored populism in its demand for cheap money.

Franklin D. Roosevelt brought into the Democratic party the most radical elements in the country, including labor union leaders and the socialistic intellectuals.

The Democratic victory of 1958 cannot be defined as a product of any one of these elements but that it occurred is sufficient for politicians, and Democratic National Committee Chairman Paul Butler, is taking advantage of the situation to attempt to assert a leadership of his party which has not heretofore been the role of a national committee chairman.

The test of strength among Paul Butler, Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson will come when Congress opens. Butler's effectivness can only be proved in Congress and if the chairman of the Democratic National Committee has to attack the Democratic leadership in Congress, it is not altogether impossible that a third party may result.

The Northern Democrats have, of course, seized upon the name of Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, as the devil whom they must fight, just as in an earlier period the modern Republicans used the name of Sen. Joe McCarthy as a rallying cry for the reorganization of the Republican party. The mistake made by the modern Republicans was that not only did they eliminate McCarthy but they split the Republican party so that it cannot easily be put together again.

As any observer knows, Faubus does not lead the white population of the South. Such Democratic leaders as Sam Rayburn, Lyndon Johnson, Harry Byrd, Richard Russell and other committee chairmen in both the Senate and House are not dominated by Faubus.

On the other hand, the assumption of the radical Northern Democrats that they can afford to read the South out of the Democratic party is without statistical foundation.

When 1960 comes along, the question will be whether the Democratic party can produce a candidate for President who will defeat the Republican candidate. Personalities will play a great role in the picture.

For instance, if the radical Democrats were to nominate Adlai Stevenson, let us say, against Nixon or Rockefeller, the likelihood is that Stevenson, the cynical world - traveler would be defeated by the dynamism of such men.

On the other hand, suppose the inflation has become so wickedly spiral as to drive the economy into the madness which inflations produce, what effect will that have upon the election? The country will seek a sober, studious man to rescue it from its own greed and stupidity.

What gives Butler such blatant courage is the fact that the Republican party seems to be dead. It has had a hard time since 1932, largely because the businessmen improsed their candidates upon the party.

Such candidates as Landon and Willkie could never have been elected. Tom Dewey might have been. Robert A. Taft might have been.

At any rate, when Eisenhower became President, he turned to political mavericks with the result that in his first term, he weakened his party; in his second term, he had not the time to correct his error.

However, even if the Republican party were to disappear, the millions of men and women who do not hold moderate socialistic views are bound sooner or later to coalesce into a political force. If there were only 100 such persons in this country an organization would appear.

Actually all over the country committees and organizations are coming into existence to revitalize the Republican party. Thus far, not one has been sufficiently effective to capture the imagination of the older Republicans, many of whom even stay away from the polls, abstaining from exercising their constitutional rights.

Butler's error in ignoring the southern bulwark of his party is that he bases too much on the 1958 election which was for senators, representatives and governors but not for a President. Local issues prevailed.

For instance, no one can reach any conclusion about the Republican or Democratic party in New York State. The same is true of the defeat of William Knowland in California.

Butler seems to be in a hurry to jump to conclusions. Meanwhile he may be smashing his own party.

In recent years more than 70 per cent of all the expenditures for private productive facilities in the U.S. have gone for equipment.

Some Sane Dont's For Common Cold

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

SNEEZE just once or twice and your friends and relatives will probably be telling you what to do for a cold. Just about everyone, it seems, has some pet remedy. And, in a kindly spirit, they always are ready and willing to tell you about it at the slightest provocation.

Well, I'm not going to tell you what to do. Instead, I want to tell you what not to do when you catch a cold.

Friends' Advice

The first "don't" is don't follow the advice of well-meaning but ill-informed friends.

From time immemorial many people have tried one cold remedy after another. They have starved a cold, they have fed a cold, they have tried fruit juice diets and they have downed every type of drug that was ever advertised or advised.

Some Value

Some of these cold drugs can alleviate symptoms and there is no doubt they have some value in treating cold symptoms.

But, after all these years, with all these various methods, we still have not found a cure for the common cold.

Another important "don't" is don't experiment with nose drops, inhalants, pills or medicine left over from a previous cold. And don't try drugs recommended by well-meaning friends.

Not Alike

All colds, you must remember, are not alike. The medicine you or your next door neighbor took the last time a cold attacked might not be any good at all for the next one.

Moreover, it might be downright harmful unless it is properly used under the right conditions.

Don't put your hopes on drugs or methods that already have been proved valueless. And remember nose drops and gargles won't kill viruses in your nose and throat.

Toughening Yourself

Don't try to "toughen" your resistance to colds by sleeping on unheated porches or with the windows wide open or by taking cold baths. It won't do any good. Such so-called hardening attempts have no bearing at all on the number of colds you might catch, nor upon the severity of them.

Don't expect to avoid colds by moving to a warm climate. Residents of the deep South catch colds, too.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

P. K.: Some people say that keeping the windows open at night is unhealthy.

What is your opinion?

Answer: A sleeping room should be well ventilated but free from drafts. An open window not permitting a direct draft on the sleeper is usually advisable.

A few older people and individuals highly susceptible to colds seem to do better when they sleep without a direct breeze falling on them. But be sure you always have fresh air in your sleeping room.

World's Largest Balloon to Probe Skies in Seeking Out Cosmic Rays

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Association Correspondent

CHICAGO — Rockets may be cruising outer space, but the balloon has not outlived its usefulness in space exploration, it becomes apparent with the building here at the University of Chicago of the world's largest balloon, soon to be used for cosmic ray research.

A rash of flying saucer reports is expected as soon as the mammoth, almost-transparent helium gas bag is sen 130,000 feet high to collect tracks of the mysterious rays as they bombarded 600 photographic plates packed into a sealed aluminum gondola weighing half a ton.

The huge, 250-foot plastic sack will have a skin only a thousandth of an inch thick. It is expected to stay aloft for 24 to 48 hours at exactly the point in the stratosphere over the magnetic equator where the best hunting conditions prevail for trapping the rays.

A crew prepares to inflate the huge, 250-foot-long plastic sack, which is thinner than the paper this is printed on.

* * *

COSMIC RAYS for the bulk of the "natural background radiation" that is always with us, and most theories are that they are atomic nuclei shot from the sun, nearby stars and galaxies.

Prof. Robert A. Milliken won the Nobel prize in 1925 for work done in 1923 at the University of Chicago in confirming their cosmic origin, which first had been hinted at in 1902 when they were observed initially in Germany. The laboratories here have been a center for world-wide cosmic ray exploration ever since.

Project Skyhook of the U. S. Navy is participating, and the National Science foundation is providing most of the $450,000 needed for the venture involving the largest balloon, but scientists in many foreign countries will share in the microscopic study of the photographic plates after they are returned to earth.

Prof. Marcel Schein of the Enrico Fermi Atomic institute expects months to be required in the examination of the plates, and hopes to find out from them where cosmic rays come from, how much energy they have and most important of all, the possible existence of "anti-matter," the opposite of material substance as we now know it.

Schein and his group of scientists also will be looking for heavy nuclei, such as oxygen, lithium, magnesium, silicon and iron, whose proportions in many stars and galaxies are well known.

* * *

THE RAYS which will bombard the gondola are more than a thousand times more powerful than man has been able to achieve in high energy cyclotrons.

Experiments in the laboratories have convinced some scientists, however, that when matter and "anti-matter" meet, the result is their complete conversion to energy, and that this could lead to discoveries making the A-bombs and H-bombs seem puny by comparison.

The exact site of the launching has not yet been selected, but last July 19, Professor Schein made some pilot balloon releases at Camp Ripley, north of Little Falls, Minn.

The new balloon will be a far cry from the first one invented by Joseph Michel Montgolfier and Jacques Etienne Montgolfier at Lyons, France, in 1782. It was a linen globe 105 feet high and was filled with smoke and hot gasses from a fire.

The largest early balloon on record was 100 feet in diameter, about 130 feet high, and with a capacity of 500,000 cubic feet, built at Lyons a few years later, and balloonistry has been a science for longer than many people realize.

The new balloon being built by Professor Schein has twice the capacity of helium ever used before, containing more than two million cubic feet. There are no plans for sending anybody aloft, because it is expected that robot scientific gadgets can do all that is required, and the balloon probably will be expendable after its single mission.

A special photographic plant is being constructed just to develop the delicate photographic plates.

Santa and the ELF BOY

by LUCRECE HUDGINS BEALE

SYNOPSIS: Esteban is trying to reach Santa Land to get help in stopping the professor from releasing gas which will kill all the fairies. The mole and his workers dig an underground road to the edge of an ocean where Esteban hopes to find a cousin of the mole who digs through ice. As they pop out of the hole, Esteban sees the strangest creature he has ever seen—the Snuke.

Chapter Twelve

A QUEER RIDE

The Snuke is the queerest fish in the sea. He has a small round body. At one end is a fanlike tail. At the other end is an enormous mouth three feet long. The top of its snout has notches sharp as the teeth of a saw.

It was this creature that Esteban and the mole found snoozing on the beach.

"Wake up, old fish," cried the mole.

"Wh-wh-what?" stammered the Snuke, blinking his eyes sleepily.

"What a lazy life you Snukes lead," jeered the mole. "While we moles work day and night you do nothing but lie on the beach and sleep."

"What else is there to do?" yawned the Snuke.

"We have something you can do!" said the mole. "Tell him, boy."

So Esteban told the story again of how all Fairyland was in peril and he must get to Santa Land to warn Santa.

The Snuke listened to the story with growing horror. "Oh, my!" he exclaimed. "Some of my very best friends are sea fairies. Oh, my! What shall we do?"

"Do?" snapped the mole. "Take the boy to Santa Land. That's what the saw on your snout is for, isn't it—to cut through ice?"

"Thank you!" cried Esteban, and ran for Santa's house.

"O-of course! But how could I carry the boy?"

"In your mouth, silly!" retorted the mole.

The Snuke's great mouth dropped open with surprise. Before he could close it again the mole pushed Esteban in and snapped the jaws shut.

It was cold and dark and wet inside the Snuke's mouth. Esteban crouched there and shivered. He had never been so uncomfortable.

But the worse was yet to come for suddenly the Snuke rocked back and forth, took several somersaults, and finally began to roll up and down.

"We are at sea!" thought Esteban. He held tight to the Snuke's teeth and tried to rock and roll with the fish like a man on a ship.

When he became used to the rolling it was quite pleasant and he was just beginning to enjoy the trip when a most awful noise deafened him. It was the sound of a screaming saw.

They had reached the polar ice and the Snuke was cutting through it with the saw on top of his snout. Esteban put both hands over his ears, but he could not shut out the sound.

Just when he thought he could stand it no longer the sawing and rocking stopped and the Snuke's mouth opened. Peering out, Esteban saw a great snowy land and tucked between two white hills was a little red house with smoke curling from its chimney.

"It's Santa Land!" cried Esteban joyfully.

He leaped out of the Snuke's mouth and raced away. But when he had gone only a little way he remembered the Snuke. He ran back.

"Thank you for the ride!" he exclaimed to the fish whose big mouth was sticking out of a hole in the ice.

"Thank you!" replied the Snuke. "Remember it's my friends you're trying to save!"

Esteban turned and dashed away. He ran as fast as he could towards the little red house shouting "Santa! Santa!" at the top of his lungs.

Girl Tries To Stop Auto, Is Crushed

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—"I tried to stop the car, Daddy, but I couldn't," 9-year-old Pamela Sue Fronkier told her father.

She died in a hospital half an hour later. The family car had crushed her against a tree as it rolled down a driveway.

Elton E. Fronkier had parked the car in the driveway, leaving Pamela Sue and two other children in the vehicle while he made a magazine subscription collection call.

He said his youngest child, Robert, 22 months, apparently released the parking brake and the car started rolling down a slight incline. Pamela jumped out, ran in front and tried to hold the car.

World's Largest Balloon to Probe Skies in Seeking Out Cosmic Rays

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Association Correspondent

CHICAGO — Rockets may be cruising outer space, but the balloon has not outlived its usefulness in space exploration, it becomes apparent with the building here at the University of Chicago of the world's largest balloon, soon to be used for cosmic ray research.

A rash of fiying saucer reports is expected as soon as the mammoth, almost-transparent helium gas bag is sen 130,000 feet high to collect tracks of the mysterious rays as they bombarded 600 photographic plates packed into a sealed aluminum gondola weighing half a ton.

The huge, 250-foot plastic sack will have a skin only a thousandth of an inch thick. It is expected to stay aloft for 24 to 48 hours at exactly the point in the stratosphere over the magnetic equator where the best hunting conditions prevail for trapping the rays.

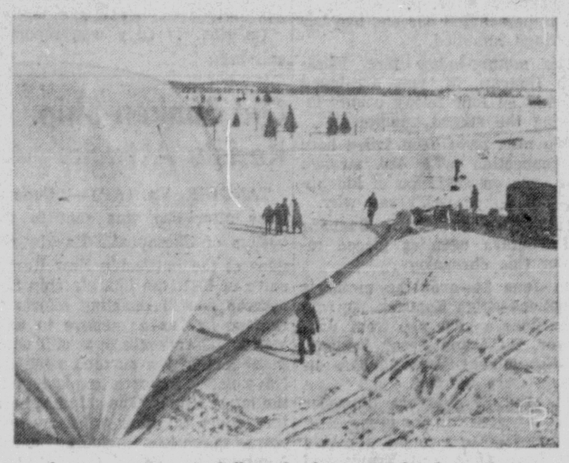

* * *

COSMIC RAYS for the bulk of the "natural background radiation" that is always with us, and most theories are that they are atomic nuclei shot from the sun, nearby stars and galaxies.

Prof. Robert A. Milliken won the Nobel prize in 1925 for work done in 1923 at the University of Chicago in confirming their cosmic origin, which first had been hinted at in 1902 when they were observed initially in Germany. The laboratories here have been a center for world-wide cosmic ray exploration ever since.

Project Skyhook of the U. S. Navy is participating, and the National Science foundation is providing most of the $450,000 needed for the venture involving the largest balloon, but scientists in many foreign countries will share in the microscopic study of the photographic plates after they are returned to earth.

Prof. Marcel Schein of the Enrico Fermi Atomic institute expects months to be required in the examination of the plates, and hopes to find out from them where cosmic rays come from, how much energy they have and most important of all, the possible existence of "anti-matter," the opposite of material substance as we now know it.

A crew prepares to inflate the huge, 250-foot-long plastic sack, which is thinner than the paper this is printed on.

Schein and his group of scientists also will be looking for heavy nuclei, such as oxygen, lithium, magnesium, silicon and iron, whose proportions in many stars and galaxies are well known.

* * *

THE RAYS which will bombard the gondola are more than a thousand times more powerful than man has been able to achieve in high energy cyclotrons.

Experiments in the laboratories have convinced some scientists, however, that when matter and "anti-matter" meet, the result is their complete conversion to energy, and that this could lead to discoveries making the A-bombs and H-bombs seem puny by comparison.

The exact site of the launching has not yet been selected, but last July 19, Professor Schein made some pilot balloon releases at Camp Ripley, north of Little Falls, Minn.

The new balloon will be a far cry from the first one invented by Joseph Michel Montgolfier and Jacques Etienne Montgolfier at Lyons, France, in 1782. It was a linen globe 105 feet high and was filled with smoke and hot gasses from a fire.

The largest early balloon on record was 100 feet in diameter, about 130 feet high, and with a capacity of 500,000 cubic feet, built at Lyons a few years later, and balloonistry has been a science for longer than many people realize.

The new balloon being built by Professor Schein has twice the capacity of helium ever used before, containing more than two million cubic feet. There are no plans for sending anybody aloft, because it is expected that robot scientific gadgets can do all that is required, and the balloon probably will be expendable after its single mission.

A special photographic plant is being constructed just to develop the delicate photographic plates.

Santa and the ELF BOY

by LUCRECE HUDGINS BEALE

SYNOPSIS: Esteban is trying to reach Santa Land to get help in stopping the professor from releasing gas which will kill all the fairies. The mole and his workers dig an underground road to the edge of an ocean where Esteban hopes to find a cousin of the mole who digs through ice. As they pop out of the hole, Esteban sees the strangest creature he has ever seen—the Snuke.

Chapter Twelve

A QUEER RIDE

The Snuke is the queerest fish in the sea. He has a small round body. At one end is a fanlike tail. At the other end is an enormous mouth three feet long. The top of its snout has notches sharp as the teeth of a saw.

It was this creature that Esteban and the mole found snoozing on the beach.

"Wake up, old fish," cried the mole.

"Wh-wh-what?" stammered the Snuke, blinking his eyes sleepily.

"What a lazy life you Snukes lead," jeered the mole. "While we moles work day and night you do nothing but lie on the beach and sleep."

"What else is there to do?" yawned the Snuke.

"We have something you can do!" said the mole. "Tell him, boy."

Of Michele...and Men

By JOSEPH WHITT
Central Press Association Correspondent

Michele Morgan

LONDON—"So you want me to talk about men," said French motion picture star Michele Morgan. "What's nicer?"

At a London reception to launch her latest film, Maxim's, Michele surprised her English hosts by not wearing the revealing neckline usually worn by cinema celebrities on such occasions. Instead, she wore a simple black velvet dress.

"What's she got that we haven't got?" said a tweed-clad lady to a tweed-clad gentleman. "Her eyes," said the gentleman. "They're the bluest of blue, fascinating and hypnotic."

Michele gazed around and said, "In Paris we talk and write and sing about love. It's a very popular subject. I'm not being impertinent, but Americans — at least those I've met—aren't interested in talking about love. Only in making love.

"To Americans love is just another household gadget. We're more romantic in France. No, it isn't true that we're cynical about love. We're cynical about unimportant things, like politics. Not about love, however. It's too important.

* * *

"YOU ASK who're the greatest lovers. That's a difficult question to answer. I don't know. I haven't taken a poll. I'm happily married for eight years. My husband, film director Henri Vidal, is wonderful. I can only speak from hearsay. I have only theories, no experience," she smiled.

"She's a natural diplomat," said the tweed-clad gentleman. "Hmmm," said the tweed-clad lady.

"The American," Michele said, "doesn't know how to look at a woman. He looks through her. He's only interested in how interesting he is to her. He's not interested in her.

"The Frenchman? He knows how to look at a woman to make her feel interesting. The Italian exaggerates. When he looks at a woman he not only makes her feel interesting; he stares so hard he makes her feel conspicuous.

"And the Englishman?" Michele smiled at the men listening to her. "In the past all sorts of stories were told about him. Mostly sad ones. However, he's improving. He needn't despair. There is still hope for him."

"I hear you're superstitious, Miss Morgan," said the tweed-clad lady. "Is it true?"

"Yes. I read the horoscope every day and always act on what it says, even if it means losing parts in a film. However, I don't need it to judge men."

U.S. To Sell City of 25,000; That's 'Atom Town' of Richland

By R. F. NOWAKOWSKI
Central Press Association Correspondent

An airview of a Richland residential section.

RICHLAND, Wash. — This is America's "Atomic City." Here plutonium, the explosive ingredient of nuclear weapons, is produced. Here thousands of scientists and technicians and workers operate the world's largest atomic furnaces.

The once-somnolent town in the midst of the desert wastelands of southeastern Washington was seized by the federal government in 1943. The town of 300 population was hurriedly built into one of the largest cities in the state, with a population of more than 25,000.

It was a totalitarian municipality. The federal government owned everything; the Atomic Energy commission managed and operated every phase of life. A fence was erected all around the city and rigid regulations covering every phase of the life of the people were put into effect. For instance, if you needed seed for your front lawn, you applied to the AEC and received it from that agency.

For the last three years the AEC has been exerting every effort to sell all holdings and to allow Richland to become a normal American city. More than half the homes have been sold. This December the first municipal elections will be held.

* * *

RICHLAND was a "crash" development. And, Richland responded by producing the plutonium that packed the incredible explosive force in the A-bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki to quickly end the war with Japan.

There has never been an American city like Richland under the AEC; and probably there will never be another U. S. community like it again.

There was not a single garage, carport, fireplace, family room or swimming pool in the city under the AEC. Since the sale of homes, with a high percentage being purchased by occupants, a multi-million-dollar remodeling boom has been triggered off. As owners of their own homes the residents of Richland are investing their money in countless improvements.

* * *

NOW RESIDENTS change their own fuses, instead of phoning the AEC and waiting for two men to come out with new fuses and make the change. No more free coal for furnaces, with shovels also furnished, for residents. No more hoses for watering the front lawn from the AEC. Now they can have phones as and where they want them, instead of the free standard wall phone decreed by the AEC.

Even the Richland newspaper was owned and published by the AEC.

Life in Richland was fantastic; unbelievable to all Americans, except those who lived there.

Richland represented a government investment of $105 million. The entire city is being sold at a depreciation loss of $71 million. It must be said for Richland that the city produced that which was expected of it.

The atomic development plant is still the backbone and sinew of the suddenly ballooned city. However, Richland is becoming a normal American community, in a process that has been under way for the last three years.

Access to the atomic plant area is still tightly restricted; but the totalitarian hand of government authority has been lifted from the city.

The mighty atomic plant, manned by skilled and seasoned employes, is expected to continue Richland's expansion — and in coming years the atomic baby of American municipalities may become a leading metropolis of the Pacific Northwest.

However, it is doubtful that grandchildren of Richland residents will believe many of the factual accounts of life in the AEC-owned and operated city.

Mother-in-Law Accused in 'Annulment'

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) Authorities in two counties are hunting a pretty nurse they say disappeared after her mother-in law impersonated her and had her marriage annulled.

The mother-in-law Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, 54, was arraigned Monday on four felony counts involving the staged annulment.

Two men have been jailed here in connection with the strange case—one on suspicion of kidnaping—but police won't say why.

Authorities in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties pieced together this chronology:

On June 24—over the mother's objections—Olga Kupczyk, 30, who came here a year ago from Vancouver, B.C., and Frank Duncan, 29, a prominent Santa Barbara attorney, were married.

On Aug. 7 Ventura Superior Court granted an annulment of the marriage to a couple who said they were Olga and Frank and testified that the marriage had never been consummated. Police say the couple, in reality, were Elizabeth Duncan and an unidentified man.

On Nov. 17 Olga was reported missing.

She had separated from Duncan and was living in an apartment. Neighbors found the apartment door wide open, all lights on and all her clothing and luggage still there.

Saturday authorities arrested Mrs. Duncan.

Old Sunken Ship Resists Attacks

TANGIER, Va. (AP) — Generations after she was sent to the bottom of Chesapeaka Bay by the guns of the battleship New Hampshire in 1911, the historic ship San Marcos is still resisting efforts to remove her as a menace to navigation. The wreckage is still within 20 feet of the surface after the Navy used 11 tons of explosives in the latest efforts. The ship has been the object of other military firepower operations including aerial bombing by Brig. Gen. Billy Mitchell.

Beware of Cancer Quacks, C. of C. Manager's Warning

Reliance in cancer quacks caused the death of 75,000 Americans in 1957, William Stoughton, manager of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce, said.

Working with the American Cancer Society and the National Better Business Bureau to educate the public on cancer quackery, Stoughton said this type of trickster relies on the fears of the public to extract millions of dollars each year from gullible citizens.

"Far worse from the dollars they drain from their victims is the fact that they divert the people from getting the proper treatment which could save their lives or alleviate their pain," Stoughton said.

The quack scale varies widely, the Chamber manager said, starting with the misguided or uninformed physician to the ghouls who operate assembly line clinics.

* * *

STOUGHTON SAID the cancer charlatan can be recognized by these characteristics:

"His treatment is secret and given only by him; he often used advertising and testimonials; he uses high-sounding research names, he refuses consultation with reputable physicians, he claims persecution by the 'medical trust'; he keeps few if any records; he is quick to sue those who impugn his methods, he seldom delivers on promises to the press of evidence of his claimed cures; his chief supporters however well-intentioned are not trained or experienced in the care of cancer patients.

"According to medical authorities," Stougton said," cancer rarely indicates its appearance by the familiar warnings of disease-pain, fever, general run-down feeling or prostration."

BUT THE Medical Society says that 50 per cent of all cancers can be cured if detected early in their development and treated properly and promptly, Stoughton pointed out.

An adequate checkup by a reputable physician can usually detect cancer when it is present. A yearly medical examination for all adults would result in a great dwindling of the number of deaths caused by cancer, as well as many other chronic illnesses," he said.

Santa Claus' Matrimonial Aid Revived

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Santa Claus' matrimonial bureau is back in business and the woman who started it all has been invited to place her order again.

Identifying herself only as "the lonely widow," she dropped a letter into the big red mailbox designed for youngsters' letters to Santa last year. In her letter, she asked for a husband for Christmas.

When her plea received wide publicity, about 200 other men and women put in similar requests. The city recreation director, Nick J. Barack, mimeographed a list of their names and addresses and sent a copy to each.

Two marriages resulted, but no further word was received from the original lonely widow. Barack —now jokingly called "St. Nick" —put up a special mailbox Monday, promised to compile another lonely hearts list this year, and urged the lonely widow to give it another try.

Of Michele...and Men

By JOSEPH WHITT
Central Press Association Correspondent

Michele Morgan

LONDON—"So you want me to talk about men," said French motion picture star Michele Morgan. "What's nicer?"

At a London reception to launch her latest film, Marim's, Michele surprised her English hosts by not wearing the revealing neckline usually worn by cinema celebrities on such occasions. Instead, she wore a simple black velvet dress.

"What's she got that we haven't got?" said a tweed-clad lady to a tweed-clad gentleman. "Her eyes," said the gentleman. "They're the bluest of blue, fascinating and hypnotic."

Michele gazed around and said, "In Paris we talk and write and sing about love. It's a very popular subject. I'm not being impertinent, but Americans — at least those I've met—aren't interested in talking about love. Only in making love.

"To Americans love is just another household gadget. We're more romantic in France. No, it isn't true that we're cynical about love. We're cynical about unimportant things, like politics. Not about love, however. It's too important.

* * *

"YOU ASK who're the greatest lovers. That's a difficult question to answer. I don't know. I haven't taken a poll. I'm happily married for eight years. My husband, film director Henri Vidal, is wonderful. I can only speak from hearsay. I have only theories, no experience," she smiled.

"She's a natural diplomat," said the tweed-clad gentleman. "Hmmm," said the tweed-clad lady.

"The American," Michele said, "doesn't know how to look at a woman. He looks through her. He's only interested in how interesting he is to her. He's not interested in her.

"The Frenchman? He knows how to look at a woman to make her feel interesting. The Italian exaggerates. When he looks at a woman he not only makes her feel interesting; he stares so hard he makes her feel conspicuous.

"And the Englishman?" Michele smiled at the men listening to her. "In the past all sorts of stories were told about him. Mostly sad ones. However, he's improving. He needn't despair. There is still hope for him."

"I hear you're superstitious, Miss Morgan," said the tweed-clad lady. "Is it true?"

"Yes. I read the horoscope every day and always act on what it says, even if it means losing parts in a film. However, I don't need it to judge men."

U.S. To Sell City of 25,000; That's 'Atom Town' of Richland

By R. F. NOWAKOWSKI
Central Press Association Correspondent

An airview of a Richland residential section.

RICHLAND, Wash. — This is America's "Atomic City." Here plutonium, the explosive ingredient of nuclear weapons, is produced. Here thousands of scientists and technicians and workers operate the world's largest atomic furnaces.

The once-somnolent town in the midst of the desert wastelands of southeastern Washington was seized by the federal government in 1943. The town of 300 population was hurriedly built into one of the largest cities in the state, with a population of more than 25,000.

It was a totalitarian municipality. The federal government owned everything, the Atomic Energy commission managed and operated every phase of life. A fence was erected all around the city and rigid regulations covering every phase of the life of the people were put into effect. For instance, if you needed seed for your front lawn, you applied to the AEC and received it from that agency.

For the last three years the AEC has been exerting every effort to sell all holdings and to allow Richland to become a normal American city. More than half the homes have been sold. This December the first municipal elections will be held.

* * *

RICHLAND was a "crash" development. And, Richland responded by producing the plutonium that packed the incredible explosive force in the A-bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki to quickly end the war with Japan.

There has never been an American city like Richland under the AEC; and probably there will never be another U. S. community like it again.

There was not a single garage, carport, fireplace, family room or swimming pool in the city under the AEC. Since the sale of homes, with a high percentage being purchased by occupants, a multi-million-dollar remodeling boom has been triggered off. As owners of their own homes the residents of Richland are investing their money in countless improvements.

* * *

NOW RESIDENTS change their own fuses, instead of phoning the AEC and waiting for two men to come out with new fuses and make the change. No more free coal for furnaces, with shovels also furnished, for residents. No more hoses for watering the front lawn from the AEC. Now they can have phones as and where they want them, instead of the free standard wall phone decreed by the AEC.

Even the Richland newspaper was owned and published by the AEC.

Life in Richland was fantastic; unbelievable to all Americans, except those who lived there.

Richland represented a government investment of $105 million. The entire city is being sold at a depreciation loss of $71 million. It must be said for Richland that the city produced that which was expected of it.

The atomic development plant is still the backbone and sinew of the suddenly ballooned city. However, Richland is becoming a normal American community, in a process that has been under way for the last three years.

Access to the atomic plant area is still tightly restricted; but the totalitarian hand of government authority has been lifted from the city.

The mighty atomic plant, manned by skilled and seasoned employes, is expected to continue Richland's expansion — and in coming years the atomic baby of American municipalities may become a leading metropolis of the Pacific Northwest.

However, it is doubtful that grandchildren of Richland residents will believe many of the factual accounts of life in the AEC-owned and operated city.

Mother-in-Law Accused in 'Annulment'

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) Authorities in two counties are hunting a pretty nurse they say disappeared after her mother-in law impersonated her and had her marriage annulled.

The mother-in-law Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, 54, was arraigned Monday on four felony counts involving the staged annulment.

Two men have been jailed here in connection with the strange case—one on suspicion of kidnaping—but police won't say why.

Authorities in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties pieced together this chronology:

On June 24—over the mother's objections—Olga Kupczyk, 30, who came here a year ago from Vancouver, B.C., and Frank Duncan, 29, a prominent Santa Barbara attorney, were married.

On Aug. 7 Ventura Superior Court granted an annulment of the marriage to a couple who said they were Olga and Frank and testified that the marriage had never been consummated. Police say the couple, in reality, were Elizabeth Duncan and an unidentified man.

On Nov. 17 Olga was reported missing.

She had separated from Duncan and was living in an apartment. Neighbors found the apartment door wide open, all lights on and all her clothing and luggage still there.

Saturday authorities arrested Mrs. Duncan.

Old Sunken Ship Resists Attacks

TANGIER, Va. (AP) — Generations after she was sent to the bottom of Chesapeaka Bay by the guns of the battleship New Hampshire in 1911, the historic ship San Marcos is still resisting efforts to remove her as a menace to navigation. The wreckage is still within 20 feet of the surface after the Navy used 11 tons of explosives in the latest efforts. The ship has been the object of other military firepower operations including aerial bombing by Brig. Gen. Billy Mitchell.

Beware of Cancer Quacks, C. of C. Manager's Warning

Reliance in cancer quacks caused the death of 75,000 Americans in 1957, William Stoughton, manager of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce, said.

Working with the American Cancer Society and the National Better Business Bureau to educate the public on cancer quackery, Stoughton said this type of trickster relies on the fears of the public to extract millions of dollars each year from gullible citizens.

"Far worse from the dollars they drain from their victims is the fact that they divert the people from getting the proper treatment which could save their lives or alleviate their pain," Stoughton said.

The quack scale varies widely, the Chamber manager said, starting with the misguided or uninformed physician to the ghouls who operate assembly line clinics.

* * *

STOUGHTON SAID the cancer charlatan can be recognized by these characteristics:

"His treatment is secret and given only by him; he often used advertising and testimonials; he uses high-sounding research names, he refuses consultation with reputable physicians, he claims persecution by the 'medical trust'; he keeps few if any records; he is quick to sue those who impugn his methods, he seldom delivers on promises to the press of evidence of his claimed cures; his chief supporters however well-intentioned are not trained or experienced in the care of cancer patients.

"According to medical authorities," Stougton said," cancer rarely indicates its appearance by the familiar warnings of disease-pain, fever, general run-down feeling or prostration."

BUT THE Medical Society says that 50 per cent of all cancers can be cured if detected early in their development and treated properly and promptly, Stoughton pointed out.

An adequate checkup by a reputable physician can usually detect cancer when it is present. A yearly medical examination for all adults would result in a great dwindling of the number of deaths caused by cancer, as well as many other chronic illnesses," he said.

Santa Claus' Matrimonial Aid Revived

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Santa Claus' matrimonial bureau is back in business and the woman who started it all has been invited to place her order again.

Identifying herself only as "the lonely widow," she dropped a letter into the big red mailbox designed for youngsters' letters to Santa last year. In her letter, she asked for a husband for Christmas.

When her plea received wide publicity, about 200 other men and women put in similar requests. The city recreation director, Nick J. Barack, mimeographed a list of their names and addresses and sent a copy to each.

Two marriages resulted, but no further word was received from the original lonely widow. Barack —now jokingly called "St. Nick" —put up a special mailbox Monday, promised to compile another lonely hearts list this year, and urged the lonely widow to give it another try.

RED CAPS READY—Red caps for the 23 new cardinals named by Pope John XXIII are stitched in a specialized Rome workshop which is devoted to such clerical accoutrements.

Candidates File Expense Accounts

Kruse Campaign Costs Are Reported as $560

A total of $560.87 was spent on the successful campaign to elect Virtus Kruse, a Democrat, as Fayette County's representative to the Ohio General Assembly.

Expense accounts filed with the county Board of Elections before Tuesday's deadline show that Kruse spent $483.76 himself and that Heber Deer spent $77.11 in supporting him. Neither Kruse nor Deer listed any contributions.

Omar Schwart, Kruse's Republican opponent, spent $425.59 on his unsuccessful campaign. He listed contributions totaling $65.

These were the only two candidates for county office with opposition in the Nov. 4 election.

Harry Allen, although unopposed for reelection as county auditor, spent $84.25 on his campaign. A Republican he listed no contributions.

Clifford E. Hughes, also a Republican, who was reelected county commissioner without opposition, listed expenditures of $50, but no contributions.

* * *

THE COUNTY Republican committee spent $1,606.28 in the campaign. Much of the money went to support Gov. C. William O'Neill and candidates for other state offices, including Sen. John W. Bricker. The committee received 10 contributions amounting to $547. The biggest contribution was $200. The others were mostly for $50 and $75.

The Republican committee had a total campaign fund of $2,137.13, which included the $457 in contributions and the balance of $1,590.13 in the treasury. This left a balance of $530.85 after the election in which most of the Republican candidates met defeat.

The county Democratic committee received 22 contributions amounting to $635.50 and spent $545.40. Except for one contribution of $100, most of those received by the Democrats were for $5 and $10. Like the Republican committee, the Democratic committee spent most of its money in support of state candidates.

* * *

THE PARENT-TEACHER ASSN. Council spent $56.65 on the successful campaign for the city school levy. The money came from contributions by the five individual school PTAs. The report was filed by Eloise Ohnstad, Council treasurer.

The Committee for the Advancement of Education in Fayette County spent $121.41 in unsuccessfully opposing the Miami Trace school levy proposal. It listed no contributions. The report was signed by David Carr as secretary.

The Miami Trace Policy Committee spent $152.85 in support of the Miami Trace school levy campaign. The money came from contributions by the teachers and employes of 13 schools in the district. The report was filed by Frank Creamer, treasurer.

With the last election of the year behind it and the year approaching the end, Harold McLean, clerk, said county Board of Elections would turn back to the county the unused $2,185.70 of its $22,300 budget for 1958.

Roy Thompson, who has served 16 years on the board — which is longer than any other member — said the board has been able to conserve part of its budget year after year and turn it back to the county.

Other members of the board are Mrs. Margaret Kruse, chairman, Corwin Carr and Richard R. Willis Jr., Mrs. Louise Whipkey is the deputy clerk.

Could You Kick Higher than Your Head at His Age?

Hale at 90, John Bock Credits Work

By B. E. KELLEY

John August Bock, who will be 90 years old Jan. 9, is a firm believer in the old saying that hard work will kill no one.

In fact Mr. Bock, who lives at 530 Pearl St. but at present is in Florida for the winter, attributes his good health and agility to the fact that he has continued to keep busy.

"For years when I was on the farm I carried a lantern twice a day — in the morning while I was doing the chores, feeding the horses and other stock, and putting the gears on the horses, and again when I came in from the field at night after working from sunup to sundown," Mr. Bock said. "Then I did the evening chores, fed the horses and milked the cows."

* * *

A MAN who is nearly 90 years, can kick higher than a man's head and has demonstrated how he can jump up, crack his heels together three times before reaching the ground, is certainly out of the ordinary.

This year he painted his house, trimmed trees about his home cared for his garden, and did other work which ordinarily would tax the ability of a man 30 years younger.

He wears glasses only when he reads.

Born in Vinton County, Mr. Bock spent much of his life on farms in Fayette and Clinton counties. For 14 years he operated a farm of 695 acres in the Sabina area.

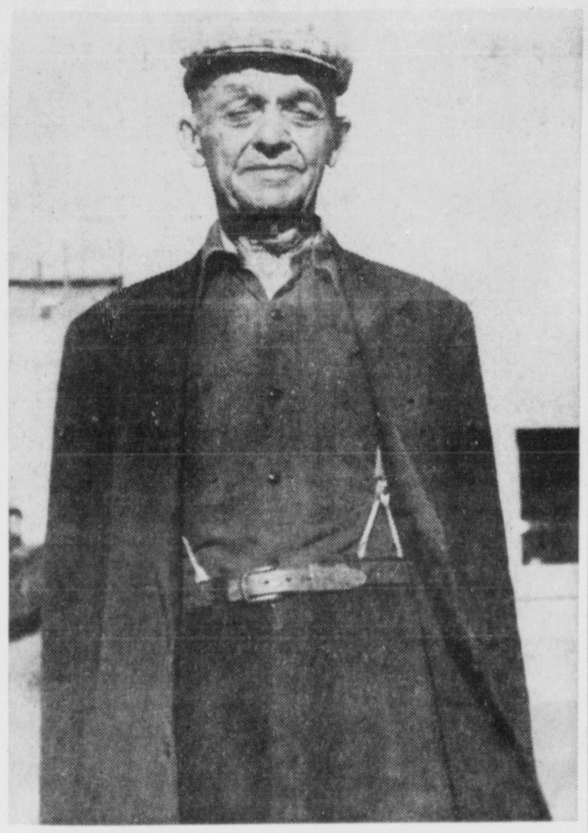

He raised many horses and was known far and wide as a dealer in good horse flesh. Some of the animals he raised were bred for speed and rendered a good account of themselves.

* * *

HE WAS quite a trader as well as seller of horses and knew their good points and weaknesses.

John recalls having sheared sheep by hand for 5 cents a head during the Grover Cleveland administration.

He also "mauled rails" at 50 cents per 100, and sometimes made as much as $2 a day at such work.

HE'S YOUNG AT 90--John August Bock, pressing 90, is as agile and active as a man of 60. He is a firm believer in keeping busy to insure long life.

It was an everyday occurrence while on the farm to arise at 3:50 a. m. to start the day.

When he was married he started with $65.

* * *

JOHN CULTIVATES his own garden and eats much fruit and vegetables, and by keeping active as the years have gone by, he has apparently renewed his youth.

He was formerly noted for his standing high jump, and few if any who ever tried their skill to beat him succeeded in equalling his record.

Mr. Bock has the appearance of a man at least 25 years younger, and his healthy color is due to his love for outdoor life.

He is a member of the Boversville Pilgrim Holiness Church and is deeply religious.

Wilberforce Men's Dorm Hit by Fire

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP) — Christmas vacation will come early for many Wilberforce College students, resident of a men's dormitory which was heavily damaged by fire Tuesday.

One student, Don Maness, 19, of Greensburg, Pa., suffered minor injuries when he jumped from a third floor window to a first floor landing. Maness, captain of the Wilberforce basketball team, suffered a possible chipped bone in his foot but was not hospitalized.

The fire will cause Christmas vacations to start two-days early for most of the burned-out students, said George Valentine, college vice president. Some will be housed temporarily in the school gymnasium and student union building.

The blaze, termed accidental by fire officials, started in a student's room. Its cause was not established.

William Free, district chief for two Xenia Twp. fire departments, estimated damage of $75,000 to $80,000 to the building and $20,000 to the contents.

Dr. Rembert Stokes, college president, said the three - story brick dormitory was insured for $130,000.

Six neighboring fire departments helped extinguish the blaze, which started during a lunch period when few students were in the 45-year-old building. The central portion of the dormitory was destroyed. . .

Nationally Known Engineer Explains Color TV to Club

Explaining how television—especially color television—works is a job for an expert, and Washington C. H. Rotarians got a thorough briefing on the subject at their luncheon meeting Tuesday.

It came from one of the foremost authorities on the subject—Dr. R. J. Rockwell, vice president and director of engineering for Crosley Broadcasting Corp., Cincinnati.

As familiar with the behavior of electrons and the somewhat baffling science of colorimetry as the average man is with his knife and fork, Dr. Rockwell still was able to put his difficult subject into laymen's language.

Voted the outstanding engineer of 1956 by the Technical and Scientific Societies Council of Cincinnati, the speaker has had a long association with the broadcasting division of the Crosley organizations and has directed all Crosley engineering activities from the days of WLW's 500,000-watt operation, through the World War II era of the "Voice of America," and down to the era of compatible color transmission and "hi-fi."

* * *

HE HOLDS many patents, both granted and pending, and is the author of numerous professional articles in the various fields of electrical engineering.

Illustrating his detailed explanation of both conventional and color TV transmission and reception with blackboard diagrams and samples of equipment, Dr. Rockwell concluded his talk with a question-and-answer period in which nearly a score of Rotarians participated.

The nationally known engineer, who was introduced by Dr. A. D. Woodmansee, said that the color television industry is gradually finding answers to its most pressing transmission-reception problems and pointed out that service men throughout the nation are doing an increasingly efficient job for set owners.

A survey is now being made, he said, on the actual number of color sets now in use and the expectability of new purchasers in the months ahead. The outlook appears good.

$5 Million Poor Fund Released

All Counties Share In Advance Payment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—It will be a merry Christmas, after all, for many of Ohio's needy people.

The state Tuesday distributed five million dollars in poor relief payments in advance of the regular February distribution date.

State Auditor James A. Rhodes said:

"It is unthinkable that this money should lie in the state treasury for several weeks when it can bring some measure of Christmas cheer to those in need."

The money went out to the state's counties, which have been hard - pressed for relief funds. More poor relief payments, which come from a 1.65 per cent tax on public utilities, will be distributed late in January or February, Rhodes said.

Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) took in more than one-fifth of the total distribution — or $1,031,953. Other large counties got most of the remaining money.

Amounts sent to other counties, in rounded figures, included:

Allen $54,751; Ashland $21,224; Athens $18,414; Butler $97,882; Clark $59,600; Clermont $23,196; Clinton $14,463; Columbiana $40,437; Fairfield $27,745; Fayette $13,866; Franklin $305,209; Guernsey $13,912; Hamilton $515,460; Hocking $8,095; Hancock $29,486; Jefferson $58,447; Knox $18,011; Lake $63,039; Lawrence $18,827.

Sabina Problems Erupt In Three Resignations

SABINA — The village of Sabina has administrative problems. Two councilmen and the village solicitor have submitted their resignations, and the solons have received a report from State Examiner R. E. Haecker that indicated he took a dim view of the village's bookkeeping system.

Submitting their resignations were Councilmen Cecil Anders and Clarence Elzey and City Solicitor P. Paul Pusateri, who has represented the village in legal affairs for about four months.

Anders, who has been on the Council for seven years and was scheduled to serve another year of his current term, said that his resignation was "due to lack of complete cooperation." He did not elaborate.

Last month three councilmen, Chester Beverley, John Reno and Elva Johnson resigned. They were replaced by Homer Williams, Elmer Johnson and Joseph McNeal. The fourth member of the council is Robert McKenzie.

* * *

IN HIS REPORT covering the Board of Public Affairs, the examiner called attention to $10,000 paid to Peck, Shaffer and Williams, Walter E. Schutt and Kenneth O. Stone, former village solicitor. Involved was $5,000 to Peck, Shaffer and Williams, and $2,500 each to Schutt and Stone in the litigation and sale of the village's electric generating and distributing system and the water works.

Haecker disclosed that these legal services were performed without benefit and execution of contract and thus represented illegal expenditures.

He said that the contract between the village and Stone for ordinary legal services as solicitor provided that extraordinary service shall be "subject to additional contract between the village and the solicitor. . ." Stone was paid $600 a year as solicitor.

* * *

HE ADDED that no additional contract was executed and furthermore, "payments of said amount, ($2,500) could not have been made on the basis of being extraordinary service under his contract as solicitor."

Heacker's audit listed five findings for recovery of funds to the village totalling $1,063.03. Four were overpayments by the village clerk and one was an unauthorized expense.

* * *

THE LARGEST FINDING for onions, eggs, potato chips, sugar, bacon, salad dressing, olives, soft drinks and other similar foodstuffs.

Haecker's finding was against the market for unauthorized payment and recommended return of the money to the general fund.

"There is no authority for expenditure of public funds for a social gathering as it is basic that public funds must be expended for public purpose.

"Note is also made that Councilman Howard Thompson is proprietor of Thompson's Market .... public officers are prohibited (sections 731.12 and 733.78 of the Revised Code of the State of Ohio) from having interest in expenditure of public funds other than their fixed compensation."

* * *

HE WENT further to mention other interest in contracts by public officials. On Apr. 22, 1957 an invoice on the firehouse construction included $29.70 for the labor of Councilman Anders.

He found a March, 1958 payment of $12.50 to Robert W. Case, then a member of the board of public affairs, for moving and cleaning records.

Haecker said that Village Ordinance 33, on Feb. 4, 1957, established a police relief and pension fund and established a board of trustees to administer that fund. His audit disclosed that no such fund had been established nor a tax levy instituted to raise money for that purpose. He recommended that the village clerk take the necessary steps to establish a program and make salary deductions for the fund.

He said the Council failed to pass an annual appropriation ordinance and thus the clerk has issued warrants against unappropriated funds without authority.

The treasurer's ledger was criticized as "improperly and ineffectively maintained during the audit period." Haecker said Council maintained no records of resolutions as required by the revised code. Other criticism on various phases of village records and expenditures were listed.

Candidates File Expense Accounts

Kruse Campaign Costs Are Reported as $560

A total of $560.87 was spent on the successful campaign to elect Virtus Kruse, a Democrat, as Fayette County's representative to the Ohio General Assembly.

Expense accounts filed with the county Board of Elections before Tuesday's deadline show that Kruse spent $483.76 himself and that Heber Deer spent $77.11 in supporting him. Neither Kruse nor Deer listed any contributions.

Omar Schwart, Kruse's Republican opponent, spent $425.59 on his unsuccessful campaign. He listed contributions totaling $65.

These were the only two candidates for county office with opposition in the Nov. 4 election.

Harry Allen, although unopposed for reelection as county auditor, spent $84.25 on his campaign. A Republican he listed no contributions.

Clifford E. Hughes, also a Republican, who was reelected county commissioner without opposition, listed expenditures of $50, but no contributions.

* * *

THE COUNTY Republican committee spent $1,606.28 in the campaign. Much of the money went to support Gov. C. William O'Neill and candidates for other state offices, including Sen. John W. Bricker. The committee received 10 contributions amounting to $547. The biggest contribution was $200. The others were mostly for $50 and $75.

The Republican committee had a total campaign fund of $2,137,.13, which included the $457 in contributions and the balance of $1,590.13 in the treasury. This left a balance of $530.85 after the election in which most of the Republican candidates met defeat.

The county Democratic committee received 22 contributions amounting to $635.50 and spent $545.40. Except for one contribution of $100, most of those received by the Democrats were for $5 and $10. Like the Republican committee, the Democratic committee spent most of its money in support of state candidates.

* * *

THE PARENT-TEACHER ASSN. Council spent $56.65 on the successful campaign for the city school levy. The money came from contributions by the five individual school PTAs. The report was filed by Eloise Ohnstad, Council treasurer.

The Committee for the Advancement of Education in Fayette County spent $121.41 in unsuccessfully opposing the Miami Trace school levy proposal. It listed no contributions. The report was signed by David Carr as secretary.

The Miami Trace Policy Committee spent $152.85 in support of the Miami Trace school levy campaign. The money came from contributions by the teachers and employes of 13 schools in the district. The report was filed by Frank Creamer, treasurer.

With the last election of the year behind it and the year approaching the end, Harold McLean, clerk, said county Board of Elections would turn back to the county the unused $2,185.70 of its $22,300 budget for 1958.

Roy Thompson, who has served 16 years on the board — which is longer than any other member — said the board has been able to conserve part of its budget year after year and turn it back to the county.

Other members of the board are Mrs. Margaret Kruse, chairman, Corwin Carr and Richard R. Willis Jr., Mrs. Louise Whipkey is the deputy clerk.

Could You Kick Higher than Your Head at His Age?

Hale at 90, John Bock Credits Work

By B. E. KELLEY

John August Bock, who will be 90 years old Jan. 9, is a firm believer in the old saying that hard work will kill no one.

In fact Mr. Bock, who lives at 530 Pearl St. but at present is in Florida for the winter, attributes his good health and agility to the fact that he has continued to keep busy.

"For years when I was on the farm I carried a lantern twice a day — in the morning while I was doing the chores, feeding the horses and other stock, and putting the gears on the horses, and again when I came in from the field at night after working from sunup to sundown," Mr. Bock said. "Then I did the evening chores, fed the horses and milked the cows."

* * *

A MAN who is nearly 90 years, can kick higher than a man's head and has demonstrated how he can jump up, crack his heels together three times before reaching the ground, is certainly out of the ordinary.

This year he painted his house, trimmed trees about his home cared for his garden, and did other work which ordinarily would tax the ability of a man 30 years younger.

He wears glasses only when he reads.

Born in Vinton County, Mr. Bock spent much of his life on farms in Fayette and Clinton counties. For 14 years he operated a farm of 695 acres in the Sabina area.

He raised many horses and was known far and wide as a dealer in good horse flesh. Some of the animals he raised were bred for speed and rendered a good account of themselves.

* * *

HE WAS quite a trader as well as seller of horses and knew their good points and weaknesses.

John recalls having sheared sheep by hand for 5 cents a head during the Grover Cleveland administration.

He also "mauled rails" at 50 cents per 100, and sometimes made as much as $2 a day at such work.

It was an everyday occurrence while on the farm to arise at 3:50 a. m. to start the day.

When he was married he started with $65.

* * *

JOHN CULTIVATES his own garden and eats much fruit and vegetables, and by keeping active as the years have gone by, he has apparently renewed his youth.

He was formerly noted for his standing high jump, and few if any who ever tried their skill to beat him succeeded in equalling his record.

Mr. Bock has the appearance of a man at least 25 years younger, and his healthy color is due to his love for outdoor life.

He is a member of the Boversville Pilgrim Holiness Church and is deeply religious.

HE'S YOUNG AT 90--John August Bock, pressing 90, is as agile and active as a man of 60. He is a firm believer in keeping busy to insure long life.

Wilberforce Men's Dorm Hit by Fire

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP) — Christmas vacation will come early for many Wilberforce College students, resident of a men's dormitory which was heavily damaged by fire Tuesday.

One student, Don Maness, 19, of Greensburg, Pa., suffered minor injuries when he jumped from a third floor window to a first floor landing. Maness, captain of the Wilberforce basketball team, suffered a possible chipped bone in his foot but was not hospitalized.

The fire will cause Christmas vacations to start two-days early for most of the burned-out students, said George Valentine, college vice president. Some will be housed temporarily in the school gymnasium and student union building.

The blaze, termed accidental by fire officials, started in a student's room. Its cause was not established.

William Free, district chief for two Xenia Twp. fire departments, estimated damage of $75,000 to $80,000 to the building and $20,000 to the contents.

Dr. Rembert Stokes, college president, said the three - story brick dormitory was insured for $130,000.

Six neighboring fire departments helped extinguish the blaze, which started during a lunch period when few students were in the 45-year-old building. The central portion of the dormitory was destroyed. . .

All Counties Share In Advance Payment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—It will be a merry Christmas, after all, for many of Ohio's needy people.

The state Tuesday distributed five million dollars in poor relief payments in advance of the regular February distribution date.

The money went out to the state's counties, which have been hard - pressed for relief funds. More poor relief payments, which come from a 1.65 per cent tax on public utilities, will be distributed late in January or February, Rhodes said.

Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) took in more than one-fifth of the total distribution — or $1,031,933. Other large counties got most of the remaining money.

Sabina Problems Erupt In Three Resignations

SABINA — The village of Sabina has administrative problems. Two councilmen and the village solicitor have submitted their resignations, and the solons have received a report from State Examiner R. E. Haecker that indicated he took a dim view of the village's bookkeeping system.

Submitting their resignations were Councilmen Cecil Anders and Clarence Elzey and City Solicitor P. Paul Pusateri, who has represented the village in legal affairs for about four months.

Anders, who has been on the Council for seven years and was scheduled to serve another year of his current term, said that his resignation was "due to lack of complete cooperation." He did not elaborate.

Last month three councilmen, Chester Beverley, John Reno and Elva Johnson resigned. They were replaced by Homer Williams, Elmer Johnson and Joseph McNeal. The fourth member of the council is Robert McKenzie.

* * *

IN HIS REPORT covering the Board of Public Affairs, the examiner called attention to $10,000 paid to Peck, Shaffer and Williams, Walter E. Schutt and Kenneth O. Stone, former village solicitor. Involved was $5,000 to Peck, Shaffer and Williams, and $2,500 each to Schutt and Stone in the litigation and sale of the village's electric generating and distributing system and the water works.

Haecker disclosed that these legal services were performed without benefit and execution of contract and thus represented illegal expenditures.

He said that the contract between the village and Stone for ordinary legal services as solicitor provided that extraordinary service shall be "subject to additional contract between the village and the solicitor. . ." Stone was paid $600 a year as solicitor.

* * *

HE ADDED that no additional contract was executed and furthermore, "payments of said amount, ($2,500) could not have been made on the basis of being extraordinary service under his contract as solicitor."

Haecker's audit listed five findings for recovery of funds to the village totalling $1,063.03. Four were overpayments by the village clerk and one was an unauthorized expense.

* * *

THE LARGEST FINDING for recovery was against Alfred LeFeber and Associates, consulting engineers, employed on the proposed sewer construction. The original estimate of construction was $612,.000 and the engineer's fee of 3.9 per cent totaled $23,868, of which $23,000 was paid and $868 was to be invoiced later.

However the construction estimate was reduced to $566,106, of which the 3.9 per cent fee would be $22,078.13, making an overpayment of $921.87 to be recovered from the engineers and credited to the sewer system planning fund.

Dabe and Carter, Sabina, invoiced the village for two labor bills of $34 and $21.25 in 1956. The village paid $89.25, an overpayment of $34 which is to be recovered to the general fund.

Grant Concrete Products billed the village for $48.60 and received $57.70 in payment with $9.10 to be recovered.

Ludlow Battery and Ignition, Dayton, sent an invoice for $41.31. The village paid the bill twice; thus $41.31 is to be recovered from the Dayton firm.

* * *

HAECKER'S REPORT said that $56.75 was spent from the general fund for a fire department social function. The money was for the purchase of groceries at Thompson's Market. Items included such things as 15 dozen buns, five pounds of cheese, 25 pounds of potatoes, onions, eggs, potato chips, sugar, bacon, salad dressing, olives, soft drinks and other similar foodstuffs.

Haecker's finding was against the market for unauthorized payment and recommended return of the money to the general fund.

"There is no authority for expenditure of public funds for a social gathering as it is basic that public funds must be expended for public purpose.

"Note is also made that Councilman Howard Thompson is proprietor of Thompson's Market .... public officers are prohibited (sections 731.12 and 733.-78 of the Revised Code of the State of Ohio) from having interest in expenditure of public funds other than their fixed compensation."

* * *

HE WENT further to mention other interest in contracts by public officials. On Apr. 22, 1957 an invoice on the firehouse construction included $29.70 for the labor of Councilman Anders.

He found a March, 1958 payment of $12.50 to Robert W. Case, then a member of the board of public affairs, for moving and cleaning records.

Haecker said that Village Ordinance 33, on Feb. 4, 1957, established a police relief and pension fund and established a board of trustees to administer that fund. His audit disclosed that no such fund had been established nor a tax levy instituted to raise money for that purpose. He recommended that the village clerk take the necessary steps to establish a program and make salary deductions for the fund.

He said the Council failed to pass an annual appropriation ordinance and thus the clerk has issued warrants against unappropriated funds without authority.

The treasurer's ledger was criticized as "improperly and ineffectively maintained during the audit period." Haecker said Council maintained no records of resolutions as required by the revised code. Other criticism on various phases of village records and expenditures were listed.

Common Market Idea Certain To Affect American Imports

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — American firms who have invested four billion dollars in Europe are weighing the pros and cons of further expansion there.

In three weeks six European nations will take the first step in the long process that someday is to make them in production and trade like the American states. Among the six there will be no barriers to their own trade, just as state borders don't bar trade here.

But gradually a common tariff and import rules against the products of the rest of the world will be adopted by the European Common Market.

The six nations are France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg

Americans operating within the Common Market area hope to share in the benefits that will come from this exclusiveness. Already there are many benefits for them: lower labor costs, increasing productivity, and a fast expanding market in Western Europe for consumer goods.

U.S. exports have been falling this year, although some now see a turn in the tide. In the first nine months this year, for example, our exports to France were 32 per cent lower than in 1957, to West Germany 24 per cent lower.

What this can mean to American manufacturers is pointed out thus by David Rockefeller, vice chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, New York:

'Many products, particularly in machinery lines, that we have ben exporting may well have to be produced abroad in the future if we are to retain our foreign markets."

An analysis of the European Common Market by the management consultant firm of Booe, Allen & Hamilton International, Ltd., of Zurich, Switzerland, and Washington, D.C., shows that most U.S. corporations now operating there favor full ownership of their facilities.

Of the 404 U.S. firms in Western Germany, only 40 are jointly owned by Americans and Europeans. About half the U.S. firms there are manufacturers, a third sales distributors, and the rest such service firms as advertising agencies, public accounting firms and financial concerns.

One of these firms cautions: As the six nations slowly meet their current needs, they may come to limit American investment opportunities in the Common Market.

"Spare the rod and spoil the child" used to be taken literally both in the home and school. In those days when the "rod" was used as deemed necessary by a school teacher, it frequently happened that when the youngster reached home and his parents learned of the "thrashing" given their young hopeful at school, they gave him or her (chiefly him) another trouncing for his misbehavior at school.

Like a lot of other things, times have changed in both the home and school, and if a teacher applied a switch, ruler, paddle, or some other instrument of punishmen ton the back side of a boy's trousers, the teacher probably would be charged with assault and battery or even something more serious.

But in the "good old days", many of the teachers had one or more "rods" (good sized switches or sprouts of trees) to use unstintedly if necessary to compel obedience.

Some of us have seen a half dozen sticks standing in a corner of the school room, ready for use if and when the teacher deemed it necessary.

The sticks or "gads" were usually of various sizes, and were used on youngsters according to size.

Some of these sticks were weilded so vigorously that black and blue welts remained on the youngster's anatomy for days at a time, and usually one of these "floggings" was sufficient to insure proper observance of the rules laid down by teachers on the opening day of school.

Back in those days children were told to mind their teacher, and to expect punishment if they did not behave.

For minor offenses I have seen youngsters stand in a corner of the school room, sometimes an hour or more at a stretch.

Others were kept in at the various recesses and required to study.

Deportment at school was a thing in which the average student took great pride, while others, less studious and sometimes filled with "old nick" aroused the teachers ire, and a "whaling" with a stick or other implement was the result.

These whippings in school always impressed the other students, and threw fear into the hearts of the smaller pupils, but all in all they had a most wholesome effect generally.

GAS FROM RESERVOIRS

For days the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. has been drawing on the tremendous underground storage of natural gas which had been pumped beneath the ground in old gas areas and stored for just such an emergency.

Because of this storage in the exhausted gas fields, the supply has been adequate and should continue so for sometime, even if temperatures continues to hover around zero.

That reminds me that in a number of wells sunk in this area, gas has been encountered, and it is possible that a huge gas reservoir might be under part of the county as well as oil.

Gas has been reported in comparatively shallow wells and must have penetrated upward from some much larger underground supply than has not been tapped to date.

While drilling for oil in this area, a gas supply might just as well be struck as oil for almost invariably the two are closely connected.

30 YEARS AGO

A man walked into the White Tile Meat Market, saying, "I am in urgent need of something to eat", and was given a sizeable package of meat. He left the store, tossed the meat into a car parked at the curb, stepped in the car drove away. It was a brand new type of begging.

Work of erecting 112 stop signs at through streets was completed.

William Reid, formerly of Fayette County, was mayor of Jamestown.

Acting under orders, Company M had recruited to full strength of 66 officers and men.

A power dam on the Hoppes land near the Jeffersonville Rd. bridge over Paint Creek, was blown up on court orders.

Long strands of southern laurel were being used for Christmas decorations here.

Five prisoners attempted to dig out of jail, but the noise attracted Sheriff Richard Ramsay, who locked the five in their cells and had repairs made.

Robert Bryson, of Bryson and Hay, plumbers, died.

A receiver was named for the Burgett Clothing store here.

Two men were arrested for starting a fire which destroyed the Camp Grove Church on the Chillicothe Rd. They started a fire on a piece of tin on the floor of the church to keep warm, and the building was destroyed.

R. C. Peddicord, well known business man, died suddenly at 71.

A great deal of winter plowing was under way due to mild weather.

Nearly 2,000 species of shrimp exist. The young pass through 10 larval stages. Most adults apparently spawn only once and have a life span of one year.

Water Down the Drain After Station Repairs

CALERA, Okla. (AP) — After a breakdown of several days, Calera's water pumping machinery was repaired and Water Superintendent Andrew Hamilton threw the switch.

The flow of new water didn't fill the mains and Hamilton investigated. He discovered many residents had left their faucets open and the water was pouring down the drain.

You Will Be Better Off in '59 than in '58

By L. A. BROPHY
AP General Business Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — You can count on being better off in 1959 than in 1958. Economists are not agreed, however, on how much better off.

The recession is over. Recovery started in the spring of 1958 and continued at a steady pace until fall. Then, the economic indexes began to slow up over the rate that had been predicted.

Reading these figures as a fever chart, it might be concluded the patient had a slight relapse. However, the economists say he is in good shape and that fully recovery will come by the end of the new year.

Your situation in the new year shapes up something like this:

To the nearly four million out of jobs, the immediate prospects for a resumption of paychecks is not bright. There probably will not be a measurable cut in unemployment until the middle of the year.

There are several reasons for this. Automation in industry is going ahead at such a fast clip that fewer workers are able to turn out more and more products all the time.

While the economy is steady and going forward, the kind of production that will enable extensive rehiring of workers, is not expected to come until about mid-year.

If you are selling things, the prospects are brighter. Consumer buying was maintained during the recession and constituted one of the really comforting aspects of the downturn. The indications are that people will be in more of a buying mood in 1959 than in 1958. Personal income is expected to increase and, in point of fact, it rose for seven straight months, beginning in February last year, but declined slightly in October. Labor disputes in some major industries were held responsible for the dip.

The National Assn. of Manufacturers said three out of every four businessmen in a national poll expect their company sales to be higher in 1959.

People fear further inflation, which may have a softening effect on buying. But, government economists are hopeful that the price lines will hold relatively steady for the first half of the year. After that, if the momentum of recovery continues as expected, price increases are expected.

The University of Michigan, which does a good job of anticipating consumer temper, reports its latest poll showed more families now say their financial situation has improved; they have hopes for higher income and a better year in 1959 all around.

The gross national product, the total of all goods and services, is expected to reach 460 to 470 billion dollars in 1959. It was around 450 billions at the end of 1958. That pretty well tells the story of good times but not boom times, what's ahead for the new year —

An estimated two per cent of school children need special training because they are mentally retarded.

Yoicks! Tally Ho! Foxes Running

WASHINGTON—When George Washington, tired of the crushing responsibilities weighing upon him as commander in chief of the American armies, could find time during slack periods of the Revolutionary war, he indulged in his favorite sport, fox hunting.

Our first President was an avid follower of the hounds, and, in peacetime, he spent all of his spare time pursuing the sport. He even commissioned Charles Willson Pearle, the celebrated artist, to do a portrait of Billy Lee, the Negro servant who served as his huntsman.

Another devotee of fox hunting, which had its greatest vogue in Maryland and Virginia, but still was widely practiced all over early America, was our third President, Thomas Jefferson.

Fox hunting was already a venerable sport in Washington's time. The first reference to the sport in America dates back more than 300 years, to 1650, when Robert Brooke came to America from England in his own private ship. He brought with him a pack of fox-hunting hounds. Brooke later developed a special breed of dog, the Brooke hound, which still is used in fox hunting today.

Fox hunting fever spread like wildfire over early America. Hundreds of clubs were formed. Thomas Walker of Virginia founded the Castle Hill hounds in 1742 and the club has survived to this day.

Settlement and the fencing of farms have caused the one-time national sport of America (as well as of England) to drop in popularity, of course, but there still are lots of fox hunting clubs in existence. Maryland and Virginia alone have nearly 50.

This is the height of the fox-hunting season, enthusiasts report. From November, after crops are harvested, until early April, when the new growing season begins in earnest, fox hunting season is in full sway.

Typical of the many clubs still doing business in the same old way it has been done for centuries, is the Redland Hunt club of Sandy Spring, Md., a stone's throw from Washington.

Richard H. Hutchison, Jr., co-master of the hunt, to which many Washingtonians belong, says that fox-hunting is a lot more dangerous for the hunters these days than it is for the fox.

"We hardly ever catch up with the fox," Hutchison grins, "there's too many places it can 'den up' and escape. However, we nearly always catch a fresh scent and have an exciting chase."

Unlike English fox-hunting, where most clubs have small terriers to dig out foxes who hole out in their dens after giving the hounds and hunters a run, American fox hunters do not consider such tactics sportsmanlike, Hutchison said.

While there's virtually no danger to the fox, the hunters have to watch out for leaps, for holes in which their horses might step and rear, and for other hazards.

Despite this, fox hunting attracts persons of all ages. Members of the Redland Hunt, for instance, range to over 70, members of the pony club, which usually hunts with them, have skilled riders as young as 10.

'Bad News' Seen In Bible Too

NEW YORK (AP)—If stories of crime and violence are good enough for the Bible, they're good enough for daily newspapers, says Rabbi Joseph H. Lookstein.

Rabbi Lookstein, speaking at a city conference of newspapermen and clergymen, cited biblical stories dealing with violence and insisted that modern newspapers must report the news, both bad and good.

His comments were made after several clergymen complained about the prominence given by newspapers to crime stories.

The Journey to Jesus

Arrival of Magi Upsets Jerusalem; They Are Summoned by King Herod

Editor's Note: The arrival of the Magi of Persia in tense, troubled Jerusalem set off a wave of uneasy hope among the populace and anger in the palace Here's a reconstruction of events leading to the Wise Men's interview with Herod, third in five stories on their Journey to Jesus.

By GEORGE CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

The question raced through the city. It swept along the shops of the market place. It filtered into the crowded quarter of the poor, the Acra, and whirled through the Temple courts. The question jarred Jerusalem:

"Where is he that is born King of the Jews?"

Old men frowned and young men wagged their heads. Clothmongers paused in their prattle and women clapped hands to their mouths. Some men scoffed; some snarled; some dreamed. Some chewed their lips, wondering.

In the middle hour of the morning, the three strangers, potentates from a distant land, had ridden into the city and halted at the "broad place" just inside the Fountain gate, asking their disturbing question:

"Where is he that is born King. . .? For we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him."

To the three windburned travelers, the learned Magi of Persia, it must have been keenly dispiriting to find that here in the Holy City, the very cradle of redemptive prophecy, none knew of its culmination.

They proceeded on up the narrow streets, their footmen bearing the gift cases. A growing throng of onlookers trailed behind them and on either side. Lictors, with bronze-tipped staves, cleared the way.

The venerable, old Melchior swayed tiredly in the saddle, and voices babbled around them.

"What manner of excellencies are these? . . . They speak boldly of a new king. . .Will not Herod seize them?. . .Are they mad?. . . Surely they are Asian princes. . . They wear the emblems of wizards of the Far East. . ."

All Jerusalem was trouble Matthew's gospel reports, for the question revived an age-old cry echoing out of the mists of the past in this enchanted city.

On the evening before, the impressive visitors had pitched camp in the Kidron Valley outside the walls. Their dark tents with fringed awnings drew swarms of beggars and waifs, whom the Magians ordered fed and given coins.

Now, after a restive night, they had entered the city, convinced they had reached the end of their long pilgrimage—the birthplace of the God-King. For this was the capital of the people predestined to be his lineage.

Yet the only response had been guarded looks, surprise and perplexity. Roman sergeants appeared brusquely to ask the delegation its purpose, and other functionaries scrutinized them.

Beside a pool ,Melchior raised his hand and the party halted. An attendant hurried up and the old High Magus eased himself to the ground, road sore and stiff. Balthasar and young Gaspar also dismounted.

The three left their camels with servants and trudged silently up the paved ramp toward the Temple. It dominated the city, high on the eastern hill, its marble walls and towers gleaming in the sun.

Melchior squinted, his face drawn and dark. His own ancient religion, with its one great God of goodness, reared no earthly temples. Yet the bygone pontiff Persian kings had proclaimed Israel's God the same.

He plodded along slowly, blinking at the shimmering stones ahead.

Long ago, the powerful Darius had decreed that the "God of Daniel" is the "living God," synonymous with Ahura-Mazda. And Cyrus the Great said likewise, even providing means to restore the Jewish Temple in all its grandeur.

Why, then, was the Divine Epiphany unknown here? Melchior ran a wrinkled hand over his face. Had he misread the accumulated perception of the age? Had he mistranslated a star?

All the world of that day had felt vague presentiments of a coming matchless leader, a champion of a golden age. Even in idol-filled Rome, the historians Tacitus and Suetonius, and the Poet Virgil took of it.

It had pulsed immemorially in the blood of Israel, and did so even now beneath the boot of the Roman pawn, Herod. Yet there was no inkling of its fulfillment. A wave of depression ran over Melchior

THIS WOODCUT of the appearance before Herod is taken from a story on the life of Jesus published in 1478 at Ulm, Germany. Note how the anonymous medieval artist, unfamiliar with the East, clothed the figures in the court dress of Europe.

Surely it was here, as revealed in the sacred tomes, in the musty, inspired wisdom that surpasses wisdom, that the Annointed would rise. All Melchior's days, he had absorbed these tortuous secrets, both of Jew and Aryan like himself, harnessing his mind and spirit to receive it.

How painstakingly his royal priestly academy had pored over obscure formulas, examined the elements and analyzed the time intervals given by Daniel to comprehend the supernal moment

And then the planetary heralds had come, followed by the mystic flame — the "star of Jacob" as foreseen in a trance by the gentile diviner, Balaam. Yet, here where it had beckoned, its meaning remained unrealized.

Had the search been in vain, a puerile illusion? Practical-minded men had called it so. Could they be right? Was the search for a Savior sher folly?

Melchior sighed and suddenly he was deeply weary, drained of all energy. He hesitated unsteadily there on the sloping pavement, and again pressed a hand to his eyes. Balthasar gripped his shoulder. "Art thou faint, Rab-Magus?"

Melchior set his jaw, waved Balthasar away and pushed on up the hill.

He would not lose heart! Failure was impossible, in reality. God did not change. His covenant remained undiminished. Only man's understanding of it veered and wavered, for he judged truth in a moment's narrow scope, not the sweep of the eternity.

They could not be wrong. The steady beat of the centuries could not be wrong, nor the great, long tide of vision, nor the holy books. Daniel could not be wrong, not he whose genius defied logic, whose endowments excelled the earthly manifestations of fire and beast, who read the inscrutable on the walls of the courts of Belshazzar. Not all the prophets could be wrong. Nor humanity's highest hope. Nor the star!

All at once, Melchior knew. In the infinite symmetries of God, while it was to Israel that the King was born, it was left to voyagers from afar to seek Him out, in token of the range of His call, the universal extent of His kingship.

On a portico outside the Temple wall, the Magi approached a rabbi who sat awaiting his students, and explained briefly the causes and object of their search.

A light, an old hunger, darted in the Jewish teacher's eyes, and then he frowned, glancing about uneasily.

"Thou dost stir up the wells of hope," he said in a low voice. "Withal, be heedful lest the Herodians take thy words amiss. The king is a jealous king."

Melchior smiled wanly, and his hand traced a circle, sign of blessing. The search went on. They inquired of chief priests, in the shops, among the lowly and high.

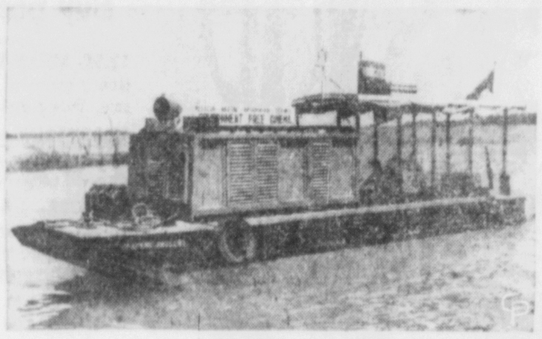

Soon, to their tents, came a bowing courtier, garbed in ornamented robes and pendants, who addressed them unctuously: "Honored sirs, I bring thee greetings from his majesty, Herod the King, who requests audience with thee that he may attend thee in thy desires."

Melchior nodded thoughtfully.

A squad of Roman troops led them across the city to the west wall. As the gates swung open to the lavish castle, with its sweeping esplanade, fountains and arbors, trumpet blasts sounded from a tower.

Compared to the troubled buzzing of the city without, a troubled quiet descended within the palace grounds.

Show Boat Renaissance In Africa, Not Midwest

A typical Nigerian show boat arrives in port.

By E. A. COUGHLIN
Central Press Association Correspondent

IBADAN, Nigeria—Romantic folk, who are prone to shed a nostalgic tear over the demise of America's proud show boats, can look to this expanding country for some solace. Time may have whittled down Mid-America's riverboat fleet to such modern survivors as Delta Queen, but here in West Africa, it's different.

Folk here see a bright future for show boats, and they've some reason for this optimism. Nigeria's own fleet, launched as recently as 1956, is growing in a way oddly reminiscent of the U. S. Middle West of the mid-Nineteenth Century. It even carries shows to riverside villages and towns, just as the Ohio and Mississippi old-timers of another era once did.

There's this difference: Nigeria, due for earned independence as a nation soon, has its feet firmly planted in the Twentieth Century. It follows that its show boats carry modern movies, not "live" shows.

For a beat the show boats have a slice of territory served by three major rivers. One, the Niger, is 2,580 miles long, and there are a maze of creeks, swamps and lagoons to be traversed.

Despite a rapidly expanding railroad system with more than 2,000 miles of tracks, river boats still hold most of the advantages.

The African-style show boats have emerged, as part of a government plan to bring uplift, information and entertainment to scattered waterside communities living far from cities.

So impressed were officials with the reaction to the first show boats that an order was given for six, followed soon by five more. Now they seem to be here to stay.

The latest craft are ultra-modern, powered by Diesel. They bring educational films, other movies, including westerns, to enthusiastic audiences.

12-75-Year-Term Handed Assaulter

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vernon Wyley, 21, of Cleveland, who pleaded guilty to a series of assaults and robberies of women during the past year, today began serving a 12-75-year sentence in the Ohio State Reformatory.

In passing sentence Monday, Common Pleas Judge Donald F. Lybarger described the attacks as being "as vicious as I have ever heard."

Victims of the six assaults and four burglaries admitted by Wyley included an 83-year - old woman who was robbed of $3 and hit on the head with a flashlight.

"I don't see one thing here to redeem yourself," Judge Lybarger told Wyley after reviewing his admissions. "I'm utterly amazed that you pick on older women and brutally assault them for a small amount of money. I'm going to sentence you away for a long time."

Driver Escapes Split-Open Auto

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—To state highway patrolmen, it looked as though the driver of a wrecked car had met a grisly fate today.

The car had struck a steel utility pole with such force that the vehicle was split in two. A hat, suitcoat and topcoat were strewn along the roadside.

Patrolman R. L. Shell called for a wrecker to lift the car so the wreckage could be searched.

Then the driver, 32 - year-old Preston Curry, telephoned the patrol dispatcher to report the accident. He said he lost control of the car, flopped down in the seat just before the crash, escaped with cuts and bruises and walked home.

Victims of the six assaults and four burglaries admitted by Wyley included an 83-year - old woman who was robbed of $3 and hit on the head with a flashlight.

"I don't see one thing here to redeem yourself," Judge Lybarger told Wyley after reviewing his admissions. "I'm utterly amazed that you pick on older women and brutally assault them for a small amount of money. I'm going to sentence you away for a long time."

Driver Escapes Split-Open Auto

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—To state highway patrolmen, it looked as though the driver of a wrecked car had met a grisly fate today.

The car had struck a steel utility pole with such force that the vehicle was split in two. A hat, suitcoat and topcoat were strewn along the roadside.

Patrolman R. L. Shell called for a wrecker to lift the car so the wreckage could be searched.

Then the driver, 32 - year-old Preston Curry, telephoned the patrol dispatcher to report the accident. He said he lost control of the car, flopped down in the seat just before the crash, escaped with cuts and bruises and walked home.

Stock Prices' Bull Market Causes Anxiety

Could Continual Climb Be Leading Economy Into New Trouble?

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With the sock market moving onto the newspaper front pages, more and more persons are becoming anxious today lest its exuberance be leading us into trouble.

'Bull markets and large daily turnover of stocks reflect the public interest. The Federal Reserve Board has indicated its concern lest speculative psychology based on expectations of future inflation may be fed by the Wall Street story.

Is the stock market — which started upward long before recovery — setting the pace for the economy? Is it going too fast and getting too far ahead?

The president of the New York Stock Exchange, Keith Funston, says no.

"The market is not setting the pace for the economy, but merely reflects what is occurring elsewhere," he tells the Minneapolis Junior Chamber of Commerce.

He admits that the market's activity has indicated a deep concern over the prospect of continued inflation. But he points out:

"Whether or not such fear is unreasonable, as some government experts and economists would have us believe, is beside the point. Such fear does exist and it will take more than words to alleviate it."

Instead of accusing the stock market of fostering inflation by pumping up inflation psychology, he urges that the roots of the evil be attacked.

He says: "The only answer inflation is fiscal responsibility. We must impress on government authorities at all levels our sense of shock at higher and higher spending. And we must recognize that more efficient production is the only sound means of raising wages."

Market analysis have pointed out that the bull market has other elements than just fear of more inflation. One often cited is the thinness of the market. By this they mean that while by the end of this year some five billion shares will be listed on the exchange — a record number — the vast majority aren't up for trading. The comparatively small amounts that are available help their owners to sell and get higher prices.

The reason usually cited for the reluctance of many shareholders to sell is that the capital gains tax levy leads investors to lock up billions of dollars worth of stock rather than pay the tax levied on successful investments.

Taxes also play a part in the amount of stock listed — which many analysts think should be much higher than five billion shares in the present expanded economy.

Funston says the devils are inflation fears and taxes — not his exchange.

Dayton Boy, 15, Held as Burglar

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A 15-year-old Dayton boy, held for questioning in a burglary spree, knocked on the wrong door Monday.

The house belonged to an off-duty patrolman who arrested him on burglary charges.

Patrolman Thomas Kucharski said Terence Harden rapped on his door and asked for a non-existent person. He tried the same trick next door, apparently seeking to determine whether the homes were empty, Kucharski said.

The patrolman questioned the boy and said he admitted seven burglaries here, three in Kettering and five in Dayton.

'Baby Boy Doe' Oblivious To Attention in Van Wert

By LLOYD HIPPENSTEELE
Van Wert Times-Bulletin

VAN WERT, Ohio (AP)—Little "Baby Boy Doe" lies sleeping in his crib in the nursery of the Van Wert County Hospital. At times he wakes and when he does, says Sheriff Wilmer Clay, "he eats like a little pig."

The little guy is completely oblivious of the attention which has been focused on him since 8 a.m. Monday when he was found crying and half-frozen in an employe's auto at the Wright Truck Stop at the west edge of the city.

Doctors said he was born only about 12 hours before he was found. Possibly only one person knows who he is—the person who placed him in the parked auto and then disappeared.

Since he was rushed to the hospital Monday morning, he has gone nameless. On the hospital records he has been carried simply as "baby boy"—no first name, no last name.

But later Monday he got a last name. Sheriff Clay listed him as "Baby Boy Doe" in a document submitted to Juvenile Court asking that he be officially declared a "neglected and dependent child."

And so, the wheels of justice begin turning to try to determine the future of the little foundling.

The future is much warmer than the coldness which greeted him so soon Monday morning after his arrival in the world.

Because the baby was so cold when it arrived at the hospital, there was some doubt at first that it could live long.

But hospital Administrator Robert King reported the baby "is going to get along all right." He said it was a full-term healthy baby.

With the filing of Sheriff Clay's petition in Juvenile Court, the baby's future becomes the responsibility of Judge Cathryn Harrington, although the sheriff said the investigation concerning its abandonment will go on in his department.

The investigation thus far, the sheriff said, has led up many blind alleys. Tipsters furnished his office with a dozen or more license numbers; others were sure they knew who the mother was.

Sheriff Clay said that all such tips have been checked "but none of them has proved out."

The usual Juvenile Court action in cases of abandoned children is to place them in a juvenile home or to permit their adoption. Until the court decides, the hospital is under court order not to permit anyone to remove the baby from the hospital.

Judge Harrington said the future of the baby will probably depend on its condition as a result of its experience in the bitter cold. She suggested the possibility that its near-freezing night not leave it in condition suitable to be offered for adoption.

Several alternatives present themselves for disposition of the case. She listed (1) offering it for adoption, (2) placing it in an orphanage, (3) turning it over to the welfare department for handling through its facilities, "and others."

The case brought a statement from Judge Harrington in which she condemned "the uselessness of such a tragedy." She noted that:

"If this child survives, its mother faces the unhappy prospect of imprisonment and a heavy fine. If the baby dies, the consequences to the mother may be infinitely more severe.

"At the risk of being misinterpreted and accused of upholding the type of behavior resulting in these unfortunate situations, the court feels a duty to make it a matter of public information that the circumstances need never result in such tragedy.

"The long waiting lists of prospective parents on the books of every adoption agency are proof that no child, regardless of the conditions surrounding its birth, need ever be denied a good home and the opportunity for a full, happy and useful life."

In connection with adoption, Sheriff Clay said he has received a number of inquiries, some of them by long distance telephone, from people wanting to adopt the child. He said he told them that they should submit normal applications so that the way would be cleared for investigation of the applicants.

There's Someone In Chimney and It Ain't Santa

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The janitor was absolutely right.

"There's somebody in the chimney and I don't think it's Santa Claus," Johnny Ybarra told the sheriff's office early todey.

There was—and it wasn't Santa.

Deputies found James E. Vance, 24, of Phoenix, trapped in the vent pipe.

Booked for investigation of burglary, Vance said he had jammed himself into the top of the vent shortly before 2 a.m. when officers climbed to the roof of the building in nearby Sunnyslope to investigate reports of a noise.

When the police left, Vance said, he was unable to get out. So he decided to go down. He reached the bottom, shoved his legs out, and got stuck.

He tried to go up again. No luck. He hung there until Ybarra heard him and called police.

Detroit Chief Fumes at Los Angeles Boss

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — Detroit's Mayor Louis Miriani fumed today over Los Angeles Mayor Norris Poulson's assertion that big car exhausts are the main cause of smog.

Describing big cars as the No. 1 air pollution problem in Los Angeles, Poulson announced in Washington Monday he had canceled his Cadillac order and would buy an American Motors Rambler. He said he hoped others would follow suit.

"The whole thing is silly, to say the least," the Detroit mayor wired Poulson today. "Suggesting a boycott of larger cars is almost as fantastic as if Detroit and the Middle West boycotted movies and television shows out of Los Angeles to preserve the public eyesight."

The motor city's mayor conceded, however, that autos unquestionably contribute to smog.

Miriani's chief air pollution inspector, Morton Sterling, suggested what Los Angeles needed, in effect, was more new automobiles.

"The age and the condition of the car is just as important in the smog problem as the size of the car. An older car will spew greater amounts of pollutants into the atmosphere than will newer cars," he said.

All the big-car makers have Detroit area plants. American Motors moved all automotive operations to Kenosha and Milwaukee, Wis., although it still maintains headquarters in Detroit.

Woman Bothers Man's Cooking, Is Killed

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 54-year-old man wanted on a murder charge in Detroit was arrested here Tuesday.

He was identified by police as Roosevelt Williams of Detroit. He is accused of killing a woman with a shotgun.

Detectives said Williams told them he shot the woman because "she was putting her hand into a pot of chicken I was cooking."

How to use Dari-Blend 50 for top milk production

One of Ohio's finest Jersey herds belongs to Homer Bohl, of New Vienna. In 1956, 19 of Bohl's Jerseys averaged 10,114 lbs. milk and 499 lbs. fat . . . records certified by the American Jersey Cattle Club.

Bohl's feeding program is based on Farm Bureau Dari-Blend 50 and plenty of roughage. His ration: 1,200 lbs. corn and 600 lbs. oats, mixed with 350 lbs. Dari-Blend 50 supplement, plus hay free-choice.

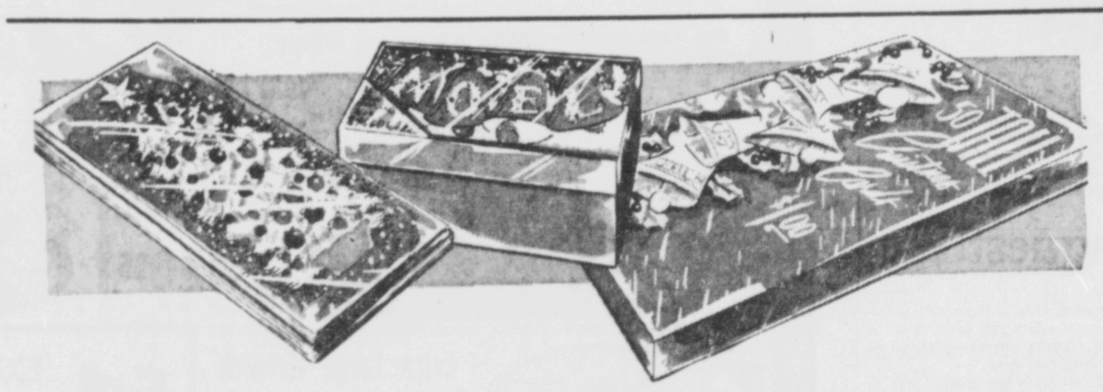

Dari-Blend 50 is a top-quality source of urea-protein. 50% protein content spells real economy—more home grains can be utilized, less supplement is needed for a balanced ration. It also stimulates the rumen bacteria to unlock extra nutritive values by breaking down feed fibers in roughage.

Take a tip from Bohl's record production. Build your feeding program around Dari-Blend 50. Let us suggest an economical plan for your farm.

Woman Saved After Upset In Snowdrift

MORRIS, Ill. (AP) — No one saw the auto skid, slam into a snow bank, then topple upside down into an eight-foot ditch.

And no one heard the feeble cries of Mrs. Loretta Dunn, who struggled vainly to free herself from the wreckage.

The minutes following the accident at 10 p.m. Sunday stretched into hours. Still no one came.

At dawn, Arthur Tortier, 53, driving his milk delivery route, spotted the wheels of Mrs. Dunn's car in the ditch. He rushed over. Mrs. Dunn was conscious, he said, but then lapsed into a faint.

Doctors at Morris Hospital said she was suffering from shock and exposure, possible fracture of both legs and partially frozen fingers, feet and face.

Mrs. Dunn, told police that she lost control of the car when an oncoming truck splashed mud and snow on her windshield, blinding her vision.

Her condition was reported fair. Doctors said she will not lose any fingers or toes.

Soviet Influence Felt in Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — George Pravada and his wife, Joanna, filled a court petition to change their last name to Prav. Pravada means "truth" in Russian but it also is the name of an official newspaper of the Soviet Union.

They said they wanted to change their name because Pravada is known as an organ of Communist propaganda and therefore the name causes them embarrassment. The court took the petition under consideration.

Beyond the Earth

This is a proposed design for a manned satellite laboratory—a four-man crew of scientists conducting a series of experiments related to human adjustment to space. However, rocket specialist Dr. Arthur Kantrowitz thinks this satellite is too much in the future and says, "The U. S. should put up a single-man space lab as soon as possible."

Instant Conquest!

By REX STANLEY

Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper

CONQUEST of the world in this uncertain space age may come suddenly and quietly, in a single bloodless coup by science—perhaps with less total effort than is needed to "shoot the Moon."

The one great achievement that could dominate the world, possible by either the U. S. or Russia, is hurling a manned laboratory into orbit around the Earth. In the words of Dr. Arthur Kantrowitz, famous rocket specialist, "the nation with a MANNED space vehicle for research will rapidly surpass a country with only automatic satellites."

If the U. S. wants that leadership, he points out, "we had better be preparing now to put this laboratory into space."

The U. S. Air Force recently contracted with a leading aircraft instrument company to design a space platform for a full crew. However, scientists like Dr. Kantrowitz strongly recommend getting up "a minimum satellite to carry a single man, and take the lead in space."

Several proposals have been made for the one-man satellite, including eventual orbiting of the new X-15 rocket plane. The lightest capsule proposed, 1,400 pounds, is just half the weight of Russia's successful Sputnik III. Cost of the first manned satellite would be high, probably around $1,000 per pound put into orbit.

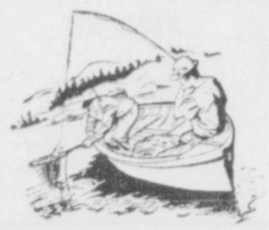

"The best orbit is a low one, about 100 to 200 miles high, where the little remaining atmosphere can be used to position and later recover the manned capsule," points out Dr. Kantrowitz.

He calls this "the orbit of decision," because there larger platforms can be built with men and materials sent up to the first satellite, returns can be made to Earth, and longer flights into space begun. The newly-discovered "radiation belt" is no hazard at this height.

"We have the rockets to put up this one-man capsule," argues Dr. Kantrowitz. "Most of the problems already have been solved during development of ballistics missiles.

"I think it is high time we got busy. You can be sure the Russians are, day and night."

Lions Catch On Too Late, Drop Tough One to Indians

The foul line killed the courageous Lions Tuesday night.

Matching the outstanding Hillsboro Indians in play and spirit, the WHS boys dropped the 47-42 game as they made but 10 of 31 free throw attempts while their opponents were scoring on 15 of 32 tries.

The second quarter ruined the Lions as they almost equaled the undefeated Indians in the first and third periods and then held them to a phenomenal four points during the last eight minutes.

But the 19 points the Highland Countians scored in the second frame was too much of a deficit even for a driving, fighting team that kept the pace at fever-pitch throughout the 32 minutes of play.

* * *

A MAN-TO-MAN press in the last half almost turned the tide as the Lions tried a valiant comeback but they were too far behind.

The 31-24 score at half-time, run up while the WHS boys were employing a zone defense, proved to be the winning factor for the Indians who made WHS team their sixth straight victim this year.

The Lions were five points behind with six minutes to go and it looked like they might make a mighty surge to capture the lead for the first time in the game.

But turnovers did the trick for the Indians as the WHS players continued to lose possession of the ball before shooting, a major factor in the Lions' 1 - 2 league record so far.

A snag, a drive, and it looked as if the Lions were heading for two more gap-closing points, only to have the Indians grab the elusive ball back.

Three new faces in the starting lineup added a much needed spark and a total of 15 points in the losing cause.

* * *

NOTABLY OUTSTANDING was the play of Guard Jack Wilson who scored eight points and drew a compliment from Coach Gene Millard on his driving spirit.

Guard Keith Striblin, who saw limited action in the fourth quarter, also was praised from the coach for his outstanding defensive play.

Milton Bosworth, Hillsboro guard continued on his scoring ways as he dropped in 17 points to pace the victors. The sharpshooter is leading the SCO League with 63 points in three games.

Center Pete Pfersick continued to pace the Lions in the scoring department with nine and added 15 rebounds in the rebound department to keep the boys in the game.

The closely called game had both sides jeering at one time or another. The Indians were charged with 18 personal fouls while the Lions had 20 called against them.

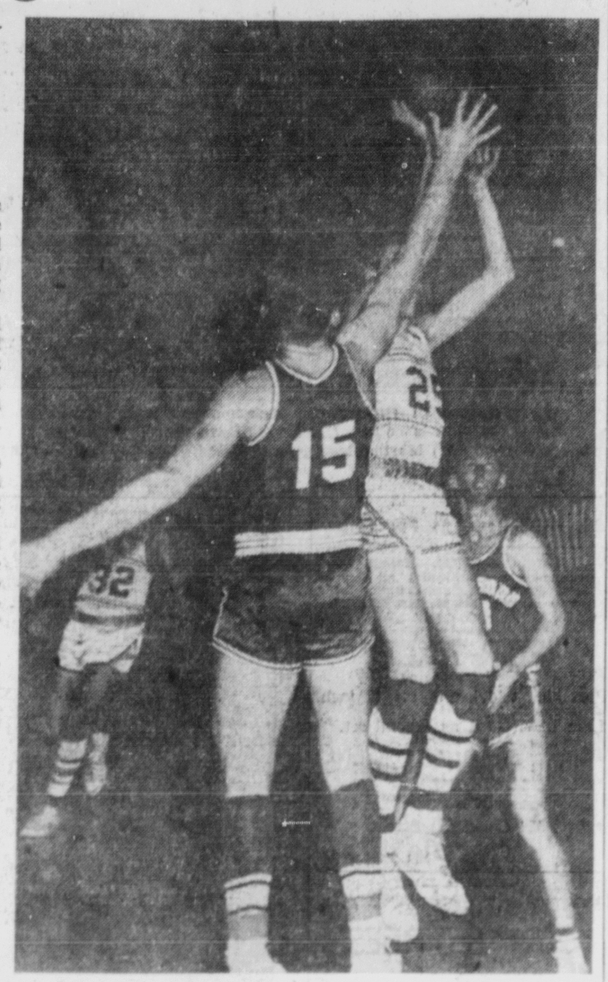

The loss dropped the Fayette County team to fourth place behind idle Wilmington who has a 1 - 1 record in league play while the Indians' third win gave them undisputed first place over Circleville.

Coach Marvin Merritt's reserves made it two in a row as they swamped the Indian reservists 48-34.

UP AND OVER—Lion Center Pete Pfersick goes high in the air to arch a shot over the reaching fingers of Hillsboro's Milton Bosworth in the first half of play Tuesday. Watching the shot is Indian Guard John Hull and coming in from behind is Lion Captain Terry Stillings.

Spring months are cooler than the corresponding months of autumn because it takes hot summer sun to warm the earth's crust and the seas and icy wilderness of the Far North.

An estimated 50 per cent of the families in the United States take vacation trips.

Pro Football Is Passing Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League is still a passer's league.

A look at the final regular season team statistics disclosed today that nine of the 12 teams gained more yardage through the air than on the ground.

Only the New York Giants, Cleveland Browns and Washington Redskins found a running game more profitable than passing.

The Browns, mostly on the tremendous performance of Jimmy Brown, outran every team in the pro league. Including Brown's record shattering 1,527 yards, Cleveland rushed for 2,526 yards, while passing for 1,581 yards.

New York displayed a much more balanced offense, gaining 1,725 yards on the ground and 1,605 through the air. The Giants were the league's top defensive team against rushing, allowing opponents 3.6 yards per try, and against passing, allowing 45.7 of 311 passes thrown to be completed.

Washington, which had the top passer on the basis of per pass average in Eddie LeBaron, managed 1,977 yards on the ground as against 1,696 passing.

The Baltimore Colts led the league in total offense with 4,539 yards, fairly evenly balanced between 2,412 yards passing and 2,127 yards rushing. Quarterback Johnny Unitas was the Colts' air arm and fullback Alan Ameche and halfback Lenny Moore, the main legs of the Western Conference winning club.

Second in total offense was Los Angeles with 4,406 yards. The Rams passed for 2,672 and ran for 1,734. The Pittsburgh Steelers, amassing 683 yards in whipping the Chicago Cardinals last Saturday — second highest one game total in NFL history — vaulted into third place in total offense. The Steelers, revived by quarterback Bobby Layne, passed for 2,752 yards and gained 1,521 yards on the ground the past season.

Other statistical champions:

Baltimore scored the most points 381.

Washington won punting honors on a 45.4 average.

Bill Corum Dies at 63 Of Cancer

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Corum, a small town boy who found fame in New York and contentment in the blue grass of Kentucky, died Tuesday night at the age of 63.

Cancer of the lung, complicated by pneumonia, ended his dual career of nationally syndicated sports columnist for the New York Journal American and president of Churchill Downs race track in Louisville, Ky.

He died in New York's St.Luke's Hospital, but as always he did not miss a deadline. He became critically ill over the weekend, and ironically the newspaper for which he worked will not carry his obituary today. Along with eight other metropolitan dailies, it has suspended publication because of a deliverers' strike.

Max Kase, sports editor of the Journal American, said today, "This comes as a great personal shock to me. There is nothing I can add to the wonderful record he has made as a man."

Sports writers and sportsmen across the nation echoed Kase's feelings.

Born at Speed, Mo., July 20, 1895, Corum began building that reputation in 1925 when he joined the Journal American as a baseball writer. That was the same year he saw his first Kentucky Derby, and he loved and praised the classic race for 3-year-olds so much that in 1949, when Col. Matt Winn died, he was the logical choice for the presidency of the tradition-steeped race track.

Cincy's 'Big O' Bruises Finger

CINCINNATI (AP) — Oscar Robertson, all-America basketball standout for the University of Cincinnati has a damaged finger and the team has a game tonight against College of the Pacific.

But he'll still be on hand, and the chances are the injury won't handicap him much in keeping up with his current 42-points-a-game average.

Coach George Smith said Tuesday Robertson had a slight dislocation of a little finger in the Marshall game last Saturday.

But Oscar was hard at work Tuesday in practice as usual, although the finger was swollen.

Robertson said, "It doesn't bother me at all in shooting. There is some pain when I take a hard pass if I'm not careful."

Defiance College Victory String Snapped by Hoosiers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defiance College dropped its first basketball game of the season Tuesday night after winning six straight.

The 69-68 loss to Concordia of Fort Wayne, Ind., came in an overtime during which the winners' leading scorer, Tom Faszholz, scored 8 of his team's 10 points. Faszholz was high point man for the night with 33.

The two teams were deadlocked at the end of regulation play at 59-all.

Elsewhere on the Ohio college basketball scene, Capital captured its fourth win to go with one loss in a 67-58 victory over Wooster, which now has an identical record. The game was decided on foul shots—Wooster commiting 25 personals and Capital capitalizing on 29 of its 36 free throw attempts.

Muskingum won its third straight Ohio Conference tilt and has a 4-1 season record after defeating Otterbein, 92-64. It was the winless Otters' fifth loss.

Wilmington nailed down its second Mid-Ohio League game at the expense of Cedarville, 93-66. The Quakers had a 20-point halftime lead and used reserves through most of the second half. Pete Rese of the losing Yellow Jackets salvaged scoring honors with 24 points. Cedarville is now 0-3, all in the league.

Heidelberg shot off to an early lead and downed Bluffton, 63-57. The Student Princes held off a Bluffton threat in the late minutes when the Beavers got to within two points of the winners. Both teams are now 1-3.

Defending champion Miami of the Mid - American Conference, down one point at intermission, came back in the second half to edge Marshall, 73-69. The losers held as much as a 13-point advantage in the opening period. Marshall's Leo Byrd had much to do with his team's initial scoring spree, getting 30 points for the edge Marshall, 73-69. The losers held as much as a 13-point advantage in the opening period. Marshall's Leo Byrd had much to do with his team's initial scoring spree, getting 30 points for the night. Miami's record stands at 2-3 over-all while Marshall is 4-2.

In the only other action, Western Reserve beat Hiram, 72-54.

3 County Cage Teams Lose Tuesday Night

Three Fayette County basketball teams were in action Tuesday night and all three went down to defeat.

Jeffersonville's Tigers almost upset favored Clarksville on the Clarksville court, but faltered in the final drive and lost 62 to 54. It was the fourth defeat in 10 games this season for the Fayette County League leaders.

New Holland's Bulldogs, who have been having a tough time this season, dropped their eight game, 78 to 36, on their own floor to Pickaway. The Bulldogs have won only one game, but it was a league tilt over Good Hope's Mad Anthonys.

The Mad Anthonys also lost their eighth game in nine this season on their home court Tuesday night to the boys from Frankfort by a score of 52 to 32. The Good Hope team's only victory was over the Jackson Township outfit in Pickaway County.

The other two county high school teams were idle Tuesday night, but Bloomingburg's Bulldogs will go to Good Hope Friday night and the Warriors of Madison Mills will meet Jeffersonville's Tigers on the Bloomingburg floor Friday night in a game in which the top spot in the league is at stake.

New Holland Loses To Pickaway Team

Handicapped by lack of height and experience, New Holland's Bulldogs were held to 11 field goals and lost to the taller boys from Pickaway, 78 to 36, Tuesday night on the New Holland floor.

The only place where the Bulldogs could come through was at the foul line. They made 14 of their 36 points there. And, Nelson Bochard was the sharpshooter, getting 12 of his team's 14 points on free throws.

Lee, the 6 foot, 3 inch center, led the Pickaway scoring with 24 points on 10 field goals and 4 free throws. The little Bulldogs just could not get high enough in the air to block his shots.

The Bulldogs could not penetrate the Pickaway zone defense and were forced to take many long and difficult shots from outside.

New Holland fans got some consolation from the Reserve team's 32 to 28 victory in the preliminary. Haggard, who played later in the varsity game, got 13 points as New Hollanders chalked up their second win of the season.

Good Hope Defeated By Frankfort Cagers

Connecting with only 11 of 52 shots from the field, Good Hope's Mad Anthonys suffered their eighth loss in nine games this season on their home floor when the cagers from Frankfort too a 56 to 32 decision Tuesday night.

Inability to hit the hoops has hurt the Mad Anthonys all season and the game with Frankfort was no exception. However, the percentage of shots made is not as bad as it appears on the surface, because their much taller opponents have not given them many good ones.

Frankfort shifted back and forth from a zone to man-to-man defense to make the Mad Anthonys shoot from the outside. And, they rarely got more than one shot because the taller Frankforters dominated the rebounds.

The Frankfort crew, paced a Simmons, made 25 of 67 shots from the field and 6 of 15 from the foul line.

Simmons was the thorn in the side of the Good Hope boys all through the game. When they adjusted their defense to bottle up Simmons inside, he merely backed out and shot from the outside — and connected.

The preliminary was much the same story for the Good Hope fans as they saw their Reserves go down, 40 to 23.

Jeffersonville Edged By Clarksville Boys

After getting off to a slow start, Jeffersonville's Tigers gradually narrowed the gap, and at one time in the last period took a 1 - point lead, but faltered in the final drive and lost to favored Clarksville, 62 to 54.

The Tiger offense was well balanced, with seven boys having a hand in the scoring.

Earl Burns, not a tall boy as basketball players go, not only did a lot of rebounding, but also hit 6 field goals, most of them from under the basket.

Jim Wright, driving in, and Jim Cook, firing jumps from the outside, each scored 14 points on 5 field goals and 4 free throws.

Burns and Evans teamed up to hold Gaines, the team's tall boy and usually high scorer, to 4 field goals and 10 points.

The Tigers started with a zone defense, but when the Clarkvillians started hitting from the outside, they shifted to a man - to-man and checked their drive.

Although Glen Smith, who has been averaging about 13 points a game, was having an "off" night, the Tigers connected with 20 of 62 shots from the floor for an average of 33 per cent. Clarksville hit about 43 per cent of its floor shots.

Hardwick, small by fast, led the Clarksville scoring with 21 points, most of them coming on drive-ins.

The Jeffersonville Reserves took the preliminary 30 to 27, mainly because they made 12 of 18 free throws. Dave Garringer scored 10 points and John Ritenour 6 for Jeffersonville.

Bobo Olson Wins TKO over Villa

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Bobo Olson won his third straight comeback fight Tuesday night — a confused technical knockout over young Tommy Villa, who refused to resume the scrap after being fouled.

The California Athletic Commission begins an investigation today of the verdict, although it appears Referee Johnny Reno's decision will stand.

Olson, former middleweight champ who now lives in San Francisco, landed a low left at 1:28 of the fifth round and Villa dropped. Reno called foul, took a point from Olson's score and ordered a five-minute rest for Villa, a 23-year-old making his 23rd fight.

Villa, of San Jose Calif., said he wouldn't continue. He wasn't examined until after he reached his dressing room. There commission physician Dr. G. K. Nider of Fresno said he couldn't find any sign of swelling, or any damage.

'Doc' Parshall Among Men Enshrined in Hall of Fame

GOSHEN, N.Y. (AP) — The names of 39 men who gained fame in the harness racing sport will be enshrined as immortals in the Hall of Fame of the Trotting Horse Museum at Goshen.

H. M. (Doc) Parshall, native of Hillsboro, Ohio, who became a near legend among Buckeye sulky fans, was one of the 39. Parshall's greatest victory was when he won the Hambletonian classic with Lord Jim.

E. Roland Harriman, president of the museum, announced the list of notable drivers, trainers, owners, breeders and trotting officials.

They included William S. Rysdyk, who owned Hambletonian, the great sire who was foaled at his farm near here in 1849. Ninety-nine per cent of all standardbred horses trace directly to Hambletonian in the male line.

William H. (Bill) Cane, who sponsored the Hambletonian race for 26 years until his death in 1956, also was elected. Cane made the 3-year-old trotting classic the top race of its kind in the world.

The immortals included Sep Palin, who won the Hambletonian with Greyhound and Hoot Mon; Pop Geers, driver and trainer of many champion horses in the first quarter of this century; Benjamin F. White, winner of four Hambletonians, and Hiram Woodruff, who gained fame during the Civil War period as the leading driver of that time.

Formerly, only horses had been named immortals in the Hall of Fame. No living person or horse is eligible for election, which is done by a two-thirds vote of the museum's trustees.

Others elected:

Budd Doble — Drove champion trotters Dexter, Goldsmith Maid, Nancy Hanks.

John Splan—Drove stars of high-wheel sulky days; author of "Life With the Trotters."

Charles Marvin — Drove Sunol, last of the high wheel champions.

W. H. (Knapsack) McCarthy — Drove Little Brown Jug for whom 3-year-old racing stake is known.

Myron McHenry — Drove Dan Patch on Grand Circuit.

W. J. Andrews — Raced Lee Axworthy, who gave Peter Volo his only defeat.

Guss Macey — Well-known driver at the turn of the century.

Lamon V. Harkness — Founded Walnut Hall Farm.

C. W. Williams — Breeder of Axtell, who trotted in 2:12 to high-wheels as 3-year-old champion stallion.

John Dickerson — Drove Cheyenne, 1891 Transylvania winner.

Leland Stanford — Senator from California, owned famous Palo Alto Farm.

J. Malcolm Forbes — paid Stanford $125,000 for Arion, highest priced harness horse up to that time.

C. J. Hamlin — Owned Village Farm, East Aurora, N. Y., great breeding farm.

Charles Backman—Stony Brook Farm, Goshen, N. Y., where Electioneer was bred.

E. H. Harriman—Owned historic track, Goshen.

Walter R. Cox — Drove Walter Dear, Cane's 1929 Hambletonian winner.

W. K. Dickerson — Swept 1925 Grand Circuit 2-year-old stakes.

Harry Fleming — Drove Nedda to 1:58¼ trotting record for mares.

William Caton—Top reinsman in Russia in early years.

Richard McMahon — Drove Calumet Butler to victory in 1931 Hambletonian.

J. L. Serrill — Trained for A. B. Coxe, Paoli, Pa.

Victor Fleming — Trained and drove Billy Direct, world's champion pacer.

H. K. Devereux — Grand Circuit president many years.

Frank C. Jones — Probably greatest amateur reinsman.

C. K. G. Billings—Amateur driver, never raced his horses for money; owned Lou Dillon, first two-minute trotter.

John E. Madden—Owned Hamburg Place, Lexington, Ky.

David M. Look—Bred Spencer Scott, Hambletonian winner and present champion stallion.

W. N. Reynolds — Raced large stable on Grand Circuit many years.

Charles W. Phellis — Won two Hambletonians.

Browns Prep Pass Attack For Giants

Playoff Game Slated For Sunday in New York's Yankee Stadium

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns, who open practice today for Sunday's return engagement with the New York Giants, probably will do more passing next Sunday than they did last Sunday.

The Browns went to New York last Sunday expecting to throw more, but the weather, field conditions and the fact that they moved to the front early in the game altered plans.

"Actually we tried to throw about 15 passes, but only got 12 of them off," said Coach Paul Brown. "We had planned to throw about 20 times."

Browns quarterback Milt Plum is one of the top passers in the National Football League. He wound up the season only a hair's breadth behind Eddie LeBaron of the Washington Redskins, with a 54 per cent completion record. LeBaron had a 54.5 per cent record.

Plum goes into Sunday's playoff made necessary when the Giants tied the Browns at the top of the league standings Sunday, with a regular season record of 102 completions in 189 tries for a total of 1,619 yards and 11 touchdowns.

The Browns announced they are putting tickets on sale for an NFL championship game here Dec. 28. The Browns have to defeat the Giants Sunday to get into the title game the following week against the Baltimore Colts. If the Browns lose Sunday they will have to refund the money for tickets sold for the title game.

Despite last weekend's heavy snow and deep freeze, Yankee Stadium field should be firm and fast for Sunday's battle.

Coach Jim Lee Howell and his staff found the field to their liking Tuesday when they peeked under the cover that was spread over it Sunday. A chemical substance melted the snow that fell throughout Sunday night and helped thaw out the frozen turf.

"The weather last week hurt both clubs," said Howell.

Howell called his team back to work today after a two-day layoff. They have scheduled long workouts today and Thursday. They will taper off Friday and Saturday.

Once again the accent in the Giants camp will be "Stop Jimmy Brown." Although they did a pretty good job of holding down the Cleveland fullback, he did carry for a total of 261 yards in the two games, including two scoring runs of 58 and 65 yards.

The Giants' two victories over Cleveland haven't convinced the price makers of any solid superiority. They are quoting a price of even-six in favor of the Giants. That is 11-10 odds.

New 49er Coach Says Team Must Show 'Desire'

SAN FRANCISCO (ap) — Howard (Red) Hickey, new head coach of the San Francisco 49ers, foresees the first National Football League title in the club's history as not too far off—if he can surround himself with players and assistants who have lots of desire.

That's just what he is going after, said the man who has coached the backs and ends. He was elevated Tuesday to the spot vacated by Frankie Albert because boos of the fans were upsetting Albert's family.

The 41-year-old former University of Arkansas star end, who came up through the pro ranks as player and coach, said he's determined to have players who will go all out. And his assistants must be "people who are going to want to coach football all their lives," he added.

Celtics Snap Nat Win String at 7

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Syracuse Nations of the National Basketball Assn. are back down to earth today and the Boston Celtics and New York Knicks are still up in the air as to who wants first place in the Eastern Division.

The Nats had their seven game winning string snapped by the Celtics, 108-104 in the first game of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader Tuesday night. The Knicks, who had to win to stay tied for first place, upended the Cincinnati Royals 118-106 in the nightcap of the New York feature. This was the only NBA action.

Lions Catch On Too Late, Drop Tough One to Indians

The foul line killed the courageous Lions Tuesday night.

Matching the outstanding Hillsboro Indians in play and spirit, the WHS boys dropped the 47-42 game as they made but 10 of 31 free throw attempts while their opponents were scoring on 15 of 32 tries.

The second quarter ruined the Lions as they almost equaled the undefeated Indians in the first and third periods and then held them to a phenomenal four points during the last eight minutes.

But the 19 points the Highland Countians scored in the second frame was too much of a deficit even for a driving, fighting team that kept the pace at fever-pitch throughout the 32 minutes of play.

* * *

A MAN-TO-MAN press in the last half almost turned the tide as the Lions tried a valiant comeback but they were too far behind.

The 31-24 score at half-time, run up while the WHS boys were employing a zone defense, proved to be the winning factor for the Indians who made WHS team their sixth straight victim this year.

The Lions were five points behind with six minutes to go and it looked like they might make a mighty surge to capture the lead for the first time in the game.

But turnovers did the trick for the Indians as the WHS players continued to lose possession of the ball before shooting, a major factor in the Lions' 1 - 2 league record so far.

A snag, a drive, and it looked as if the Lions were heading for two more gap-closing points, only to have the Indians grab the elusive ball back.

Three new faces in the starting lineup added a much needed spark and a total of 15 points in the losing cause.

* * *

NOTABLY OUTSTANDING was the play of Guard Jack Wilson who scored eight points and drew a compliment from Coach Gene Millard on his driving spirit.

Guard Keith Striblin, who saw limited action in the fourth quarter, also was praised from the coach for his outstanding defensive play.

Milton Bosworth, Hillsboro guard continued on his scoring ways as he dropped in 17 points to pace the victors. The sharpshooter is leading the SCO League with 63 points in three games.

Center Pete Pfersick continued to pace the Lions in the scoring department with nine and added 15 rebounds in the rebound department to keep the boys in the game.

The closely called game had both sides jeering at one time or another. The Indians were charged with 18 personal fouls while the Lions had 20 called against them.

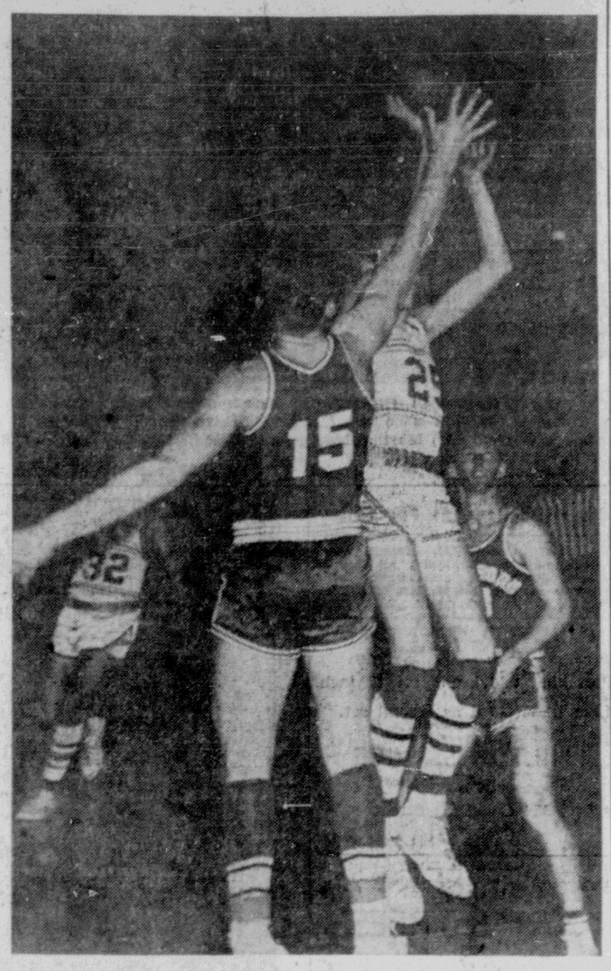

The loss dropped the Fayette County team to fourth place behind idle Wilmington who has a 1 - 1 record in league play while the Indians' third win gave them undisputed first place over Circleville.

Coach Marvin Merritt's reserves made it two in a row as they swamped the Indian reservists 48-34.

Pro Football Is Passing Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League is still a passer's league.

A look at the final regular season team statistics disclosed today that nine of the 12 teams gained more yardage through the air than on the ground.

Only the New York Giants, Cleveland Browns and Washington Redskins found a running game more profitable than passing.

The Browns, mostly on the tremendous performance of Jimmy Brown, outran every team in the pro league. Including Brown's record shattering 1,527 yards, Cleveland rushed for 2,526 yards, while passing for 1,581 yards.

New York displayed a much more balanced offense, gaining 1,725 yards on the ground and 1,605 through the air. The Giants were the league's top defensive team against rushing, allowing opponents 3.6 yards per try, and against passing, allowing 45.7 of 311 passes thrown to be completed.

Washington, which had the top passer on the basis of per pass average in Eddie LeBaron, managed 1,977 yards on the ground as against 1,696 passing.

The Baltimore Colts led the league in total offense with 4,539 yards, fairly evenly balanced between 2,412 yards passing and 2,127 yards rushing. Quarterback Johnny Unitas was the Colts' air arm and fullback Alan Ameche and halfback Lenny Moore, the main legs of the Western Conference winning club.

Second in total offense was Los Angeles with 4,406 yards. The Rams passed for 2,672 and ran for 1,734. The Pittsburgh Steelers, amassing 683 yards in whipping the Chicago Cardinals last Saturday — second highest one game total in NFL history — vaulted into third place in total offense. The Steelers, revived by quarterback Bobby Layne, passed for 2,752 yards and gained 1,521 yards on the ground the past season.

Other statistical champions:

Pittsburgh took passing honors with 2,752 yards. San Francisco was the most accurate passing team with a 58.2 completion percentage.

Baltimore scored the most points 381.

Washington won punting honors on a 45.4 average.

Bill Corum Dies at 63 Of Cancer

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Corum, a small town boy who found fame in New York and contentment in the blue grass of Kentucky, died Tuesday night at the age of 63.

Cancer of the lung, complicated by pneumonia, ended his dual career of nationally syndicated sports columnist for the New York Journal American and president of Churchill Downs race track in Louisville, Ky.

He died in New York's St.Luke's Hospital, but as always he did not miss a deadline. He became critically ill over the weekend, and ironically the newspaper for which he worked will not carry his obituary today. Along with eight other metropolitan dailies, it has suspended publication because of a deliverers' strike.

Max Kase, sports editor of the Journal American, said today, "This comes as a great personal shock to me. There is nothing I can add to the wonderful record he has made as a man."

Sports writers and sportsmen across the nation echoed Kase's feelings.

Born at Speed, Mo., July 20, 1895, Corum began building that reputation in 1925 when he joined the Journal American as a baseball writer. That was the same year he saw his first Kentucky Derby, and he loved and praised the classic race for 3-year-olds so much that in 1949, when Col. Matt Winn died, he was the logical choice for the presidency of the tradition-steeped race track.

Cincy's 'Big O' Bruises Finger

CINCINNATI (AP) — Oscar Robertson, all-America basketball standout for the University of Cincinnati has a damaged finger and the team has a game tonight against College of the Pacific.

But he'll still be on hand, and the chances are the injury won't handicap him much in keeping up with his current 42-points-a-game average.

Coach George Smith said Tuesday Robertson had a slight dislocation of a little finger in the Marshall game last Saturday.

But Oscar was hard at work Tuesday in practice as usual, although the finger was swollen.

Robertson said, "It doesn't bother me at all in shooting. There is some pain when I take a hard pass if I'm not careful."

Defiance College Victory String Snapped by Hoosiers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defiance College dropped its first basketball game of the season Tuesday night after winning six straight.

The 69-68 loss to Concordia of Fort Wayne, Ind., came in an overtime during which the winners' leading scorer, Tom Faszholz, scored 8 of his team's 10 points. Faszholz was high point man for the night with 33.

The two teams were deadlocked at the end of regulation play at 59-all.

Elsewhere on the Ohio college basketball scene, Capital captured its fourth win to go with one loss in a 67-58 victory over Wooster, which now has an identical record. The game was decided on foul shots—Wooster commiting 25 personals and Capital capitalizing on 29 of its 36 free throw attempts.

Muskingum won its third straight Ohio Conference tilt and has a 4-1 season record after defeating Otterbein, 92-64. It was the winless Otters' fifth loss.

Wilmington nailed down its second Mid-Ohio League game at the expense of Cedarville, 93-66. The Quakers had a 20-point halftime lead and used reserves through most of the second half. Pete Rese of the losing Yellow Jackets salvaged scoring honors with 24 points. Cedarville is now 0-3, all in the league.

Heidelberg shot off to an early lead and downed Bluffton, 63-57. The Student Princes held off a Bluffton threat in the late minutes when the Beavers got to within two points of the winners. Both teams are now 1-3.

Defending champion Miami of the Mid - American Conference, down one point at intermission, came back in the second half to edge Marshall, 73-69. The losers held as much as a 13-point advantage in the opening period. Marshall's Leo Byrd had much to do with his team's initial scoring spree, getting 30 points for the edge Marshall, 73-69. The losers held as much as a 13-point advantage in the opening period. Marshall's Leo Byrd had much to do with his team's initial scoring spree, getting 30 points for the night. Miami's record stands at 2-3 over-all while Marshall is 4-2.

In the only other action, Western Reserve beat Hiram, 72-54.

3 County Cage Teams Lose Tuesday Night

Three Fayette County basketball teams were in action Tuesday night and all three went down to defeat.

Jeffersonville's Tigers almost upset favored Clarksville on the Clarksville court, but faltered in the final drive and lost 62 to 54. It was the fourth defeat in 10 games this season for the Fayette County League leaders.

New Holland's Bulldogs, who have been having a tough time this season, dropped their eight game, 78 to 36, on their own floor to Pickaway. The Bulldogs have won only one game, but it was a league tilt over Good Hope's Mad Anthonys.

The Mad Anthonys also lost their eighth game in nine this season on their home court Tuesday night to the boys from Frankfort by a score of 52 to 32. The Good Hope team's only victory was over the Jackson Township outfit in Pickaway County.

The other two county high school teams were idle Tuesday night, but Bloomingburg's Bulldogs will go to Good Hope Friday night and the Warriors of Madison Mills will meet Jeffersonville's Tigers on the Bloomingburg floor Friday night in a game in which the top spot in the league is at stake.

New Holland Loses To Pickaway Team

Handicapped by lack of height and experience, New Holland's Bulldogs were held to 11 field goals and lost to the taller boys from Pickaway, 78 to 36, Tuesday night on the New Holland floor.

The only place where the Bulldogs could come through was at the foul line. They made 14 of their 36 points there. And, Nelson Bochard was the sharpshooter, getting 12 of his team's 14 points on free throws.

Lee, the 6 foot, 3 inch center, led the Pickaway scoring with 24 points on 10 field goals and 4 free throws. The little Bulldogs just could not get high enough in the air to block his shots.

The Bulldogs could not penetrate the Pickaway zone defense and were forced to take many long and difficult shots from outside.

New Holland fans got some consolation from the Reserve team's 32 to 28 victory in the preliminary. Haggard, who played later in the varsity game, got 13 points as New Hollanders chalked up their second win of the season.

Good Hope Defeated By Frankfort Cagers

Connecting with only 11 of 52 shots from the field, Good Hope's Mad Anthonys suffered their eighth loss in nine games this season on their home floor when the cagers from Frankfort too a 56 to 32 decision Tuesday night.

Inability to hit the hoops has hurt the Mad Anthonys all season and the game with Frankfort was no exception. However, the percentage of shots made is not as bad as it appears on the surface, because their much taller opponents have not given them many good ones.

Frankfort shifted back and forth from a zone to man-to-man defense to make the Mad Anthonys shoot from the outside. And, they rarely got more than one shot because the taller Frankforters dominated the rebounds.

The Frankfort crew, paced a Simmons, made 25 of 67 shots from the field and 6 of 15 from the foul line.

Simmons was the thorn in the side of the Good Hope boys all through the game. When they adjusted their defense to bottle up Simmons inside, he merely backed out and shot from the outside — and connected.

The preliminary was much the same story for the Good Hope fans as they saw their Reserves go down, 40 to 23.

Jeffersonville Edged By Clarksville Boys

After getting off to a slow start, Jeffersonville's Tigers gradually narrowed the gap, and at one time in the last period took a 1 - point lead, but faltered in the final drive and lost to favored Clarksville, 62 to 54.

The Tiger offense was well balanced, with seven boys having a hand in the scoring.

Earl Burns, not a tall boy as basketball players go, not only did a lot of rebounding, but also hit 6 field goals, most of them from under the basket.

Jim Wright, driving in, and Jim Cook, firing jumps from the outside, each scored 14 points on 5 field goals and 4 free throws.

Burns and Evans teamed up to hold Gaines, the team's tall boy and usually high scorer, to 4 field goals and 10 points.

The Tigers started with a zone defense, but when the Clarksvillians started hitting from the outside, they shifted to a man - to-man and checked their drive.

Although Glen Smith, who has been averaging about 13 points a game, was having an "off" night, the Tigers connected with 20 of 62 shots from the floor for an average of 33 per cent. Clarksville hit about 43 per cent of its floor shots.

Hardwick, small by fast, led the Clarksville scoring with 21 points, most of them coming on drive-ins.

The Jeffersonville Reserves took the preliminary 30 to 27, mainly because they made 12 of 18 free throws. Dave Garringer scored 10 points and John Ritenour 6 for Jeffersonville.

Bobo Olson Wins TKO over Villa

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Bobo Olson won his third straight comeback fight Tuesday night — a confused technical knockout over young Tommy Villa, who refused to resume the scrap after being fouled.

The California Athletic Commission begins an investigation today of the verdict, although it appears Referee Johnny Reno's decision will stand.

Olson, former middleweight champ who now lives in San Francisco, landed a low left at 1:28 of the fifth round and Villa dropped. Reno called foul, took a point from Olson's score and ordered a five-minute rest for Villa, a 23-year-old making his 23rd fight.

Villa, of San Jose Calif., said he wouldn't continue. He wasn't examined until after he reached his dressing room. There commission physician Dr. G. K. Nider of Fresno said he couldn't find any sign of swelling, or any damage.

'Doc' Parshall Among Men Enshrined in Hall of Fame

GOSHEN, N.Y. (AP) — The names of 39 men who gained fame in the harness racing sport will be enshrined as immortals in the Hall of Fame of the Trotting Horse Museum at Goshen.

H. M. (Doc) Parshall, native of Hillsboro, Ohio, who became a near legend among Buckeye sulky fans, was one of the 39. Parshall's greatest victory was when he won the Hambletonian classic with Lord Jim.

E. Roland Harriman, president of the museum, announced the list of notable drivers, trainers, owners, breeders and trotting officials.

They included William S. Rysdyk, who owned Hambletonian, the great sire who was foaled at his farm near here in 1849. Ninety-nine per cent of all standardbred horses trace directly to Hambletonian in the male line.

William H. (Bill) Cane, who sponsored the Hambletonian race for 26 years until his death in 1956, also was elected. Cane made the 3-year-old trotting classic the top race of its kind in the world.

The immortals included Sep Palin, who won the Hambletonian with Greyhound and Hoot Mon; Pop Geers, driver and trainer of many champion horses in the first quarter of this century; Benjamin F. White, winner of four Hambletonians, and Hiram Woodruff, who gained fame during the Civil War period as the leading driver of that time.

Formerly, only horses had been named immortals in the Hall of Fame. No living person or horse is eligible for election, which is done by a two-thirds vote of the museum's trustees.

Others elected:

Budd Doble — Drove champion trotters Dexter, Goldsmith Maid, Nancy Hanks.

John Splan—Drove stars of high-wheel sulky days; author of "Life With the Trotters."

Charles Marvin — Drove Sunol, last of the high wheel champions.

W. H. (Knapsack) McCarthy — Drove Little Brown Jug for whom 3-year-old racing stake is known.

Myron McHenry — Drove Dan Patch on Grand Circuit.

W. J. Andrews — Raced Lee Axworthy, who gave Peter Volo his only defeat.

Guss Macey — Well-known driver at the turn of the century.

Lamon V. Harkness — Founded Walnut Hall Farm.

C. W. Williams — Breeder of Axtell, who trotted in 2:12 to high-wheels as 3-year-old champion stallion.

John Dickerson — Drove Cheyenne, 1891 Transylvania winner.

Leland Stanford — Senator from California, owned famous Palo Alto Farm.

J. Malcolm Forbes — paid Stanford $125,000 for Arion, highest priced harness horse up to that time.

C. J. Hamlin — Owned Village Farm, East Aurora, N. Y., great breeding farm.

Charles Backman—Stony Brook Farm, Goshen, N. Y., where Electioneer was bred.

E. H. Harriman—Owned historic track, Goshen.

Walter R. Cox — Drove Walter Dear, Cane's 1929 Hambletonian winner.

W. K. Dickerson — Swept 1925 Grand Circuit 2-year-old stakes.

Harry Fleming — Drove Nedda to 1:58¼ trotting record for mares.

William Caton—Top reinsman in Russia in early years.

Richard McMahon — Drove Calumet Butler to victory in 1931 Hambletonian.

J. L. Serrill — Trained for A. B. Coxe, Paoli, Pa.

Victor Fleming — Trained and drove Billy Direct, world's champion pacer.

H. K. Devereux — Grand Circuit president many years.

Frank C. Jones — Probably greatest amateur reinsman.

C. K. G. Billings—Amateur driver, never raced his horses for money; owned Lou Dillon, first two-minute trotter.

John E. Madden—Owned Hamburg Place, Lexington, Ky.

David M. Look—Bred Spencer Scott, Hambletonian winner and present champion stallion.

W. N. Reynolds — Raced large stable on Grand Circuit many years.

Browns Prep Pass Attack For Giants

Playoff Game Slated For Sunday in New York's Yankee Stadium

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns, who open practice today for Sunday's return engagement with the New York Giants, probably will do more passing next Sunday than they did last Sunday.

The Browns went to New York last Sunday expecting to throw more, but the weather, field conditions and the fact that they moved to the front early in the game altered plans.

"Actually we tried to throw about 15 passes, but only got 12 of them off," said Coach Paul Brown. "We had planned to throw about 20 times."

Browns quarterback Milt Plum is one of the top passers in the National Football League. He wound up the season only a hair's breadth behind Eddie LeBaron of the Washington Redskins, with a 54 per cent completion record. LeBaron had a 54.5 per cent record.

Plum goes into Sunday's playoff made necessary when the Giants tied the Browns at the top of the league standings Sunday, with a regular season record of 102 completions in 189 tries for a total of 1,619 yards and 11 touchdowns.

The Browns announced they are putting tickets on sale for an NFL championship game here Dec. 28. The Browns have to defeat the Giants Sunday to get into the title game the following week against the Baltimore Colts. If the Browns lose Sunday they will have to refund the money for tickets sold for the title game.

Despite last weekend's heavy snow and deep freeze, Yankee Stadium field should be firm and fast for Sunday's battle.

Coach Jim Lee Howell and his staff found the field to their liking Tuesday when they peeked under the cover that was spread over it Sunday. A chemical substance melted the snow that fell throughout Sunday night and helped thaw out the frozen turf.

"The weather last week hurt both clubs," said Howell.

Howell called his team back to work today after a two-day layoff. They have scheduled long workouts today and Thursday. They will taper off Friday and Saturday.

Once again the accent in the Giants camp will be "Stop Jimmy Brown." Although they did a pretty good job of holding down the Cleveland fullback, he did carry for a total of 261 yards in the two games, including two scoring runs of 58 and 65 yards.

The Giants' two victories over Cleveland haven't convinced the price makers of any solid superiority. They are quoting a price of even-six in favor of the Giants. That is 11-10 odds.

New 49er Coach Says Team Must Show 'Desire'

SAN FRANCISCO (ap) — Howard (Red) Hickey, new head coach of the San Francisco 49ers, foresees the first National Football League title in the club's history as not too far off—if he can surround himself with players and assistants who have lots of desire.

That's just what he is going after, said the man who has coached the backs and ends. He was elevated Tuesday to the spot vacated by Frankie Albert because boos of the fans were upsetting Albert's family.

The 41-year-old former University of Arkansas star end, who came up through the pro ranks as player and coach, said he's determined to have players who will go all out. And his assistants must be "people who are going to want to coach football all their lives," he added.

Celtics Snap Nat Win String at 7

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Syracuse Nations of the National Basketball Assn. are back down to earth today and the Boston Celtics and New York Knicks are still up in the air as to who wants first place in the Eastern Division.

The Nats had their seven game winning string snapped by the Celtics, 108-104 in the first game of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader Tuesday night. The Knicks, who had to win to stay tied for first place, upended the Cincinnati Royals 118-106 in the nightcap of the New York feature. This was the only NBA action.

Lions Club Meeting Has Christmas Spirit

The Christmas spirit prevailed from start to finish at Tuesday night's dinner meeting of the Washington C. H. Lions Club in the Country Club.

For one thing, each of the 94 Lions there brought a toy for Friday's American Legion-sponsored party for youngsters of the community.

For another, the tailtwister, Omar Schwart, the busiest man in the place, collected more than $20 in "fines" levied against the members for a wide variety of "offenses," mostly imaginary. The money was also turned over to Dr. Charles Pfersick, chairman of the Legion committee, arranging this children's Christmas party to be held in the Legion Hall.

Those Lions, who suspected what the money would go for, voluntarily raised their "fines" and dropped dollars, instead of dimes and quarters, in the tailtwister's collection kettle.

* * *

THE MEETING was opened with the invocation by the Rev. W. Neil Hand, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and a guest of the club.

Ray French, the president, was there for the first time in several weeks to preside. He has been spending most of his time Britt, Ia., where he has a new feedlot equipment manufacturing plant.

Business at the meeting was held to a minimum to make time for the entertainment program later. However, Tom Gormley, who will direct the coming edition of the Lions Minstrel, announced that the first practice will be held January 4 in the Dayton Power and Light Co. auditorium.

The club also presented gifts of cash to Mrs. Harold Hewitt, the club hostess, and to Tut Jackson, the caretaker.

* * *

THE ENTERTAINMENT program also was in the spirit of Christmas. Under the direction of Grover Baber, a member of the club and vocal music teacher in Washington C. H. High School, presented a group of 18 students, including the B-Nine-Teens, a girls vocal ensemble, and a boys quintet, in several Christmas numbers.

The B-Nine-Teens sang such traditional Yuletide songs as "The Night Before Christmas," White Christmas" and 'Mr. Santa" and the whole group, which was brought together as a choir, sang 'That Christmas Long Ago" and "Everywhere Christmas Tonight."

The boys quintet, for a change of pace, harmonized on a couple of popular songs.

Rounding out the program were solos by Max Milstead and Ann Johnson.

Betsy Vollette was the accompanist for all the numbers.

Making up the choir were the B-Nine-Teens, Ann Johnson, Sandy Mickle, Julia Wilson, Margie Hurtt, Sally Jo Loudner, Jennifer Newbrey, Barbara Rose, Rita Fredericks and Cora Lee Shaw, the boys quintet of Chuck Hire, Aaron Foster, John Ellcessor, Bud Lynch and Max Milstead, and Sheryl Elliott, Jerry Crissinger, Jetty Custer and Mike Chakeres.

The evening came to a close with the reading of a Christmas story and the benediction by the Rev. L. J. Poe, pastor of Grace Methodist Church and a guest of the club.

AWOL Sailor Netted During Traffic Check

A Greenfield man, absent without leave from the Navy for 11 days, was held by Washington C. H. police Wednesday after they arrested him in a friend's car Tuesday night.

Seaman Apprentice Paul E. Smith, 21, was booked at the police station where officers had taken him and Paul Stiffler, 20, of 1222 S. Hinde St., after Stiffler was charged with driving without an operator's license and without sufficient brakes.

* * *

Court Orders Airman To Pay $55,000 to Accident Victims

Judgments totaling $55,000 were ordered in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning against a member of the U. S. Air Force whose appeal on grounds that his military service prevented him from answering a civil damage action in connection with an automobile accident, was denied by the Second District Court.

The judgments were in favor of James and Rosa Lee Thompson, Canton, who had sued James Willert Lowman, Lockbourne Air Force Base, asking $150,000 damages each.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson appeared in court Wednesday with their counsel, and Judge John P. Case, who earlier had granted a default judgment against Lowman, assessed the amount of damages after hearing a report on injuries to the plaintiffs and resultant loss of work.

* * *

BOTH had been hospitalized after Lowman's car collided with their automobile on the CCC Highway, six miles east of Washington C. H., on March 28, 1957. Thompson, who won a $30,000 judgment testified he is still partially incapacitated by his injuries, and Mrs. Thompson, who was granted $25,000 exhibited permanent facial scars.

Lowman had failed to answer the Thompsons' petitions and after a default judgment had been granted, he then entered a plea that he had been prevented from answering because he was on active duty.

* * *

JUDGE CASE ruled that Lowman, who was to have appeared for hearing on damages May 14, made no attempt to secure the services of an attorney until May 3, long after the case was filed and four days after the plaintiffs had moved for immediate judgment in default of answer.

Lowman's counsel declined the continuance offered by the court.

The Appellate Court affirmed Judge Case's ruling after Lowman had appealed under the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act.

Figures Fumbled

A report on a meeting of the Washington C. H. Board of Education, carried in these columns Tuesday, fumbled a set of figures and came up with a wrong answer.

The balance in the city board's school survey fund, which now reverts to normal school uses following termination of survey action by the State Board, is $1,109.62, instead of $1,636, as reported Tuesday. Originally $2,500 was set aside for a survey and payments for that purpose totaled $289.38, which was the board's one-third share of the bill submitted by Kent State University for preliminary work. Previously $1,101 had been transferred from the survey fund for other school purposes.

However, this will be a Christmas party with a 50-cent gift exchange. It will start with a covered dish supper. Mr. and Mrs. Loren Hynes head the supper committee. Frank Dill is the master.

A Christmas program also has been arranged by Mrs. Darrell Weinrich, the lecturer.

Commissioners Of 2 Counties OK Brock Ditch Job

Commissioners of Fayette and Madison counties gave their approval Tuesday to the proposed improvement of the Brock Ditch, a 3.89 - mile drainage channel located within the two counties.

A preliminary afternoon hearing held in the commissioners' office here attracted approximately 20 interested property owners in the 2,657 - acre drainage area served by the ditch, as well as both Fayette and Madison officials.

Fayette County Engineer Charles Wagner, who placed a preliminary cost estimate of $16,250 on the project, was instructed to make surveys and prepare profiles and other data for report at a second meeting to be held at 1 p. m. Jan. 27.

Denton Announces Sale of Farm Equipment Business to R.C. Belt

H. H. (Dutch) Denton, Washington C. H. farm equipment and appliance dealer for the past 17 years announced Wednesday that he has sold the Denton Implement Store, 851 Columbus Ave., to R. C. Belt, who lives on Route 277, north of the city.

The transfer of ownership becomes effective Jan. 1 and includes the building housing the implement business.

Denton said that he also plans to dispose of the appliance store, which occupies a building one door west, at a later date.

BELT, a native of Columbus who has been a Fayette County resident since 1938 when he purchased a farm on Redbud Rd., has held the International farm equipment franchise in Asheville, Pickaway County, for the past five years. He plans to sell the Asheville business and devote his entire time to the Washington C. H. operation.

Belt has indicated that he plans to operate the local business, which now employs 13 persons, with few changes.

Denton who became associated with International in Columbus, his native city, 38 years ago, came here in 1941 as a dealer for that nationally known firm. His first business location was at the present site of the Rendezvous Restaurant on W. Court St.

* * *

TEN YEARS AGO he purchased the 13-acre Old Fairground property, south of Columbus Ave. and east of Willard St. which he developed the present Washington Oaks section along what is now Lincoln Dr.

The area, which was then an open pasture, became the first subdivision the city had had in many years.

The two Denton business buildings on Columbus Ave. were constructed at that time.

* * *

DENTON, who lives at 929 Columbus Ave., said Wednesday in announcing sale of the implement business:

"I've always been thankful I came to Washington C. H. and Fayette County whose people are the most friendly I've ever known. I have no immediate plans except that I hope to do some traveling and more fishing than I've been able to do in the past."

"With the cooperation of the entire community, we've been able to expand our local operation, and I can highly recommend the new owner of the implement business."

The latter includes International motor trucks and buses as well as all types of farm equipment.

High School Chorus Entertains

Lions Club Meeting Has Christmas Spirit

The Christmas spirit prevailed from start to finish at Tuesday night's dinner meeting of the Washington C. H. Lions Club in the Country Club.

For one thing, each of the 94 Lions there brought a toy for Friday's American Legion-sponsored party for youngsters of the community.

For another, the tailtwister, Omar Schwart, the busiest man in the place, collected more than $20 in "fines" levied against the members for a wide variety of "offenses," mostly imaginary. The money was also turned over to Dr. Charles Pfersick, chairman of the Legion committee, arranging this children's Christmas party to be held in the Legion Hall.

Those Lions, who suspected what the money would go for, voluntarily raised their "fines" and dropped dollars, instead of dimes and quarters, in the tailtwister's collection kettle.

* * *

THE MEETING was opened with the invocation by the Rev. W. Neil Hand, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church and a guest of the club.

Ray French, the president, was there for the first time in several weeks to preside. He has been spending most of his time Britt, Ia., where he has a new feedlot equipment manufacturing plant.

Business at the meeting was held to a minimum to make time for the entertainment program later. However, Tom Gormley, who will direct the coming edition of the Lions Minstrel, announced that the first practice will be held January 4 in the Dayton Power and Light Co. auditorium.

The club also presented gifts of cash to Mrs. Harold Hewitt, the club hostess, and to Tut Jackson, the caretaker.

* * *

THE ENTERTAINMENT program also was in the spirit of Christmas. Under the direction of Grover Baber, a member of the club and vocal music teacher in Washington C. H. High School, presented a group of 18 students, including the B-Nine-Teens, a girls vocal ensemble, and a boys quintet, in several Christmas numbers.

The B-Nine-Teens sang such traditional Yuletide songs as "The Night Before Christmas," White Christmas" and 'Mr. Santa" and the whole group, which was brought together as a choir, sang 'That Christmas Long Ago" and "Everywhere Christmas Tonight."

The boys quintet, for a change of pace, harmonized on a couple of popular songs.

Rounding out the program were solos by Max Milstead and Ann Johnson.

Betsy Vollette was the accompanist for all the numbers.

Making up the choir were the B-Nine-Teens, Ann Johnson, Sandy Mickle, Julia Wilson, Margie Hurtt, Sally Jo Loudner, Jennifer Newbrey, Barbara Rose, Rita Fredericks and Cora Lee Shaw, the boys quintet of Chuck Hire, Aaron Foster, John Ellcessor, Bud Lynch and Max Milstead, and Sheryl Elliott, Jerry Crissinger, Jetty Custer and Mike Chakeres.

The evening came to a close with the reading of a Christmas story and the benediction by the Rev. L. J. Poe, pastor of Grace Methodist Church and a guest of the club.

AWOL Sailor Netted During Traffic Check

A Greenfield man, absent without leave from the Navy for 11 days, was held by Washington C. H. police Wednesday after they arrested him in a friend's car Tuesday night.

Seaman Apprentice Paul E. Smith, 21, was booked at the police station where officers had taken him and Paul Stiffler, 20, of 1222 S. Hinde St., after Stiffler was charged with driving without an operator's license and without sufficient brakes.

* * *

POLICE SAID they stopped Stiffler in an alley which runs off Rose Ave. and took both men to headquarters where they checked on both and found that Smith has been AWOL from Newport, R. I. since Dec. 5.

Shore Patrol officials in Columbus were notified Tuesday, police said.

Stiffler, appearing in Municipal Court Wednesday, was fined $25 and costs on the no-license charge and $10 and costs, $5 of which were suspended if he would get the brakes fixed.

Court Orders Airman To Pay $55,000 to Accident Victims

Judgments totaling $55,000 were ordered in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning against a member of the U. S. Air Force whose appeal on grounds that his military service prevented him from answering a civil damage action in connection with an automobile accident, was denied by the Second District Court.

The judgments were in favor of James and Rosa Lee Thompson, Canton, who had sued James Wilbert Lowman, Lockbourne Air Force Base, asking $150,000 damages each.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson appeared in court Wednesday with their counsel, and Judge John P. Case, who earlier had granted a default judgment against Lowman, assessed the amount of damages after hearing a report on injuries to the plaintiffs and resultant loss of work.

* * *

BOTH had been hospitalized after Lowman's car collided with their automobile on the CCC Highway, six miles east of Washington C. H., on March 28, 1957. Thompson, who won a $30,000 judgment testified he is still partially incapacitated by his injuries, and Mrs. Thompson, who was granted $25,000 exhibited permanent facial scars.

Lowman had failed to answer the Thompsons' petitions and after a default judgment had been granted, he then entered a plea that he had been prevented from answering because he was on active duty.

* * *

JUDGE CASE ruled that Lowman, who was to have appeared for hearing on damages May 14, made no attempt to secure the services of an attorney until May 3, long after the case was filed and four days after the plaintiffs had moved for immediate judgment in default of answer.

Lowman's counsel declined the continuance offered by the court.

The Appellate Court affirmed Judge Case's ruling after Lowman had appealed under the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act.

Fayette Grange Meets Thursday

The Fayette Grange meeting, which was originally scheduled for Dec. 25, will be held in Grange Hall, W. Elm St., Thursday night.

In announcing the advance of a week in the meeting time, it was explained that the change was made because Christmas falls on the last Thursday of the month this year.

However, this will be a Christmas party with a 50-cent gift exchange. It will start with a covered dish supper. Mr. and Mrs. Loren Hynes head the supper committee. Frank Dill is the master.

A Christmas program also has been arranged by Mrs. Darrell Weinrich, the lecturer.

Figures Fumbled

A report on a meeting of the Washington C. H. Board of Education, carried in these columns Tuesday, fumbled a set of figures and came up with a wrong answer.

The balance in the city board's school survey fund, which now reverts to normal school uses following termination of survey action by the State Board, is $1,109.62, instead of $1,636, as reported Tuesday. Originally $2,500 was set aside for a survey and payments for that purpose totaled $289.38, which was the board's one-third share of the bill submitted by Kent State University for preliminary work. Previously $1,101 had been transferred from the survey fund for other school purposes.

Mainly About People

Mrs. C. H. Goldsberry has returned to her home in Good Hope from University Hospital, Columbus where she was a surgical patient.

Clinton Gilmore Sr., is a medical patient in Chillicothe City Hospital, Chillicothe. His room number is 120.

Jean Nisley, a former Fayette County Commissioner is back at his home on the Bunker Hill-Glendon Rd., after having undergone surgery in University Hospital, Columbus. Mrs. Nisley said he is "getting along just &ne," but should not have too many visitors for a time.

Commissioners Of 2 Counties OK Brock Ditch Job

Commissioners of Fayette and Madison counties gave their approval Tuesday to the proposed improvement of the Brock Ditch, a 3.89 - mile drainage channel located within the two counties.

A preliminary afternoon hearing held in the commissioners' office here attracted approximately 20 interested property owners in the 2,657 - acre drainage area served by the ditch, as well as both Fayette and Madison officials.

Fayette County Engineer Charles Wagner, who placed a preliminary cost estimate of $16,250 on the project, was instructed to make surveys and prepare profiles and other data for report at a second meeting to be held at 1 p. m. Jan. 27.

The petitioners ask that the capacity of the ditch be increased.
